PULL TOGETHER! KELLY URGES IN INAUGURAL TALK

Outlines 6 Problems to New Council.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

(Pictures on back page.)

Mayor Kelly.

The mayor was making his third inaugural address to a large crowd in the council chamber of the city hall. "Pull together," he said, is the mandate of more than 800,000 citizens in the election last April 4. The note of cooperation and practical achievement was uppermost in his address, in which six major goals were outlined.

The inaugural ceremony was brief, colorful, and spirited. Fifty aldermen, including Michael Kenna of the 1st ward and fifteen others newly elected, were in their seats, surrounded by admiring families and friends. Ald. Kenna, absent since the day fifteen years ago when he retired in favor of his colleague, the late Bathhouse John Coughlin, received a special ovation.

Flowers Bank Doorways.

Flowers banked the entrance. There was one special horseshoe of red roses, eight feet high, sent by Attorney General John E. Cassidy and associates. The state administration's delegation, headed by Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, was large.

After "The Star Spangled Banner" was sung by Morton Downey, radio tenor, there was a moment of silence in memory of the late Senator James Hamilton Lewis. The Rev. John Thompson, pastor of the Chicago Temple, delivered the invocation.

Mayor Kelly arrived with Mrs. Kelly. He took up the gavel for another four years of council leadership. He was sworn in by County Clerk Michael J. Flynn and then administered the oath to Ludwig D. Schreiber, city clerk, and to Thomas S. Gordon, city treasurer. The aldermen were sworn in en masse.

After the ceremonies the new council met and acted on several pending measures and received a report on the makeup of council committees. [Details on page 7.]

Tells Aldermen of Needs.

Business, labor, youth, and government are all restless today, the mayor said, in addressing the aldermen. The way to meet their problems, he said, is with common sense and teamwork.

"Chicago is due to hit pay dirt on many projects during the next four years," he asserted. "Our test of sound policies is simple: Will they work? We must adjourn any petty or personal politics for the sake of the common good."

He took up six major problems:

1. Relief. The city must provide for the unemployed and for those unable to work every measure of adequate sustenance without further jeopardy to local taxes. This means continuance of federal assistance and projects for work relief.

2. Safe trunk highways, which must insure balanced benefits to all neighborhoods.

Discusses Traction Unity.

3. The best and most workable unified traction ordinance that can be devised. The subways, new filtration system, bridges, underpasses, and sewers must be planned for a modern streamlined city.

4. The new plan commission must be made useful immediately. The day of sprawling neighborhoods is over.

5. The new building code brings demands for adequate zoning and neighborhood rehabilitation. There must be more small parks and playgrounds.

6. The new council committee on labor and industrial relations should add to employment and insure peaceful negotiations between labor and capital.

"We are setting out tonight," the mayor concluded, "to retain our place as the crossroads of trade and culture and democracy in America. We have the blueprints, intelligence, vision, and experience to achieve our aims. Together you and I can keep the door of opportunity open and the lamps of liberty well lighted in this stronghold of democracy. Pull together we will. Let's go, Chicago!"

TRUCKER SLAIN IN OUTBREAK OF LABOR TERROR

Court Puts Ban on Mass Picketing.

Labor terrorists struck all over Chicago yesterday. They shot and killed a helper on a department store truck, fired at half a dozen truck drivers and helpers, and beat or threatened workers in a score of places.

The man slain was James Lawrence, 45 years old, whose last address was 1124 Wilson avenue. He was one of five men riding on a Wieboldt department store truck which was fired upon by an auto load of gunmen in Walton street between Marshfield avenue and Paulina street. The attack was attributed to a dispute between unions seeking to represent Wieboldt employés.

Move to Restore Order.

City and county authorities immediately moved to restore law and order. Mayor Kelly, State's Attorney Courtney and Police Commissioner Allman promised that the slayers would be tracked down and that violence would cease. Today, they said, more than fifty police squads will be patroling streets near the six Wieboldt stores, and the company's two garages and warehouse.

A few hours after the killing Judge Donald S. McKinlay issued a court order prohibiting mass picketing of any Wieboldt property by labor union officials or members. The writ also enjoined unionists from terrorizing company employés and from influencing them by coercion or threats.

Last night the Cook County Retail council offered a reward of $5,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderers. The council's membership includes retail business concerns throughout Cook county.

Story of the Killing.

Lawrence was shot at 11:10 a. m. He was riding, as a guard, with three other men in the back of the truck. They were covered from view by the tarpaulin that protects the parcels being delivered. A driver and a helper sat in the cab of the truck.

Four men in a maroon sedan drove alongside. Witnesses said pistols and one shotgun were shoved through the sedan windows. Half a dozen shots were fired through the tarpaulin at the rear of the truck and through the cab windows. One slug struck Lawrence in the abdomen. He died in St. Mary's hospital.

None of the other men on the truck was wounded. They stopped the vehicle and fled on foot. Two of the killers pursued the driver, Roy Rodgers, 21, of 2233 South Oakley avenue. Half a block away they caught him and knocked him down. Both men kicked him. Then they returned to their car and fled.

Driver Beaten with Bat.

A few minutes later men riding in a similar automobile halted another Wieboldt truck at 31st street and Western avenue. John Borowski, 22, of 1884 Fullerton avenue, the driver, was dragged to the street and knocked unconscious with a baseball bat. Several guards with him fled. When Borowski regained his senses the assailants had fled. He was taken to the Presbyterian hospital. Physicians said his skull may be fractured.

Still later in the day two other truck drivers were attacked. Hoodlums in an automobile drove alongside a Wieboldt truck at Grand and Hoyne avenues and fired six shots into the cab. The steel door turned the bullets and saved the life of the driver, Harry Rasmussen, 27 years old, 1521 Wicker Park avenue.

A gang of gunmen fired four shots into a truck driven by Eugene Carter, 23, of 804 East 63d street, at Ogden avenue and Randolph street. Again the steel cab saved the driver. Carter said he recognized one of the gunners as a minor official of a taxicab union. Police were seeking him.

A witness to the killing of Lawrence gave police a license number which he said was on the killers' car.

Asks Escorts for Trucks.

Meanwhile Mayor Kelly and Commissioner Allman pledged full coöperation of the police department in restoring order. Werner Wieboldt, chairman of the board of the Wieboldt Stores, Inc., asked police guards for truck movements today. Allman will decide this morning, he said, whether to provide escorts for each truck.

"The company," said Mayor Kelly,

Burglar Seeks an Aid; Refuses 'No' as Answer

James Zimmerman was awakened by the crash of glass early today in his home at 1314 South Millard avenue. Looking out, he saw a burglar crawling through a hole in the window of Joseph Lehr's delicatessen at 1257 South Millard avenue.

Zimmerman ran out in his pajamas. The burglar saw him approaching and stepped back out through the hole in the window. A jagged piece of the glass knocked the burglar's hat off.

Zimmerman seized the burglar, who wriggled away and ran. Zimmerman pursued him, but was outdistanced. Chilly, Zimmerman went back home.

Seeks Helper to Finish Job.

Presently Louis Pangrazio passed on his way home to 3533 West 13th place. A bareheaded man stepped out of the shadows and addressed him:

"Come on back and help me rob that delicatessen. I've made a hole in the window to get in."

"You're crazy," said Pangrazio. "Beat it."

"There's a lot of money," the stranger pleaded. "Come on and help me."

"No."

The stranger wouldn't take no for an answer. He paced along beside Pangrazio, ignoring Pangrazio's threats to call police.

Scorns Another Refusal.

Before his door, Pangrazio stopped. "Get away from here," he said. "If you don't I'll get my gun and shoot you."

He slammed the door in the stranger's face. But when Pangrazio looked out his window, the stranger was still there.

Pangrazio seized his .22 caliber rifle. He stepped out the door and ordered the stranger away again. When the man refused to go, Pangrazio told Sergts. Murray Rover and Michael Fleming, he clubbed the man over the head with the rifle. There was a struggle.

The weapon was discharged. The bullet struck the stranger in the head. He was taken to the Bridewell hospital, where it was feared he would die.

Last Nov. 12, Terrill was arrested and subsequently sentenced to attend the school for four Tuesday evenings. He has attended regularly ever since. Tuesday night he substituted for Labbe as teacher. Yesterday Labbe announced Terrill will assist him hereafter. Terrill, 22 years old, lives at 2020 Sherman avenue, Evanston.

A BOY LEARNS AN OLD LESSON IN A NEW WAY

William Purdy was a truant from the Sullivan High school yesterday. Yet he learned a lesson, a lesson that may shape his life. It is this:

Crime does not pay.

William Purdy is 14 years old. He is a boy of good family, a boy of bright promise, a boy who need not have turned to crime to get money.

Several days ago he got a revolver from another boy. He stuffed its chambers with wax that had been darkened to look like bullets. He left his home at 6537 Newgard avenue for school as usual yesterday morning. But instead he went to a delicatessen at 7659 North Paulina street and demanded money from Miss Edith Butters, 19 years old. He got $9.25.

Using some of the money, William went to the loop and into a movie theater. The crime taught the lesson that crime does not pay.

Deeply impressed, William went home and told his story to his parents. His father, Mervyn Purdy, took the boy to the Rogers Park police. William turned over to the police the remainder of the stolen money.

William was allowed to go home, pending a decision by juvenile authorities as to what should be done.

Indict Mayor, Police Chief in Champaign

Urbana, Ill., April 12.—[Special.]—Mayor James D. Flynn and Police Chief Roy Argo of Champaign are charged with malfeasance in indictments returned tonight to Circuit Judge John H. Armstrong by the Champaign county grand jury. Twenty-six true bills were voted.

Attorney General John E. Cassidy, who undertook an investigation of charges that protected vice and gaming dens were temptations to students of the University of Illinois, obtained the indictments. It is understood more indictments will be returned tomorrow accusing others.

Malfeasance is punishable by a fine of not more than $10,000 and removal from office. No prison or jail sentence is possible on this charge. The prosecutors said there might be other indictments if it can be shown that any money was paid for protection and a blanket indictment charging officials, brothel keepers, and gamblers with conspiracy may be asked from the next grand jury.

Candidate for Reëlection.

Flynn and Police Commissioner Frank Hanley were called before the grand jury Monday. They were in the jury room only a few minutes. It was reported they had refused to sign immunity waivers and therefore were not questioned. Hanley generally is regarded as the political boss of Champaign.

Flynn is finishing a four year term, his first, and is a candidate for reelection next Tuesday, when four nonpartisan commissioners also will be chosen. Flynn is opposed by Hubert Goodell.

The indictments are the result of two months of investigation which was ordered after William Spurrier, a sophomore at the university, was shot fatally by a colored woman in front of a disorderly house on the night of Feb. 16. T. P. Sullivan, chief of the state bureau of investigation, was sent to Champaign by Lieut. Gov. John Stelle, then acting governor, with a corps of assistants.

One Defendant Ends Life.

Two weeks ago former Sherif C. W. Roth and William Humbracht, vice boss of the university city, were included in a series of indictments. Last night Humbracht killed himself with a borrowed shotgun on a farm near Barrington, Ill., where he was hiding from a new arrest as a white slaver.

Humbracht's wife, Loretta, and his brother, Gust, also were indicted as panderers and as keepers of houses of prostitution.

Chief Avenges Zog's Wrong to His Daughter

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, April 12.—A bitter enemy of deposed King Zog became prime minister of Albania today and in doing so gained a measure of the vengeance he vowed against the man who jilted his daughter.

Vrlazi Achmed Beg is the man on whom Zog inflicted as big an affront as one Albanian can on another, even in a land famed for a hair-trigger and homicidal sense of honor.

King Zog was engaged to Vrlazi Achmed Beg's daughter—at least the father considered it an engagement and their marriage a settled arrangement.

King Weds Another.

Then Zog jilted the daughter of the tribal chieftain and married the Hungarian-American Countess Geraldine Apponyi of Budapest. Vrlazi Achmed Beg swore to avenge his daughter's honor and his own. Zog took extraordinary precautions for his personal safety, choosing to remain a prisoner in his palace in Tirana.

Prevented from obtaining revenge in the traditional Albanian style of murdering the insulter, Vrlazi sought other means of bringing Zog to grief. He found them in intriguing with Italy. Italy was only too pleased to have support from a powerful chieftain inside the country it was planning to occupy.

Vrlazi Achmed Beg took an active hand in the plot and now has his reward in the satisfaction of sitting in Zog's place in the Tirana government palace.

Assembly Hand Picked.

His government was formed after the meeting of the so-called Albanian national assembly today. The assembly, the orphan Albanian legation in Belgrade asserts, was simply a hand picked group of delegates subservient to Italy. They were persons picked up anywhere and given orders by the Italian military commander, legation officials asserted.

Jugo-Slavia is holding its breath. So is every other country in the Balkans. It is felt that if some one should cough or involuntarily twitch a muscle the whole structure of things would come toppling down.

Such is the situation which THE TRIBUNE correspondent finds here, whereto news flows from all southeastern Europe. Extraordinary precautions are being taken to keep sleeping dogs of war asleep. In officialdom there is great fear of newspaper men, and especially foreign correspondents, whose indiscretion, officials declare, may provoke new crises.

BERLIN, April 12.—A housemaid was sentenced today to three months' imprisonment for leaving her place of employment without notice or permission from the Nazi authorities. Press reports of the conviction emphasized that it may serve as an impressive warning to those harboring similar intentions to leave their jobs.

BRITAIN MOVES WITH FRANCE TO END CONQUESTS

Expected to Protect Greece and Turkey.

Turn to page 14 for a color map showing the extent of the old Roman empire at its height, in comparison with the lands now held by Italy under Mussolini.

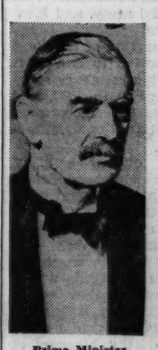
BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 12.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain is expected to deliver a warning tomorrow to Germany and Italy, the axis partners, to keep their hands off British interests in the Mediterranean area. He will disclose his declaration of policy at an extraordinary session of parliament which was called to discuss the situation created by Premier Mussolini's conquest of Albania.



Prime Minister Chamberlain.

Great Britain's determination to preserve the present political and territorial status in the Mediterranean will be the keynote of Chamberlain's declaration, government sources revealed tonight. However, they said, there will be no denunciation of the British-Italian friendship agreement which was concluded last year.

The prime minister will address the house of commons and Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax will make a similar speech in the house of lords. The pair conferred for an hour and a half today on the final draft of the declaration. The full cabinet will meet tomorrow before parliament assembles to pass on the pronouncements contained in the text, which has been drawn up in close collaboration with the French government.

France Backs Up Britain.

Premier Edouard Daladier of France will back up Chamberlain's declaration with a formal statement of his nation's policy at the same time. [Details on page 3.]

The policy which Chamberlain will announce amounts to a British-French guarantee to prevent any violation of the Mediterranean area, said the Daily Telegraph, which usually reflects the government's opinion.

The prime minister, it declared, will say that any attempts to infringe on the sovereignty, independence, or territorial integrity of either Greece or Turkey will be met with the maximum resistance of the armed forces of Britain and France.

British Take Defense Measures.

The Daily Telegraph also asserted that the British took vigorous defensive measures in the Mediterranean today following reports of Italian troop concentrations in the neighborhood of Gibraltar and near the Egyptian Sudan frontier. The newspaper did not disclose the nature of the precautions.

While indications in government quarters were that Chamberlain may adopt a blunt and critical attitude toward totalitarian aggression, there were no signs that Britain will give Turkey and Greece any exclusive and formal military guarantees immediately. It was admitted the prime minister is not likely to announce the conclusion of any mutual assistance agreements covering the Balkan nations. Negotiations are still proceeding, it was said, with a view to building up a united front of small powers ready to aid one another in defending their security.

[An Associated Press dispatch said the Turkish ambassador, Tevfik Rustu Aras, called at the British foreign office and was reported to have advised that his government was ready to accept any guarantee Britain was willing to give.]

To Present Italian Case.

Chamberlain, in his declaration, is expected to present the Italian case justifying the occupation of Albania as communicated from Rome. At the same time he no doubt will deliver a pungent reminder to Mussolini that he still has not fulfilled his promise to remove Italian troops from Spain.

British uneasiness on this score was intensified recently by reports that several thousand more Italian troops had landed at Cadiz, Spain. Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the Spanish dictator, now is a partner of Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Mussolini in the anti-communist pact. He already has declared that Italian forces will not be released from Spain until after a Nationalist victory parade in Madrid some time in May.

Despite a flood of unconfirmed reports of troop movements, the British government is not disposed to believe that there is any immediate danger from a further move by Italy or that any fresh German activities will occur before the celebration of Hitler's fiftieth birthday April 20.

The idea seems to be that what the British government wants is not an urgent gesture to deal with the present situation but a warning to the dictators to steer clear of British interests.

Calls Opposition Leader.

Tomorrow's debate in parliament will be conducted almost exclusively by Clement R. Attlee, leader of the Labor opposition, and Capt. Anthony Eden and Winston Churchill, former cabinet members.

Chamberlain summoned Attlee and Churchill to his official residence at No. 10 Downing street today—a procedure usually adopted when the government wants to avoid embarrassment in a debate. Eden, who formerly was foreign secretary, visited Viscount Halifax at the foreign office.

The stream of callers at the foreign office include Herschel Johnson, American chargé d'affaires; the French, Polish, and Chinese ambassadors, and the Greek minister.

Lord Chatfield, minister for coördination of defense; Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary, and Sir Robert Vansittart, the British government's chief diplomatic adviser, also conferred at the foreign office. Sir Thomas Inskip, secretary for the dominions, summoned the high commissioners of Australia, South Africa, Canada, and New Zealand to his offices to advise them of the cabinet's policy.

TROTZKY, RIVERA SPLIT AS FRIENDS, POLITICAL ALLIES

MEXICO CITY, April 12.—(AP)—Leon Trotzky, exiled communist who once headed the Red army, and Mexico's famous mural painter, Diego Rivera, reached a parting of the ways today. Trotzky decided to move out of Rivera's house, his residence since he came from Norway in 1937, and Rivera announced his resignation from the Fourth Internationale, which Trotzky heads.

The split grew out of a letter Rivera wrote to a French poet, Andre Breton, in Paris. In the letter Rivera made some allusions to Trotzky which the latter resented. Trotzky replied with remarks Rivera considered derogatory and unacceptable. The result, Rivera declared, was a conversation in which they ended their friendship. Trotzky is hunting a new home. He gave Rivera a check for $40 for rent during his stay at Rivera's home.

REPORT GERMANS RENEW CLAIMS AGAINST POLAND

Suspect Nazis Are Trying to Bluff Warsaw.

BULLETIN.

WARSAW, April 13 [Thursday].—(AP)—The Polish foreign office was reported today to have instructed officials of the Polish embassy and consular offices in Germany to send their families home. The entire Warsaw press published editorials supporting Poland's recently announced defense alliance with Great Britain.

BULLETIN.

DANZIG, April 13 [Thursday].—(AP)—The Danzig free state government today handed a note to the Polish envoy here protesting against "Polish provocations." The official press announcement of the note said that in the last few days anti-Danzig leaflets had been thrown from Polish trains passing through the Danzig territory. The note referred to the "dangerous results of these Polish provocations."

WARSAW, April 12.—(AP)—Reports circulated in diplomatic quarters tonight that Germany had renewed demands upon Poland for the Free City of Danzig and a strip of the Polish corridor.

This indicated, these quarters said, that Germany hoped to bluff Poland into a stand of neutrality or that the Nazis were prepared to bargain—if Poland would loosen her defense ties with Britain and France.

The demand for Danzig, for a motor road across the Polish corridor under German sovereignty and for cession of Bogumin, important rail junction, previously were made and were refused.

Claim Envoy Brought Demands.

The foreign office denied tonight they had been repeated. Diplomatic sources and other quarters persisted in discussing the reported demands. They were said to have been brought from Berlin today by Josef Lipski, the Polish ambassador.

Foreign Minister Josef Beck conferred with the British and French ambassadors. The Japanese ambassador was another caller at the foreign office. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr., the American ambassador, is to see Beck tomorrow. Hans von Moltke, the German ambassador, is expected to call upon his return from Berlin.

Political commentators, discussing German demands, argued that from the German point of view Nazi expansion in southeast Europe can continue only if Poland occupies an inactive position.

Prepare Peasants for War.

The Polish ministries of agriculture, finance, and war published regulations under which farmers would be compelled to help each other to work the land and raise cattle during war. The regulations would force certain peasants to remain on their farms and care for the properties of others who would be mobilized.

Authorities at Lodz, of whose 653,402 residents 90,000 are Germanic, were reported to have banned the wearing of white stockings and brown Hitler coats by members of the German minority.

Police registered many names of persons who wore white stockings while strolling on Easter, and yesterday twenty-four were fined the equivalent of $4 each. Those unable to pay were ordered to spend three days in jail.

Lodz authorities have ruled white stockings constitute an illegal, alien uniform. White stockings were the distinguishing apparel chosen by the Sudeten Germans of Czecho-Slovakia in their successful agitation for the protection of Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

At Gniezno it was announced that leaders of a Germanic women's organization, Bund Deutscher Maedels, would go on trial next month charged with establishing a secret society.

Corridor Trouble

Diagonal lines indicate Danzig area, for which Germany has renewed demands, according to reports last night in Warsaw. Germany also is reported to be demanding a motor road which would connect East Prussia with the rest of Germany. At Lodz authorities were said to have banned the wearing of white stockings and brown coats by members of the German minority. At Gniezno plans were announced for a trial of leaders of a women's Nazi secret organization.

WARSAW'S STAND BARED

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, April 12.—Polish officials tonight denied that Ambassador Josef Lipski returned to Warsaw from Berlin with German demands to open negotiations concerning the settlement of three questions—the status of the German minority in Poland, the return of Danzig to Germany and the construction of an auto road across the Polish corridor under German sovereignty.

Polish officials declare they are willing to discuss these questions, but do not want to open negotiations under a threat of intimidation. Warsaw believes that Germany is eager for a settlement before Reichsfuehrer Hitler's fiftieth birthday on April 20. However, no solution is expected to be reached for some months.

A Polish military mission is expected to leave Warsaw for London soon to negotiate with the British general staff about practical methods of Polish-British coöperation under the new mutual assistance agreement.

The Polish foreign office and official press continue to emphasize there is nothing in the Polish-British accord that will handicap Poland's relations with her neighbors.

It was stated here that Poland has not received an invitation to send military leaders to Berlin to attend Hitler's birthday party. Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia have accepted invitations and are sending their military leaders to Germany.

The recent refusal of both Lithuania and Latvia to accept Poland's proposal to form a protective bloc disappointed Polish military leaders.

Nazis Await Polish Move.

BERLIN, April 12.—(AP)—Germany today waited for Poland to make the next move toward settlement of the Polish-German issues, but officials suggested that Warsaw make public the German demands which led to the British-Polish defense accord.

Publication of the demands, they said, would show the world that they in no way endangered the independence or territorial integrity of Poland.

Call Reserve Specialists for Belgian Defense Duty

BRUSSELS, April 12.—(AP)—The Belgian government today called up military reserve specialists for immediate duty and took other measures to strengthen the nation's security.

TRUCKER SLAIN IN OUTBREAK OF LABOR TERROR

"came to me days ago and asked for protection. Commissioner Allman arranged to have police squads patrol the routes over which Wieboldt trucks were to travel. The incidents today took place when the company's truck got off the patroled streets where we couldn't keep them under surveilance constantly."

"I've been working on this labor situation for some time," said State's Attorney Courtney, "and had hoped to settle it peaceably. The labor unions involved in this thing have been somewhat controled by my office for several years and I've seen this trouble coming.

"Now that it's here my friendship with some of the union leaders will not prevent my giving my utmost efforts to find and convict the killers."

No Strike Among Employés.

The day's violence, according to police, is an outgrowth of a jurisdictional fight between the Baggage, Parcel, Theatrical, and Armored Car Drivers' and Helpers' union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, and the Wieboldt Employés association. Wieboldt officials corroborated this. They said there is no strike among the store employés.

The store asked that a poll be taken to determine the wishes of its men. Saturday night a vote was taken in the Baggage union headquarters at 220 South Ashland avenue. The vote was supervised by Harry Scheck, a conciliator for the federal department of labor. Scheck reported on Monday that the drivers voted 59 to 1 to have the Baggage union represent them.

"We have no confidence in Scheck," said Elmer Wieboldt. "We insist that any election be held on neutral ground with a neutral supervisor.

"The Saturday voting was held in union headquarters and the men were harangued for three hours beforehand. Since then—with a few exceptions—we've not seen our men. We don't know what they want. We've had to hire a lot of temporary drivers and guards because we won't ask our own employes to face these thugs.

"We're still willing to negotiate with the union, but not so long as there are pickets at our doors."

Scheck was absent from the city yesterday but is expected back today. Officials of the baggage union are Maurice Maus, president and Jack Cassidy, business agent. Negotiations with the Wieboldts, however, have been conducted through Leslie Goudie, president, and George Mitchell, vice president, of the Chicago joint council of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, which is the international union of the baggage drivers.

All these union officials have been summoned to a conference with police today. They could not be reached last night.

FRANCE FIDGETS AS CHAMBERLAIN DEALS WITH DUCE

Fear of Another Munich Pact Hits Paris.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 12.—While awaiting with some misgivings the result of negotiations between Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain and Premier Mussolini of Italy, which many fear might be aiming at a Mediterranean Munich agreement, the French today continued to hold up their end of the democratic front in what still seems to be a business-like way.

The council of ministers this morning put its final approval on the new defense measures which were decided on Sunday. The full extent of these measures has not been disclosed. However, it has been learned that they include the calling up of more reservists, canceling of leaves and making anti-aircraft and coast defense units ready for instant action.

Fleet Ready for Action.

The fleet has also been put in readiness and part of it sailed from Toulon last night for an unknown destination. It is believed here that as a result of recent precautionary steps, the French have no need to fear any surprise attack which might disrupt mobilization in case of war.

All these actions speak louder than words and the tone of the press continues to be relatively firm, though there does not seem to be any organized campaign to prepare public opinion for drastic action.

Chamberlain's negotiations with Mussolini are viewed with alarm and indignation in some quarters and uneasiness in nearly all. But even those who cry the loudest against Chamberlain's policy do not seem to think the man with the umbrella can do any serious harm this time.

British public opinion and pressure from the army and navy will make further capitulation by Chamberlain impossible, these circles say. It is impossible to ascertain what this view is based on, but it was expressed with great conviction in well informed quarters.

Approves Daladier's Message.

The fact that the cabinet today approved the official declaration which Premier Edouard Daladier will make tomorrow, parallel to that of Chamberlain, would seem to indicate that there is no serious rift between French and British policy in the Mediterranean.

Inasmuch as the cabinet turned down a suggestion to call an extraordinary meeting of parliament and that Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet failed to appear before the foreign affairs committee of the chamber of deputies as requested seems to indicate that the government does not yet regard war as inevitable.

There is reason to believe that the United States strenuously has been urging the French and British to stand firm against the dictators. President Roosevelt's statement yesterday certainly has had a stiffening effect.

[Mr. Roosevelt Tuesday expressed his approval of a newspaper editorial interpreting his use of the collective pronoun "we" in his farewell remarks at Warm Springs, Ga., last Sunday. He promised at that time to be back again in the fall "if we don't have a war." The "we," the editorial pointed out, undoubtedly meant western civilization and was a warning to Hitler and Mussolini.]

Bullitt Sees Bonnet.

William C. Bullitt, American ambassador to Paris, conferred with Bonnet again today.

Several interesting reports have reached Paris through diplomatic channels. One is that Italy has nearly two million men under arms. Another is that Germany has only three months' reserve supply of gasoline and cannot think seriously of war unless she first secures control of the Rumanian oil fields.

The third says that the food shortage is so acute in Nationalist Spain that if she went to war on the side of the axis powers, Germany and Italy, her position would speedily become desperate.

A polite and indirect warning that dissatisfaction over relations between France and Spain is mutual was voiced by the Spanish ambassador, José Felix Lequerica, in a speech before French newspapermen at his embassy.

Refers to Past Difficulties.

After a discreet reference to the difficulties which existed between Paris and the Spanish Nationalists when the latter were known as rebels, the ambassador said that the value of agreements reached between Senator Leon Berard of France and Spain's foreign minister, Count Francisco Gomez Jordana, would be zero if they were not loyally, completely, and rapidly executed.

The envoy said that Franco's Spain has emerged from the civil war unified and confident of its military capacity.

"It is anxious that its determination to play an active rôle in European politics should be understood," he declared.

Hitler Behind Shield

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Adolf Hitler, protected by glass screen, as he spoke recently in Wilhelmshaven at the ceremony launching the 35,000 ton battleship Tirpitz. It was announced that the glass shield was to protect Hitler from North sea winds, but there were reports that the glass was bullet proof, and that it was put up as protection against the possibility of a bullet from the crowd.

ORDER DRUGGAN TO PAY $611,448 TAX BILL TO U. S.

Ex-Beer Baron Phones He Is Flat Broke.

Terrence Jasper Druggan, lord of a vast beer empire during the prohibition era, owes the federal government $611,448. A jury in the Federal District court yesterday granted the government a judgment for this sum against Druggan for unpaid income taxes, interest, and penalties.

Terry Druggan.

Yesterday's episode in the ups and downs of the career of the erstwhile Valley gangster known as Terry Druggan was over very quickly. The defendant was not in court. In a telephone call to David L. Bazelon, assistant district attorney, Druggan announced he was broke and unable to hire a lawyer, hence he would offer no defense. Last March 17 his attorney, Mark D. Yellon, was granted permission to retire from the case.

Judge Directs Verdict.

Prosecutor Bazelon then offered three exhibits. They were assessments made by the board of tax appeals, which affirmed the findings of the bureau of internal revenue. Miss Helen J. Norton, chief of the assessment division of the bureau, testified there was no record of any payment. Judge John P. Barnes then directed the jurors to return verdict for the government, which they did without leaving the jury box.

The government's claim includes $269,901 in taxes for 1922, 1923, 1924, 1927, and 1931; $225,452 in interest, and the balance in penalties. Previously Druggan paid $50,582 in taxes for those years.

The action yesterday was a civil matter. On Feb. 2, 1932, Druggan pleaded guilty to attempting to defraud the government of several thousand dollars in income taxes. He served 29 months of a two and a half year prison sentence. His beer partner, Frankie Lake, was sentenced to 18 months in prison.

Hunt for Hidden Assets.

Whether the government ever will be able to collect its tax claim is a moot question. Prosecutor Bazelon said the government will slap a lien on any property found to be owned by Druggan. Should the government learn that Druggan is concealing property to thwart payment of the judgment, Bazelon said, he may be prosecuted criminally.

Druggan is reported to be the actual owner of a 240 acre estate at Lake Zurich worth $80,000, which is held in the name of his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Druggan. Recently the estate was ordered sold to satisfy a mortgage. In an attempt to avoid foreclosure, Mrs. Druggan filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy.

In his heyday, Druggan bossed seven breweries for Al Capone. After repeal it was reported that Druggan obtained an interest in several other breweries.

N. Y. CLUB CONFERS DOCTOR OF LITTERS DEGREE ON DAFOE

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, famous physician of the Dionne quintuplets, was initiated this afternoon into the Circus Saints' and Sinners' club. Clad in a pink and white mortar board and bathrobe, Dr. Dafoe was invested solemnly with the degree of doctor of litters.

In return he distributed among the 700 guests stones from the Dionne farm, which he announced were "cherished by the superstitious as portents of fertility."

Driven into the room in a horse and buggy labeled "rural free delivery," he was faced with a setting based on the circus. A dummy stork suspended from a wire fluttered to and fro bearing a sign which said: "Dr. Dafoe unfair to organized storks. No mass production of babies."

DUCE TO ACCEPT ALBANIA'S CROWN FOR KING OF ITALY

Calls Meeting of Fascist Grand Council.

ROME, April 12.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini tonight made the crown of Albania symbolic of that newly conquered country's union with Italy. He called the Fascist grand council to act tomorrow on the Albanian national assembly's offer of exiled King Zog's crown to King Victor Emmanuel of Italy.

King Victor needs the authorization of the grand council before accepting the crown, but that was considered certain. The cabinet is to meet on Friday and the senate and chamber on Saturday.

By acceptance of the crown, the little Balkan kingdom, from which Italian troops chased Zog last week, would be brought within the Italian empire while retaining the outward characteristics of a sovereign state Albania is to retain her flag. Rome would dominate the mouth of the Adriatic as virtually an Italian sea and obtain a monopoly over Albania's oil and other resources.

Greece Accepts Pledge.

Greece today accepted Il Duce's pledge to respect Greek territorial integrity, a pledge which likewise has been given to Jugo-Slavia. The Greek minister, Pietro Metaxas handed the foreign office a note replying to the Italian communication delivered in Athens on Monday by the Italian chargé d'affaires. The note said in part:

"Premier John Metaxas expresses his thanks for the communication . . . with which categorical assurances were given that the Fascist government would respect the integrity of Greece both as regards its land frontiers and its maritime [sea] frontiers.

". . . Noting with full satisfaction these declarations . . . [Premier Metaxas] is absolutely sure no events can arise which might disturb in any way the traditional friendship which always unites the two countries and he sees a period of cordiality starting for the continuation of this peaceful collaboration."

Must Avoid British Ties.

Foreign capitals have feared that Albania might become the gateway to Italian-German conquests in the Balkans.

The Fascist press indicated that Italian assurances of Greece's safety implied Greek abstention from political transactions with Great Britain, especially any that would give the British fleet the use of Greek ports in time of war.

[There was no Italian comment on London reports that Premier Mussolini had promised Britain henceforth to preserve the territorial alignment in the Mediterranean, now that Albania is his. Britain is expected tomorrow to announce guarantees of Greek and Turkish independence.]

In the light of Italian pledges, foreign diplomats were puzzled as to the meaning of reënforcing the Fascist army to more than 1,000,000 men by calling up reservists. A few observers thought Italy might be preparing to press claims on France for advantages in French African Tunisia and Djibouti and the Suez canal.

Assembly Adopts Program.

TIRANA, April 12.—(AP)—The Albanian national assembly, meeting in this capital, today offered Albania's crown to King Victor Emmanuel of Italy and proposed a personal union of the two countries. The assembly adopted this four point program:

1. The former régime of King Zog has fallen and its constitution is abrogated.
2. A new government is to be named by the assembly.
3. Albania and Italy are to be associated more immediately.
4. The crown is offered to King Victor Emmanuel for him and his descendants.

Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister and son-in-law of Premier Mussolini, flew to Tirana for the meeting.

Zhafer Ipi, president of the provisional government set up under Italian auspices when Zog fled, hailed Mussolini as a deliverer and as a man who had shown a capacity greater than Cæsar or Hannibal.

A new cabinet was set up with Vrlazi Achmed Beg as premier and public works minister. Ipi becomes minister of justice.

Meanwhile, a detachment of Italian troops in trucks reached the Jugo-Slav frontier at Koplik, north of Scutari on the Adriatic. The Italian tricolor also was planted on the Albanian-Greek border at Biklishta.

OVERHEARD CALL ON PHONE TRAPS THREE IN THEFT

Two bandits invaded Adolph's restaurant at 1045 Rush street yesterday morning before opening time. They tied up the dishwasher, Sigismund Walokowski, and took $37 from a cash register. They pushed the wrong key on another cash register, which contained $450, and were unable to open it. Last night Detectives Thomas Lovell and James Dwyer arrested the dishwasher. They also arrested George Carroll of 2500 Indiana avenue and Walter Bolisenga of 2430 Indiana avenue.

Here's why: Some one in the living quarters above the restaurant picked up an extension telephone just before the robbery and heard the dishwasher say the coast was clear. Confronted with this information, the dishwasher confessed that the robbery was only make-believe—a plot which he and the two others had hatched. The others were also said by police to have confessed. All are in their early twenties.

Italy Parades Its Libyan Military Might for Goering

TRIPOLI, April 12.—(AP)—A mammoth review of Italian and native Libyan troops was held today in honor of Field Marshall Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Germany's air minister, who is vacationing in North Africa. Participating in the spectacle were 23,000 troops, 300 machine-gun units, 150 cannon, 700 military trucks and 1,800 horses. After the review Goering left by steamer for Italy.

TELL HOW ARGENTINE NAZIS COLLECTED FOR PARTY FUND IN BERLIN

BUENOS AIRES, April 12.—(AP)—Federal Prosecutor Paolucci Cornejo has broadened Argentina's inquiry into Nazi activities to include protests of workers that German concerns compelled monthly contributions to the Nazi party and the German government. Police raids were made on two houses in Buenos Aires and other raids at scattered points in Argentina.

There were growing signs that Argentina, while wishing to avoid any rupture in relations with Germany, was seeking stronger commercial ties with the United States and other nations of the western world.

Foreign Minister José Maria Cantilo said that the Argentine ambassador to the United States, Felipe Espil, would return to his capital soon to facilitate an improvement in trade. "We want very much to arrive at a trade agreement with the United States," Cantilo said.

RUMANIAN PRESS FLAYS HUNGARY FOR ARMY MOVES

BUCHAREST, April 12.—(AP)—Rumanian newspapers started a vigorous attack on Hungary tonight. Several papers said that reports of an increasing concentration of Hungarian troops near the borders aggravated difficulties between the two countries.

The propaganda department organ Seara recalled King Carol's recent statement, "Give me twenty years of peace to show what Rumania can accomplish." Seara commented that "this policy of peace, however, must not be regarded as a sign of weakness, and if we are attacked we will defend ourselves to the utmost."

Suspend Nazi Newspaper.

BUDAPEST, April 12.—(AP)—The Hungarian interior ministry tonight ordered a three month suspension of the newspaper Magyarsag, organ of the Hungarian National Socialist [Nazi] party, because the paper attacked Rumania and made the demand editorially that Hungarian claims on Transylvania be satisfied.

MAYOR OF HARVEY SEIZED ON CHARGE OF EMBEZZLING $10,000

Mayor Frank W. Bruggeman of Harvey was arrested last night on a charge of embezzling $10,000 paid into the Harvey treasury by the village of Dixmoor for water service. Bruggeman branded his arrest a political plot to discredit him in the mayoral election next Tuesday. He said he had deposited the $10,000 secretly in a Blue Island bank, with the approval of the city council, lest holders of water department bonds who are in litigation with the Harvey government attach the money.

The mayor was taken before Police Magistrate William F. Donahue, where $2,000 bond was posted by former Mayor George Gibson. The charge had been brought by Alfred Kennedy of 15421 Ashland avenue, Harvey, acting as a taxpayer. Bruggeman, a Republican seeking a fourth four year term, said that Kennedy is a worker for the Democratic candidate, Frank G. Ring.

To the CUSTOMERS and FRIENDS of WIEBOLDT'S

Wieboldt's, your neighbor, feels that you are entitled to an explanation of the inconvenience which some of you are suffering thru delayed delivery of your purchases.

The several stores, garages and warehouse of this company have been constantly picketed by persons other than our employees since Thursday, April 6th, thereby interfering with the receipt and delivery of merchandise.

Since the picketing was started two unions have made demands upon us to recognize them as the bargaining agents for all of our chauffeurs and furniture helpers, but they have furnished no proof that they represent the majority of such employees.

We believe in the right of the majority of these employees freely to choose their representatives and suggested that an election be held at a neutral place, under impartial supervision, in order that these employees, without coercion or intimidation, might determine the question of representation, but these unions refused and have continued with the picketing of our places of business. We prize our relations with our employees. We believe that in justice to our chauffeurs and furniture helpers we cannot recognize the unions as their representatives unless and until such employees are given a fair opportunity to express their free choice in the matter by majority vote.

We thank our customers and friends for their patronage and hope for their continued indulgence, consideration, and cooperation.

JUDGE THOMAS RESIGNS FROM FEDERAL BENCH

Quits After Questioning by U. S. Grand Jury.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today accepted the resignation of Federal Judge Edwin S. Thomas of Connecticut, whose connections with former Circuit Judge Martin T. Manton and the McKesson & Robbins Drug company are being investigated by a federal grand jury. The White House announced the judge had submitted his resignation in a letter dated April 6. The President sent a letter of acceptance to Thomas today.

Judge Thomas.

Judge Thomas entered the McKesson & Robbins case Feb. 4 when he was ordered by the department of justice to return from a Latin American cruise. The department radioed a demand for his return after the ship on which he sailed left New York harbor. He left his ship at Panama and came home to appear before the federal grand jury.

Questioned About Manton.

Thomas was questioned about his connection with the affairs of the arch swindler, Donald F. Coster-Musica. He also was questioned about his relations with former Judge Manton, who resigned when it was learned that he had received loans from litigants before his court.

After his testimony before the grand jury Thomas was ordered to turn over his bank accounts and other records dating back to 1932. He was to have appeared before the grand jury again, but the examination was postponed when he entered a sanitarium at Hartford, Conn., with what was described as a serious nervous disorder.

Evidence Is Withheld.

In a formal statement on Thomas' resignation Attorney General Frank Murphy said:

"It is well known that for a number of weeks the financial affairs of Judge Thomas and his action in certain cases have been under investigation by John T. Cahill, United States attorney for the southern district of New York, and a special grand jury. The nature of the evidence adduced has not been made public.

"Due to a recent attack of illness, Judge Thomas is at present under the care of a physician. The resignation has made it unnecessary to give further consideration to the question of impeachment. The grand jury will continue its investigation."

Mrs. Margaret Young, 25 years old, of 828 Lakeside place, told Judge Philip Finnegan yesterday that while she was living with her husband, William, he refused to allow her to go to the movies once a week. Since he deserted her two years ago, she said, she can attend the films any time she wants. Therefore, her attorney, Norman Becker, added, she will not consider Young's efforts at reconciliation. Judge Finnegan awarded her $12 a week as alimony and support for her three children in her pending divorce bill.

NAVY INDORSES BILL TO CRUSH FOES IN RANKS

Washington, D. C., April 12.—(AP)—The Navy department, indorsing a bill to eliminate subversive activities of aliens, disclosed today that it was having difficulty combating the influence of undesirable foreign elements among its men.

Testifying before a house judiciary subcommittee, Commander Albert M. Bledsoe, of the bureau of investigation, said: "From time to time, we receive word that organizers are attempting to influence, by subversive influences, the morale and discipline of the navy."

The war department joined in expressing need for provisions intended to combat subversive elements in the nation's armed forces.

ROOSEVELT SHIES AT PROSPECT OF ANOTHER UPSET

Expected to Forget Smith for NLRB Job.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—Saved from one certain senate defeat when former Representative Thomas R. Amlie, Wisconsin radical, requested that his controversial nomination to the interstate commerce commission be withdrawn, President Roosevelt today was believed to have made up his mind to avert another losing battle with congress.

William M. Leiserson favored for NLRB.

The President, it was learned, has decided to allow the reappointment of Donald Wakefield Smith to the national labor relations board to go by default. Smith's renomination last Aug. 26 was opposed vigorously by the American Federation of Labor, which announced that it had sufficient strength in the senate to halt the reappointment.

Msgr. Haas Considered.

President Roosevelt is seeking an appointee who would get senate confirmation easily and who also would soften some of the bitter opposition to the labor act. High on the list of prospects is William M. Leiserson, chairman of the national mediation board, which exercises jurisdiction over railroad labor relations.

Others under consideration are Msgr. Francis J. Haas, dean of the school of social service at Catholic university, and the Rev. John P. Boland, chairman of the New York state labor relations board.

Benson Considered Likely.

It is considered likely that the choice may fall upon former Senator Elmer Benson, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite. Many senators regard Benson as more radical than Amlie and his appointment would bring a sharp battle on Capitol hill. It is an old tradition, however, that former senators get senate approval readily.

The President made another vacant place in his official family by accepting the resignation of Edward J. Noble as head of the Civil Aeronautics authority. Noble is to become a dollar a year assistant to Secretary of Commerce Harry R. Hopkins, and probably will be made undersecretary of commerce if congress acts on a proposal advanced by Hopkins.

Noble will be succeeded as CAA chairman by Robert H. Hinckley of Utah, a member of the authority. The President is expected to nominate Edward P. Warner, special economic and technical adviser of the authority, to Noble's membership.

CHAMPAIGN DRUGGIST DIES IN WEST.

Champaign, Ill., April 12.—[Special.]—Daniel G. Swannell, 63 years old, Champaign druggist, died suddenly yesterday in Los Angeles, Cal., while visiting his sister, Mrs. Ives E. Cobb. The body will be brought here for burial.

INQUIRY ORDERED INTO EXPENSES OF U. S. MARSHALS

Washington, D. C., April 12.—(AP)—Attorney General Frank Murphy said today that expense accounts of marshals were being investigated. The investigation, the attorney general asserted, resulted from the justice department's dissatisfaction with certain practices of some marshals. For instance, he said, some had taken their families on trips.

Asked whether the investigation had anything to do with the resignation two weeks ago of United States Marshal Kenneth Kerr of Cincinnati, O., Murphy replied: "That's in it."

LETTER TO A LUCK-HUNTER

By CALEB

DEAR L. H.—We heartily agree: luck is game well worth going after. It's still sufficiently scarce to lead one an exciting chase—and sufficiently valuable to repay its capture many times over.

But did you ever notice how Lady Luck—like the shadow in the proverb—usually flees when you follow, but follows when you flee? . . . A passing instance will illustrate. An obscure young engineer—yet to be heard from—happened to be passing, as a woman on a Detroit bridge held up traffic trying to crank her stalled motor. Into his mind popped the idea of a self-starter . . . and when the idea finally appeared as a finished mechanism, an industry was revolutionized, and the fortunes of its inventor were made.

Luck? Beyond a doubt. But—it dropped on young Charles Kettering while the latter was busy with other things—chiefly his job. That's what we mean. And the more you look into the lives of important people via the spyglass of biography, the more overwhelming grows the evidence that successful luck-hunting consists in working with might and main at whatever task is right in front of you, and leaving luck as much alone as if it didn't exist.

Do you recall what became of the country's most celebrated lecture—responsible for bigger earnings than anything of its kind, and responsible also for sending hundreds of worthy young men through college? It was Dr. Russell Conwell's famous Acres of Diamonds. Delivered over five thousand times, and always to packed houses, the secret of its enormous influence lay in the very same truism we are suggesting here. Namely: that the big rewards of life are found at hand—alongside one's present place in things . . . not afar off, in some mysterious, adventurously sought Otherwhere.

This, luck-hunters eventually discover in their own experience. The lesson is so inescapable, in fact, that opinion brands as foolhardy the man or woman who insists on "trusting to luck" in any undertaking. Luck comes along to intersect human careers as a by-product, a fortuitous affair . . . and by some affinity responds most to the individual who is least concerned with its approach.

You are smart to include Luck among the factors you hope will contribute to your success. You will be smarter still to concentrate your hunting energies on the work in hand—and invite the lady's special notice by your apparent indifference to her whereabouts.

U.S. RAIDS REVEAL DRUG RING CENTER IS IN KANSAS CITY

West's Biggest Roundup Nets 13 in 3 States.

Kansas City, Mo., April 12.—[Special.]—A new black mark was placed against Kansas City today with the announcement by federal agents that their smashing of an immense narcotics ring had revealed this city as the capital of narcotics distribution through the midwest.

H. J. Anslinger leads roundup.

Kansas City, under the city manager form of government and controled by one of the strongest Democratic party machines in the country, already is beleaguered by a political upheaval that has brought startling revelations of corruption. A war against the machine was climaxed last week by the indictment of its leader, Thomas J. Pendergast, on charges of income tax evasion.

Policeman Among Prisoners.

Federal agents announced the arrests of thirteen dope suspects in Kansas City, New York, and other cities in Oklahoma and Missouri.

Among those seized is a uniformed patrolman of Kansas City. Control of the police department here by the Pendergast machine is a principal issue in the political war. Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri, a Democrat but an arch foe of Pendergast, has charged the police department is so politically dominated that it actually protects the Kansas City underworld.

The policeman, Jack Colburn, was among seven men arrested here. One of the others is Angelo Donnici, known as the "mayor of 9th street" and operator of a saloon in the shadow of the federal building.

Biggest Midwest Roundup.

H. J. Anslinger, United States commissioner of narcotics, who came here from Washington to lead the roundup, said agents had seized or purchased a million doses of narcotics in connection with their investigation.

"This is the beginning of the largest narcotics traffic roundup ever made in this part of the nation," Anslinger said. "Never was an illegal drug ring so widely inter-related. It has ramifications in many cities, but all trails lead to Kansas City."

The narcotics chief said Kansas City was the source of supply for a Texas ring which was broken up by the arrests of fifty men in Dallas two months ago. All were "big time peddlers" to the addict trade.

"The narcotics situation in Kansas City is unbelievable," Walter S. Bliss, immigration inspector, said in testifying before a legislative committee on a proposal to place the police department under state control.

"No effort to control it is being made by the Kansas City police department, which is the worst metropolitan force I've ever come in contact with," the federal agent added.

SEEK INDICTMENT IN FATAL FIRE AT ROOMING HOUSE

An inquest yesterday into the deaths of seven Negroes who died in the fire early Tuesday in a south side rooming house was continued to 10 a. m. today. The delay was decided upon because it is expected one or two of the injured may die. Time was also sought to continue investigation of the fire.

Assistant States Attorney Francis McCurrie prepared to go before the grand jury today to seek murder indictments against William Warren, colored, a former inmate of St. Charles School for Boys and of the Bridewell. Warren confessed he set the fire because of a grudge against the Rev. James M. Stone, colored, who leased the building.

Deputy Coroner James J. Whalen said he wanted McCurrie and Warren to attend the inquest today.

POSES AS A RICH HEIR; WINS BRIDE; PAWNS HER GEMS

San Francisco, Cal., April 12.—[Special.]—Margaretta Davis, 26 years old, considered herself a lucky young woman when she was courted by a man who told her he was Claus A. Spreckels, heir to the $30,000,000 Spreckels sugar fortune. They were married a month ago after a whirlwind courtship.

During the honeymoon the bridegroom pawned his bride's jewels and other possessions, saying the proceeds would tide them over until he took her home to his wealthy relatives. He repeatedly postponed the trip, however. Finally the bride realized she had been duped when he suggested they pawn their trunks because they were not going to travel any more.

Today Margaretta was in a hospital suffering from a nervous breakdown. The bridegroom, known to police as Nathan Desmond and George Bell, was in jail as an imposter awaiting sentence after Judge Thomas Prendergast found him guilty of vagrancy and denounced his act as a contemptible, malicious fraud.

DEMAND CONTROL BOARD BE FIRED IN IOWA SCANDAL

Des Moines, Ia., April 12.—[Special.]—Charges of immorality among inmates and employés of five Iowa state hospitals and juvenile homes resulted today in the filing by seven senators of a resolution demanding the discharge of the three members of the state board of control. The charges were made yesterday by a senate committee.

The resolution requests that Gov. George A. Wilson discharge the board members with the consent of the senate during the present session of the legislature. Members of the board of control are Harry White [D., Vinton], chairman; E. H. Felton [R., Indianola], and Frank Stevens [D., Garden Grove].

Acting to uphold the board of control, five members of the senate board of control committee have filed a statement saying that the investigation report issued yesterday was by a subcommittee only, and not the committee as a whole.

JOHNNY TORRIO BEGINS 2½ YEAR TERM IN PRISON

Forfeits $100,000 Bail to Pay Income Taxes.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—Johnny Torrio, the squat little gangster whose operations extended from Chicago to New York during the prohibition era, went into the federal detention jail here tonight to start serving a sentence of two and a half years for defrauding the government of $86,000 in income taxes. The penalty was imposed by Federal Judge John W. Clancy.

It is up to the attorney general's office in Washington to designate the federal penitentiary in which Torrio will be confined. Because of his extensive crime career, federal officials in New York believed he would be sent to Alcatraz, where the toughest criminals are imprisoned.

Risks Twelve Year Sentence.

Torrio suddenly pleaded guilty on Monday after his trial on charges of attempting to cheat the government out of taxes for 1933, 1934, and 1935 had proceeded for ten days. By his plea he ran the risk of receiving a maximum sentence of 12 years and fines totaling $30,000.

The two and a half year penalty was recommended by Assistant United States Attorney Seymour M. Klein and finally agreed upon by Judge Clancy, who first announced a three year sentence and then changed his mind.

Torrio's lawyer, Max D. Steuer, made an hour and a half plea for leniency. In the midst of his remarks he said Torrio would surrender $100,000 cash bail to the government in payment of taxes and penalties.

U. S. Wants $143,000.

Penalties and taxes assessed against Torrio totaled $143,000, so this would mean that he still may be compelled to pay $43,000. This is up to the treasury.

The $100,000 was put up as bail six days after Torrio was arrested on the tax charge on April 22, 1936.

Judge Clancy told Steuer today that he believed Torrio should go on record as offering to relinquish the $100,000. Steuer turned to the little, bald gangster standing at his side and asked whether he agreed counsel's remarks were binding on him.

"I do agree," said Torrio.

Sentences were also imposed by Judge Clancy on two of Torrio's codefendants. James La Penna was sentenced to nine months in jail and placed on probation for five years. La Penna banked $800,000 in 1931, Klein said, but today is penniless. William Slockbower, Torrio's brother-in-law, received a suspended sentence of three years and three days.

NEW COUNCIL IS ALL BUSINESS IN OPENING SESSION

Aldermen Get Down to Work at Once.

Members of the new city council set a precedent last night by going right to work.

An ordinance establishing a sightseeing parking station in Monroe street west of State street was recalled and referred to the local transportation committee. It had been passed on March 24, but Mayor Kelly ordered it reconsidered after objections by property owners.

The new city treasurer, Thomas S. Gordon, was given permission to lend $876,000 from city funds to the Chicago relief administration. This money will be used until the end of April, it was explained. Further money must come from the state treasury.

Approve Surety Bonds.

The surety bonds of the new city officials were approved. The highest bond, $2,000,000, is for Treasurer Gordon. Mayor Kelly's bond is $10,000.

A message from Gov. Horner, congratulating the new administration and expressing best wishes for the next four years, was read into the record. Then two resolutions of sympathy on the deaths of Senator James Hamilton Lewis and George F. Harding, national Republican committeeman, were recorded.

A resolution praising the proposed ordinance for reorganizing the Chicago Plan commission was introduced by Ald. Roger J. Kiley [37th].

Council Committees Named.

The aldermen adopted the report of their committee on committees which included all the assignments to working committees. Two new committees—labor and industrial relations, and compensation—were established. A committee on tag days was abolished. The membership of the committees follows:

ARMORY SITE TAX BILL TO BE SENT TO FIELD ESTATE

County Assessor John S. Clark said yesterday that the Marshall Field estate will be billed for 1939 real estate taxes on the land at 1546 South Michigan avenue, where the 131st regiment armory is located. The armory is exempt from taxes because it is state owned, but the land is not exempt, Clark said. The state rents the land from the Field estate at $4,000 a year under a ninety-nine year lease entered into in 1890. The land was first placed on the assessment rolls in 1937, with a full value of $49,423 and an assessed valuation of $18,266. Taxes for 1937 and 1938 have not been paid and it is indicated that the courts ultimately will be asked to decide whether or not the land is liable to taxation.

RESUME WORK TODAY ON G.O.P. JUDICIAL SLATE

Again Affirm Opposition to Coalition Ticket.

BY PARKE BROWN.

The judicial slate committee of the Cook county Republican convention will hold morning and afternoon sessions today in its effort to build a strong all Republican ticket for the election on June 5.

The announcement of the meetings, made last night, was the second reaffirmation this week of the party organization's opposition to proposals for an agreement on a coalition ticket in the Democratic column. The slate makers spent several hours going over the list of sixty names proposed for consideration as candidates. Then it decided to invite forty of the possible candidates to appear today and discuss their qualifications and campaign ideas.

May Ask Judges to Choose.

It is possible also that the committee will decide definitly whether to invite in some or all of the eight Republican judges whose terms expire and ask them to choose between coalition and a straight Republican ticket. While it is known most of these judges would prefer reëlection on an uncontested coalition ticket, none has told the organization he would not run on a Republican ticket if one is put up.

While the slate committee was working there were several reports that efforts were being made to have the convention called again today or tomorrow to reconsider the motion against coalition which was passed last Thursday. No such effort took tangible form.

"The subject was not mentioned," said Chairman Edward F. Moore, who was spokesman for the slate makers. "The committee considered nothing but its assignment from the county convention to draw up a slate of Republican candidates and it is going right ahead with that work tomorrow."

Convention to Meet Again.

The convention probably will be called together again tomorrow or Saturday, but it will be for a reason different from the purpose of the coalitionists. At its second meeting on Tuesday the convention recessed until next Monday. Since the action was taken a legal theory has been advanced that the body must complete its work by Saturday.

"John F. Tyrrell, counsel for the organization, attended our meeting today," Moore said. "He supported the contention that we have until April 21 to complete and file our nominations with the secretary of state. We'll consider the question further tomorrow."

In discussing the work of the committee some of the members suggested that the possibility of a coalition agreement has been lessened decidedly in the last few days by the increasing likelihood that the legislature will pass the bill adding eight new judgeships to the Circuit court.

Bill on Third Reading.

This bill, which was introduced by Senator Harold G. Ward on Tuesday, was advanced to third reading in the senate yesterday. If it receives bipartisan support it can be passed by the senate early next week and it might be passed by the house before the end of that week. The one question is whether it will receive the two-thirds vote of each house required to make it effective immediately.

The discussion of this subject concerned chiefly the fact that if eight new judgeships are created and are to be filled on June 5 a coalition program might result in the election of a total of thirteen new judges by the two major party organizations. Up to this point the talk of coalition on new candidates has concerned only the five vacancies in the Superior court. All twenty members of the Circuit bench whose terms expire are candidates for reëlection.

GOV. HORNER INSPECTS MANSION GROUNDS AND SIGNS AN AIRPORT BILL

Springfield, Ill., April 12.—[Special.]—Gov. Henry Horner, after a rest of thirty-six hours following his return from his long Florida illness, walked about the executive mansion grounds today in the crisp spring air. He hadn't examined his official premises since early November, just before his health failed. Members of the mansion staff said Mr. Horner had recovered from the fatigue of his journey and is in excellent spirits.

The governor performed his first official act following his return when he signed a bill passed by the senate earlier in the day under which the city of Moline will have authority to issue $175,000 for airport improvement.

FIGHT FOR CURB ON PRESIDENT'S MONEY POWERS

Gold Revaluation Attacked as Harming U. S.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—A fight to amend President Roosevelt's emergency powers to alter the amount of gold or silver in the United States dollar was opened in the house today by Representative August H. Andresen [R., Minn.]. The house will begin consideration of the continuance of the President's authority to devalue the dollar next week. The house coinage and weights committee will report the bill tomorrow with a sharp difference of opinion shown in majority and minority views. The measure also would continue the 2 billion dollar stabilization fund for two years.

Representative Andresen.

Although conditions in the nation have reached the breaking point, Andresen said, the administration may yet make an about-face and give to American citizens some of the "juicy plums" which have made foreign speculators happy as a result of the New Deal's gold and silver purchases abroad.

While an effort will be made to put an end to the President's gold devaluation powers completely, Andresen concentrated his efforts in behalf of an amendment to the bill which was defeated in the committee by only one vote and which is believed to have a good chance of house approval.

In 1934 the President boosted the price on foreign gold and newly mined gold in this country from $20.67 an ounce to $35 an ounce. American citizens with gold dollars were required to turn them in, but received only the old price of $20.67 an ounce. The higher price paid for foreign gold represented a subsidy of $14.33 an ounce.

Andresen's amendment would permit the continuance of this subsidy with the proviso that the $14.33 an ounce must be used by foreign gold vendors to buy American farm and manufactured products. If the subsidy is not used for this purpose within one year from the date of the sale of foreign gold to the treasury, the vendor will receive only the old price of $20.67 an ounce for his gold.

Half for Farm Products.

Fifty per cent of the subsidy must be spent for farm products and 50 per cent for manufactured products in this country, under the amendment.

"When the gold reserve act was passed in 1934," Andresen told the house, "administration experts claimed as one of the main objectives for the law that there would be a large increase in our export business of farm and manufactured products. They claimed that farm and other commodity prices would materially rise and recovery would be achieved for agriculture and industry in the United States.

"Instead, the results have been disastrous. Exports have declined, imports have increased, and the prices today are the lowest in history when you consider the purchasing power of a 59 cent dollar."

In the period between Jan. 1, 1934, and Feb. 28, 1939, Andresen said, exports from the United States, including gold and silver, amounted to 13 billion 740 million dollars. Imports for the same period are estimated at more than 21 billions.

Leaves Balance Against U. S.

"This leaves a dollar exchange balance against the United States and in favor of foreign governments and individuals of approximately seven and one-half billions," Andresen said. "Instead of becoming a creditor nation on exports and imports we have become a debtor nation. This money is now on deposit in American banks and invested in American securities. It is believed by many that foreign investors in American securities can break our market at any time."

The United States treasury, Andresen said, "has made an outright gift or subsidy to foreign gold speculators and foreign governments in excess of 3½ billion dollars.

"Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau now states that we have too much gold in this country, approximately 15½ billion, or about 65 per cent of the world's supply," Andresen said. "Since Jan. 1, 1934, we have purchased foreign gold valued at 8 billion 663 millions, at $35 an ounce.

"Morgenthau now proposes that we distribute a good share of this gold to other nations by permitting them to ship into the United States large quantities of competitive farm and manufactured products. He proposes to pay gold for these imports. This new idea will bring additional distress to American farmers and laboring men and conclusively proves the failure of the New Deal's monetary experiment."

CHARGE AGAINST WARDEN UPSETS ECONOMY GROUP

Democrats Bolt Parley; Inquiry Ordered.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 12.—[Special.]—Angry words passed back and forth in the legislative economy committee hearing today over whether an investigator should be hired to sift charges against Warden George Ray of the Vandalia state prison farm.

Rep. Searle [upper] and Senator Hubbard.

The climax came when Senators Nicholas L. Hubbard of Mount Pulaski and Melvin Thomas of Charleston, the only Democrats present, stalked out of the room in protest.

"Now let's see you get a quorum!" shouted Hubbard at the five remaining Republicans, including Senator Earl B. Searcy [R., Springfield], the chairman.

Carried Over Their Heads.

The Hubbard-Thomas parliamentary exodus failed, for Searcy ignored their absence and put the question of airing an investigator, then declared it had been carried by all five voting. Searcy ruled that Hubbard should have remained to vote on his point of order, in accordance with his construction of Roberts' rules.

The committee has a membership of fourteen, but only seven were in attendance today. Technically, a quorum was present at no time, under the theory that eight votes should prevail.

The chief debaters today were Hubbard and Representative Clinton Searle [R., Rock Island]. Both have hot tempers and are equally partisan.

The clash came when Searle produced a memorandum making indirect charges against Warden Ray. These were based, in part, upon allegations made before the committee last night by Senator R. Wallace Karraker of Jonesboro, an independent Democrat.

Wants Other Offices Investigated.

Karraker has suggested repeatedly that the activities of certain state officials, including Treasurer Louie E. Lewis, Director of Conservation Thomas J. Lynch, and Director of Public Works F. Lynden Smith, be looked into.

Karraker and Searle both suggested that the economy committee learn the truth concerning the following allegations against Warden Ray:

Did he purchase—partly with state funds—fourteen horses kept at the farm for his own use?

Since he has been warden did he purchase a 200 acre farm and partially equip it with state farm machinery?

Does he operate a packing house in Centralia and are some of the products used in this establishment taken from the state farm?

Wants Persons Interviewed.

"I think we should have an investigator go down and interview persons whose names I have here and who purport to know something about these charges against Warden Ray," Searle suggested.

"Director A. L. Bowen of the welfare department, already has conducted an investigation," Hubbard replied, "and has a report on it."

"Something else I want to know is whether they bought three or four carloads of salt down there—enough to salt down the entire institution," Searle declared.

"I'll call Max Bibo [state purchasing agent] and find out how much salt was bought for the farm," Hubbard declared.

"I want it under oath," Searle said shortly. Turning to Chairman Searcy, he added: "I move we hire an investigator to examine these charges."

"I object to this action when the full committee is not present," Hubbard shouted, his face red. He started for the door and Senator Thomas followed him. "Now let's see you get a quorum!" said Hubbard.

"You don't want an investigation; you're trying to run a whitewash," Searle shouted in return.

Hubbard set the tempo of the meeting when the committee convened. He assailed Thomas E. Cavanagh of Springfield, a witness who appeared last night, and charged among other things that if Treasurer Lewis assembled all the relatives he has on the state pay roll, it would require a bus to carry them.

Today the treasurer said his office is open for the inspection of the committee at any time.

Path of a Cold Wave

Shaded strip shows how high pressure area, preceded by low temperatures, sweeps across country from Alaska. The dates locate the high pressure area for the last two days and show where it is predicted to be today. Solid black indicates areas of crop damage from the cold. As a result of this sweep the entire northern part of the country experienced unseasonably cold weather.

A strong northwest wind yesterday blew the temperature in Chicago seven degrees below the previous record for April 12. It was 21 degrees at 5:30 a. m. The previous record of 28 was set in 1900. Forecaster C. A. Donnel said today would be fair and somewhat warmer. By tomorrow temperatures are expected to be back to normal.

Downstate agricultural areas reported that much of the peach crop, damaged a week ago, was harmed further yesterday and last night. Pear and apple crops in southern and south central areas were hit.

The cold wave moving eastward toward the Atlantic coast struck Texas, Oklahoma, and Missouri, glazed much of Ohio with ice, and poured snow over New England, New York, and Pennsylvania. It was expected last night that it would extend into Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Virginia, and North Carolina.

Visitors Send Cloakroom Boys on Errand; Steal Coats

Two men went into the cloakroom last night while parents and teachers of the Eugene Field school were holding a party at the Rogers Park Woman's club. The men asked the two students who had checked the coats to go on an errand. When the students returned the men were gone. So were Persian lamb coats belonging to Mrs. Irene Strauss of 627 Barry avenue and Mrs. Sylvia Feinberg of 1632 Lunt avenue.

SEEK ANNULMENT TO END DONAHUE MARITAL FIGHT

New York, April 12.—(AP)—The domestic difficulties of Catherine Donahue, singer, and her husband, Walter L. Donahue, master of ceremonies, headed today toward an annulment action. Mrs. Donahue withdrew her separation suit in Supreme court. Donahue withdrew his counter claim for a divorce, and she announced she would seek an annulment. Her counsel said she would base the action on the ground that she was only sixteen when she was married in March, 1930.

Mrs. Donahue testified previously that her husband had failed to contribute sufficiently to her support and that of their son, Walter Jr., 7 years old, now in the custody of Mrs. Donahue's foster mother in Philadelphia.

The young singer, now under a $200 a week contract, said she had seen Donahue only at long intervals after their marriage.

PROPOSED MILK CONTROL HIT AS BLOW TO USERS

Would Lift Prices, Says Dealers' Spokesman.

Charges that the proposed milk control bill now under consideration in the state legislature is un-American, based on false assumption and cannot achieve its objectives were made yesterday by M. G. Van Buskirk, executive secretary of the Illinois Dairy Products association. He spoke before the Chicago Housewives league in the Woman's City club, 410 South Michigan avenue.

The proposed bill would set up a control board which would fix milk prices in the state. The Illinois Agricultural association is sponsoring the legislation.

Van Buskirk said that if the bill becomes law it would raise the price of bottled milk to the consumer, thus causing less to be sold. This, he warned, would be detrimental to farmers. He denied implications in the preamble to the proposed bill that producers are not receiving a fair price for their milk.

Contends Prices Are Fair.

"There is no single locality in the state," he said, "where the farmer is not getting all he should for milk when all other elements are taken into consideration."

By this, he explained, he meant the oversupply of milk, cut rate competition, and other economic factors. He also said that, contrary to fears expressed in the bill, it would be the best possible thing for the industry if there were less, rather than more, milk produced.

Van Buskirk referred to other states where similar price control attempts had been made. In all instances, he said, milk prices were raised and a consumer strike ensued.

Warns of Board's Powers.

He also said that it would be possible for farmers to be given sole control of the proposed board and that by terms of the bill the board could, if it wished, permit publication of complete records of any dairy.

"The bill requires bookkeeping which might be burdensome," he said, "and puts a tremendous power in the hands of an arbitrary commission or board which may or may not know details of operating the dairy business."

Van Buskirk, as executive secretary of the dairy group, represents about 1,200 dealers in the state.

SENATOR LEWIS IS BURIED IN HIS NATIVE VIRGINIA

State Funeral Held in Senate Chamber.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—An impressive state funeral befitting his picturesque career was held in the chamber of the United States senate today for James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, who died Sunday.

Colleagues of the late senator agreed that the funeral would have pleased him. The entire government of the United States and the Washington diplomatic corps, representing all the important nations of the earth, were there. Stately green palms encircled the chamber, and the bier had a background of floral splendor.

Buried in Native Virginia.

After the funeral, a committee of sixteen senators and the twenty-seven members of the Illinois congressional delegation escorted the body to the Abbey mausoleum, adjoining Arlington cemetery, for final services and burial in Virginia, the state of Senator Lewis' birth.

A single spray of white lilacs and ferns, tied with a white ribbon, adorned the casket. It was from Mrs. Lewis, the former Rose Lawton Douglas of Georgia, whom the late senator married forty-three years ago.

Floral tributes came from the White House, the embassies, the senate, and the house, and from many friends of the senator.

President Roosevelt Attends.

President Roosevelt, who had previously announced that he could not attend the funeral, was present in the front row of seats flanked by eight members of his cabinet. Across the aisle were seven members of the United States Supreme court, all except Chief Justice Hughes, who is recovering from illness, and William O. Douglas, who was present but sat in the rear of the chamber because he has not taken the oath.

Back of the Supreme court were the members of the diplomatic corps and to their right were the chief of staff of the army, the chief of naval operations, the major general commandant of the marine corps, and the commandant of the coast guard. The house of representatives came in a body, led by Speaker William B. Bankhead of Alabama, who sat next to Vice President John N. Garner, the presiding officer.

The Rev. ZeBarney T. Phillips, Episcopalian chaplain of the senate, conducted the funeral service, assisted by the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the house, who pronounced the benediction.

70 U. S. WARSHIPS TO BE REVIEWED OFF EAST COAST

Washington, D. C., April 12.—(AP)—The nation will parade much of its sea power on April 27, when the first formal fleet review in the Atlantic in five years will be held off the Virginia capes. The fleet concentration there will be preliminary to an assembly of the sea forces at New York in connection with the world's fair.

Navy officials emphasized that the review had nothing to do with Europe's crisis; it was decided upon months ago. However, it was apparent that the administration was not loath to display the navy's strength as a factor to be reckoned with in an unsettled world.

Foreign naval attachés, it was announced, will be invited to witness the spectacular procession of seventy war craft, which will head for New York after a two day stay in the Yorktown-Hampton roads area of Virginia.

Beginning at dawn today, twenty-six war vessels entered the capes and moved to anchorage ground.

700 Germans Leave Brazil to Live Under Nazi Regime

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 12.—(AP)—Port authorities said the liner Monte Pascoal carried 700 Germans or persons of German descent for repatriation to Germany today when it sailed for Hamburg. The majority were from Brazil's southern states, where there is a heavy German population, but part were from Argentina. Several said they were going to Germany to escape the government's program for "Brazilianizing" the southern states.

EMPIRE OF ROME; ITS POWER UNDER DUCE AND CÆSAR

Seizure of Albania Recalls History Since 753 B. C.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

Premier Mussolini's seizure of the small kingdom of Albania, on the eastern shore of the Adriatic sea, once more throws into the foreground of European affairs Italian ambitions in the Mediterranean basin. The full extent of these ambitions may not have been divulged, but it becomes increasingly clear from the words and actions of Il Duce that he is striving to make the Mediterranean an Italian sea.

It therefore becomes interesting to compare the territorial progress made by modern Italy in this direction with the imperial holdings of the Old Roman empire, which once ruled not only the shores of the Mediterranean, but extended from Britain on the west almost to the Persian gulf on the east. An outstanding conclusion that may be drawn from this comparison is that Mussolini has far to go before his empire equals in wealth and importance that of the ancient Romans.

Once Ruled Western World.

Rome, at the height of her territorial power in the second century, A. D., was mistress of practically the entire western world of that time.

Italy's holdings today, in addition to the Italian mainland, are Albania, the islands of Sardinia and Sicily, a few islands in the Ægean sea, and large—though partly unpacified—colonies in Africa.

The accompanying map indicates that today the square mileage of Italy and her possessions approximates the land extent of the old Roman empire. But there the similarity ends. For Italy's present holdings do not begin to approach in value and strategic position the territory included in the old Roman realm.

Africa Unexplored Then.

Only the northern tip of Africa was under the old Roman domination. The interior of the vast continent was uncharted land and Rome would not have wanted it, if she could have had it, because of the difficulty in controling the barbarians there.

The founding of the city of Rome is enshrouded in legend. The common story is that Romulus, in 753 B. C., established the city on the Palatine, one of seven hills of the vicinity. Other settlements were made on the other hills and later all were merged.

Rome was a kingdom from the founding of the city to the reign of the tyrannical Tarquinius Superbus, who was expelled in 509 B. C. Then a republic was proclaimed. The chief officers were two consuls, who were chosen each year, and in effect had royal power.

Rome Rules Peninsula.

In 467 B. C., the lower class—the plebeians—won a measure of social equality with the patricians when a law was passed permitting intermarriage between the two classes. A hundred years later—367 B. C.—the lower class won another victory when a law was passed providing that one of the two consuls chosen each year must be a plebeian.

While these internal reforms were going on, Rome was defeating the Volscians, Etruscans, and Æquians, and was becoming the head of the league of Latin cities. A revolt of the cities was crushed by Rome in 338 B. C., and in 276 B. C. the Samnites, mountain tribesmen, were conquered and Rome was dominant in the peninsula.

Rome then was drawn deeply into Mediterranean affairs. Carthage was at the apex of her influence and Rome feared Carthaginian domination over the western seas. Then began the period of the Punic wars—the word Punic being derived from the Latin Punicus, which refers to the Carthaginians.

Carthage Comes Under Yoke.

These conflicts were designed to destroy the power of Carthage and ultimately she was exterminated. After Rome won the first Punic war, ending in 241 B. C., Carthage ceded Sicily and the nearby Lipari islands to the victor. In the interval between this struggle and the second Punic war, beginning in 218 B. C., Carthage conquered a large part of Spain.

Hannibal, the great Carthaginian warrior, was the outstanding figure in the second Punic war, which ended in 202 B. C. He crossed the Alps and annihilated the Roman army at Cannæ in 216 B. C. But the Romans recovered ground and Hannibal was at a standstill.

Scipio Africanus drove the Carthaginians from Spain and then crossed to Africa, where he was welcomed by the Numidians. Hannibal returned from Italy and fought his last battle with Rome at Zama, where Scipio vanquished him in 202 B. C.

Rome Takes in Allies.

Numidia was given an increase in territory and was enrolled among Rome's allies. Massalia [now Marseilles] which had been founded in 600 B. C., sided with Rome in the Punic wars and was under a measure of Roman authority.

At the end of the third Punic war—146 B. C.—Carthage was razed, her territory became the Roman province of Africa, and Numidia remained an allied state under Roman suzerainty.

Philip V. of Macedonia, the old Greek state, had aided Hannibal and in punishment Rome moved against him.

In 146 B. C., the same year Carthage fell, the Greeks were defeated at Corinth, the Macedonian empire was broken up, and Greece became a Roman province. In 168 B. C., Egypt had formally acknowledged Roman supremacy and in 164 B. C., Syria was brought under control. Rome thus had established a protectorate in Asia Minor.

Spain Is Pacified.

Spain, with the exception of the highland Asturias and Cantabria, was pacified and brought under Rome's control in 133 B. C.

While Rome was conquering externally, there was class dissension within the peninsula. The subject Italian peoples, demanding the rights of citizenship which had been limited to Rome's inhabitants, precipitated the so-called Social war in 91 B. C.

The subject peoples were given the franchise, but three years later—in 88 B. C.—civil war broke out between Marius, the plebeian consul, and Sulla, the patrician consul. Sulla was triumphant in 82 B. C.

In 72 B. C. the warrior Lucullus conquered Pontus and Cappadocia. These lands were lost after Lucullus was recalled to Rome, but were retaken by Pompey in 67 B. C. He moved Rome's Asiatic frontier to Cilicia and led his legions to the Euphrates river and the Caspian seas.

Cæsar Conquers Gaul.

The next few years saw Julius Cæsar's conquests in Gaul, which included France, Belgium, and parts of Switzerland and the Rhineland. Then came the struggle between Pompey and Cæsar for mastery of the Roman world.

The port of Marseilles sided with Pompey. It was captured by Cæsar's lieutenants in 49 B. C., its power was broken and its commercial and intellectual importance declined for several centuries.

Pompey fled to Greece and Cæsar became dictator of the Roman empire until his assassination in 44 B. C. Cæsar adopted the title of imperator and it is commonly believed would have sought to make himself an absolute monarch had he lived.

After Cæsar's death Augustus [then called Octavian] took command of Italy and the western half of the empire. Antony ruled the east and Lepidus ruled Africa. Lepidus died in 35 B. C. and Augustus defeated Antony at Actium in 31 B. C.

Augustus Becomes Emperor.

Augustus then was master of the empire. He worked to establish a government which should have the forms and traditions of the republic, but also the centralization of an empire. Augustus was virtually emperor and his successors took that title.

Under Augustus, in the early years of the Christian era, Egypt was a completely subject state, Numidia was incorporated in the old African province, the northwestern tribes in Spain were quieted and new provinces of Aquitania, Lugudunensis, and Belgica, including the territory conquered by Cæsar in Gaul, were established.

Antony had schemed to found an eastern empire, including the land beyond the Euphrates river, but Augustus was content to keep his realm within bounds. Legions guarded the line of the Euphrates. Beyond the frontiers of Pontus and Cappadocia, Arménia was established as a free and semi-independent ally.

Britain Becomes a Subject.

The subjugation of Britain was completed by Agricola in 84 A. D., in the reign of the Emperor Domitian. About this time the districts between the Rhine and the Danube were annexed and in 106 A. D., under the Emperor Trajan, Dacia [modern Transylvania] was conquered.

Trajan also annexed Arabia and formed the provinces of Armenia, Mesopotamia, and Assyria. Some of these latter conquests were surrendered by Trajan's successor, Hadrian, who reigned from 117 to 138, as he desired to consolidate the empire and perfect its defenses.

While in land extent the Roman empire was at its height in Trajan's reign, and before Hadrian surrendered some of the territories, the high point of the empire's power usually is placed at 180 A. D. In that year, on the death of Emperor Marcus Aurelius, the empire was a comparatively consolidated unit.

Establish "Spheres of Influence."

The accompanying map shows that some of the territory tributary to Rome was in the form of long geographical fingers, such as in the plains of Hungary, along the North sea, on the northern shore of the Black sea, through Parthia and around the Red sea. This was because in many instances the Romans established garrisons in these strips of land.

The conquerors did not press further because of the difficulty of controling the barbarians, or because of natural barriers, often considering that their occupation of the strips of land gave them a sphere of influence farther into the interior.

In the centuries after Marcus Aurelius came the disintegration of the empire. The Italian stock was weakened by pomp, luxury, and spending itself in the wars, or losing itself in the provinces. Slaves performed the hard labor. The barbarian invasions came in the fourth century. Alaric sacked Rome in 410. In 476 the barbarian chieftain, Odoacer, deposed Romulus Augustulus, last of the old Roman emperors.

Without Unity Until 1800s.

From the fall of the Roman empire until the middle of the nineteenth century Italy had no political unity or organized existence as a nation. The types of constitutional development were as varied as there were separate states in the peninsula.

Italy had been invaded frequently through the centuries and was a pawn in the politics of central Europe.

Through the efforts of Garibaldi unification was achieved and Victor Emmanuel became the first king of Italy in 1861. The islands of Sardinia and Sicily formed a part of the kingdom.

Italy became interested in the prospect of African colonies about 1870. In that year the port of Assab, in the southern portion of what now is Eritrea, was purchased by the Italians from the sultan of Raheita. Other lands were acquired through treaties with local sultans until about 1885, when Italy established the protectorate of Eritrea. Treaties with the British and the Ethiopians [Abyssinians] changed and somewhat extended the borders of Eritrea.

Italian Somaliland fell under Italian influence through treaties with Somali sultans in 1889 and later acquisitions came from Zanzibar. The border between Somaliland and Ethiopia was fixed by treaty in 1897.

Libya consists of two old territories, Tripolitania [Tripoli] and Cyrenaica. Turkey acquired these lands in the 16th century. In the late 19th century Italy looked on the area as a heritage from old Roman times and in 1911 went to war with Turkey. The war ended a year later with Italy victorious. This gave Italy the coastal regions, but subjugation of natives in the interior took many years and was not completed until 1928.

The Italians had failed to conquer Ethiopia in the 1880s and 1890s, being disastrously defeated at Dogali in 1887 and at Adowa in 1896. Mussolini won the land in May, 1936, but it is not yet completely pacified.

Ægean Islands Occupied.

After the war with Turkey ended in 1912 Italy occupied Rhodes and several other islands in the Ægean sea. These were ceded formally to Italy by treaty in 1923.

Italy had been seeking Trentino, in the Tyrol, since early in the 19th century. In the world war the Tyroleans fought with the Austrians and after the war Italy was given the territory. This moved Italy's frontier to Brenner pass, lowest of all the passes that traverse the main chain of the Alps. The pass is the gateway to Italy—invaders from the north had marched through it for centuries.

Italian agitation against France has centered on demands for French Somaliland, Tunisia, Corsica, and a share in the management of the Suez canal. While Tunisia was part of the old Roman province of Africa, the present French Somaliland never was, for the Romans did not penetrate that far into the African continent.

Want Gateway to Ethiopia.

The Italians assert that the port of Djibouti, in French Somaliland, is the actual gateway to Ethiopia and as such should be under Italy's control. Through a Franco-Italian agreement in 1935 part of French Somaliland was to be ceded to Italy, she asserts. But Italy herself has repudiated this agreement on a pretext that it never was formally ratified by the two nations and the French have reoccupied the ceded area.

Although the old Roman empire controled the area in Egypt and Arabia where the 100 mile Suez canal now is in operation, the canal was not built until 1869. The canal connects Port Said on the Mediterranean with Suez on the Red sea and is the shortest route for ships between Asia and Africa. Before the canal was built, the only satisfactory means of travel between the continents was by the overland route. Most of the shares of stock of the canal are owned by the British and the French.

The Old Roman Empire at Its High Point and Mussolini's Empire Today

As the map shows, Premier Mussolini has a long way to go if it is his ambition to build for modern Italy a Mediterranean empire equal in importance to the empire of the ancient Roman emperors which reached its greatest power at the death of Marcus Aurelius in 180 A. D. Although in square mileage the Italian possessions of today almost equal the land extent of the old Roman empire, they are not nearly of the same wealth or strategic importance. Italy is claiming from France Tunisia, French Somaliland, Corsica, and a share in the control of the Suez canal.

Goaded by Roosevelt War Talk, Boy Kills Himself

Los Angeles, Cal., April 12.—[Special.]—For Buddy Merriel, 17 year old Franklin High school student, President Roosevelt's hint that America would back the British and French against any further German expansion carried the dread implication of impending war. This morning Buddy's widowed mother found him in the garage, garroted by his bookstrap, which was looped around an exercise bar. "Buddy always had a horror of war," Mrs. Merriel told police. "He was afraid he might some day be called to fight, a thing which repelled him."

PARKER DEFENSE EXPLAINS SKETCH OF GOLF COURSE

Hits Contention It Refers to Counterfeit Hoard.

August Englehardt, who was returned from prison to stand trial with Frank J. Parker, took the witness stand late yesterday in his own defense in the counterfeit case before a jury in the federal District court of Judge Charles E. Woodward. Parker, onetime airplane bootlegger whom the underworld ranked as a millionaire, is expected to take the stand today. Parker and Englehardt are charged with possessing $17,880 in counterfeit money.

Only two counts in the indictment against them were left standing yesterday — possession of counterfeit bills and conspiracy to dispose of them. Judge Woodward ruled out four counts when the government reported Joe Bender, its star witness, had disappeared.

Government Rests Its Case.

Englehardt barely had started his story at adjournment time yesterday, after the government rested, but he laid the foundation for an elaborate denial of one of the basic contentions of the prosecution — that he sent Parker a sketch of the exact spot, near the fifteenth hole on the Tam o' Shanter golf links near Niles, where government agents later dug up the $17,880 in bogus $20 notes.

In Terminal Island prison in California, where Englehardt is serving a sentence for counterfeiting, he made a statement to secret service agents. This statement was read to the jury yesterday. In it Englehardt maintained stoutly that the sketch of the golf links referred to a mere exchange of jokes between himself and Parker about the difficulties of the fifteenth hole. He denied all knowledge of the buried counterfeit notes.

The defense yesterday introduced sketches of mining properties which Englehardt sent to Parker. The jury is to be asked to believe, apparently, that Parker was being told in the sketches how to dig for gold in Colorado.

Englehardt Traces Career.

Englehardt said he was born in Germany in 1883, came to this country in 1900, and worked as a waiter and taxi driver. In 1915 he was convicted for receiving stolen property and was pardoned after three years in prison. He had a café and later a saloon at State and Ohio streets and met Parker about fifteen years ago.

The fake money, for which he is serving time in California, as well as that included in the present case, came from plates made by Victor [Count] Lustig, who is now serving twenty years in Alcatraz penitentiary for making $2,000,000 worth of phony money.

Mrs. Nellie Parker, wife of the defendant, first witness for the defense, testified she and Parker own the thirty-three apartment building at 1614-20 Jonquil terrace. She told of the flooded condition of the basement and the spoiling of preserves and other things in the storeroom allotted to Englehardt when he lived there for a year. This was in explanation of a reference to fruit jars and preserves in one of the letters from Parker to Englehardt.

Dr. H. J. Unger, expert of the bureau of engraving and printing in Washington, testified that the money in this case and in the Englehardt case came from the Lustig plates.

Wife Explains

(Story in adjoining column.)

Mrs. Nellie Parker, whose testimony yesterday in the trial of her husband, Frank, on a charge of possessing counterfeit money, was offered by the defense as an explanation of some letters relating to fruit jars. The case hinges on the discovery of fruit jars full of bogus money which had been buried on a golf course.

Delay Hearing of Couple for Mail Order Thefts

John Jones, former head watchman at the Montgomery Ward & Co. warehouse, 618 Chicago avenue, who has confessed thefts totaling $50,000 from the company's stock, and Mrs. Josephine Russo, who sold much of the loot, were granted continuances to tomorrow by Judge George B. Weiss in Felony court yesterday. Jones, who lives at 1465 Chicago avenue, is charged with larceny, and Mrs. Russo, who lives at 1941 Chicago avenue, is accused of receiving stolen goods.

RUSTLING TRIAL OPENS; FARMERS JAM COURTROOM

Toil worn farmers, demanding that justice be done, jammed the courtroom in the county highway police station in Homewood yesterday. They were there for the trial of thirteen men, accused as members of a cattle rustling ring responsible for the theft of $50,000 in live stock in Cook and Will counties and in northern Indiana.

Defense attorneys demanded a bill of particulars and copies of the warants served on their clients. Justice of the Peace Arthur Dillner continued the hearing until April 26.

Three of the defendants are cattle dealers, charged with failure to keep proper records of their sales. They are Feopil Jungiwicz, 151st street and Kedzie avenue, Harvey; Nathan Fischer, 147th street near Ridgeland avenue, Tinley Park, and Henry Yunker, 143d street and Keane avenue, Orland township.

The ten others, charged either with larceny, or with being an accessory to larceny, or both, are Robert Line, 139th street and Keeler avenue, Crestwood; his brother, Leland, 720 West 120th street; Earl Anderson, Oak Forest; Frank Benca, 82d avenue and 146th street, Orland Park; Edward Kooyenge and his brother, Drew, both of 115th street and Cicero avenue, Worth township; James Baker, 137th street and 44th avenue, Crestwood; Edward Mosel, 145th street and Albany avenue, Posen; Patrick Lydon, 14846 Kenton avenue, Blue Island; and Rolland Lyons, Vermont and Ashland avenues, Blue Island.

GETS 1 TO 5 YEARS AND $1,000 FINE IN WILL FRAUD PLOT

Adolph Bydalek, a tavern owner in Grant Park, Kankakee county, was convicted of conspiring to forge a will yesterday by jury in the Criminal court of Judge Robert Jerome Dunne. His punishment was fixed at one to five years in prison and a $1,000 fine.

Bydalek and Attorney Goodsel F. Henke, also of Grant Park, were named as co-defendants in a plot to obtain the $19,000 estate of Casmir C. Krzysko, who died June 22, 1938, in Chicago Heights. Henke testified for the state and will be tried April 21.

Court Disbars Lawyer Now in Prison for Mail Fraud

MR. ROOSEVELT'S WAR.

Mr. Roosevelt wants a short session of congress and is urging the Democratic leaders to make an early adjournment. Many of the congressmen feel that it is unsafe to adjourn, fearing that Mr. Roosevelt wishes to rid himself of legislative restrictions and to be free to do as he pleases in international affairs. A great many citizens must feel that the only check on willful White House intervention in Europe's troubles will be found in congress and that the public security requires vigilant congressional watchfulness.

It is apparent that Mr. Roosevelt does not envisage the probability of American participation in a European war with dismay. He gives no indication that he is worried by such a prospect or that he would exert himself to prevent the involvement of the United States. What sort of participation he has in mind is not clear, but we know how the intervention started in 1917.

The people who had been clamoring for American aid to the allies eased whatever conscience they had in the matter by professing that it would be enough if the United States sent its fleet across and a few divisions of the regular army to make a sacrificial appearance on European battlefields while the nation's major contribution would be in money and material. That vision of an apparently bloodless adventure in the name of idealism did not survive the first demands the allies made upon their new associate in the war. They desperately needed man power. The polite little parlor war which the hyphenated Americans had wished to undertake at once turned into the reality of conscription, raising millions of American soldiers.

Mr. Roosevelt has made it very clear that he sees himself as the destined savior of what he calls civilization. Mr. Wilson's experiences in playing that rôle have been a lesson to the great majority of the American people, but seem to have been only an inspiration to Mr. Roosevelt to undertake another crusade in spite of the tragic outcome of Mr. Wilson's adventure. Everything Mr. Roosevelt says reveals his willingness to go to the aid of France and Great Britain as soon as hostilities break out. He is accustomed to forcing his will and carrying out his purposes against all manner of opposition, trying to silence his critics with opprobrium.

Everything he says indicates that he is looking forward to a great European struggle and that he expects to be in it. His two ambassadors, Kennedy in London and Bullitt in Paris, feed his resolution and apparently have given assurances to the French and British governments, with Mr. Roosevelt's approval, that American aid can be depended upon. It is probable that the more resolute front which France and Great Britain have presented to the dictators within the last few weeks rests in large part upon an understanding that they will have help from America and get it at once.

If Mr. Roosevelt wanted to keep the United States out of the imperialistic conflict in Europe, Africa, and Asia, he would not issue official denunciations of every German and Italian operation. He and Mr. Hull accept every opportunity to inform the German and Italian governments of their disapproval of acts which in no way concern the United States. The denunciation of the Italian occupation of Albania was one of these unnecessary pronouncements. Peaceably minded governments recognize movements in which they have no interest and maintain a diplomatic silence when they have no cause for outcry. They persevere to preserve neutrality and do not step out into the middle of events. The increase of Italian influence in Albania means nothing to the United States and yet Mr. Hull immediately denounced the Italian maneuvering. This is plainly seeking trouble and preparing for belligerency.

Mr. Roosevelt is putting himself at the head of a war party in the United States, but it is composed only of communists who seek a catastrophe which would be the end, they think, of capitalism and make Russia the mistress of the world, and of hyphenates who would make vicarious sacrifices to help Great Britain and France.

Mr. Roosevelt may be fascinated by his ambition to become the great world figure as a controler of the destinies of civilization, and he may also see that his big opportunity to set up an autocratic government in the United States will be offered by war. American participation in a European conflict would be the excuse for the passage of the war mobilization bill conscripting all American activity under governmental control. The resources of production would be taken over at once, private management would be extinguished, and controls as absolute as those of Hitler, Stalin, and Mussolini would be established.

Mr. Roosevelt would then have the sort of government he desires and he would have what he thinks would be an irresistible claim on the third term. In the excitement of entering the war the opposition to the conscription of private enterprise would probably be beaten down and people would sacrifice themselves to some foolish ideas about taking the dollar as well as the man. They might regain their liberties then only by another revolution if a prolonged war should establish a military autocracy in this country.

Mr. Roosevelt is adopting now the very policies which would make these conclusions as to his purposes logical and unescapable. Apparently most of the people of the country do not believe that they can be precipitated into another world war without their consent—but a government determined upon such a course is very hard to stop when opportunity has opened the door.

Executive acts can force a nation against its will as Mr. Wilson proved in 1916 and '17. Even when he was seeking reëlection as the man who had kept us out of war he was considering the very steps which he took shortly after his second inaugural to intervene in Europe. The people who had gratefully reëlected him then fought his war.

Mr. Roosevelt, unless he is checked by congress or by the resentment of the people, can put the United States in the next general European conflict. It is an avoidable war, but it will not be avoided if the President of the United States continues to be more bellicose than Chamberlain and Daladier.

THE WHEELER-TRUMAN BILL.

The Wheeler-Truman bill to rewrite the interstate commerce act drastically and submit all forms of transportation to burocratic regulation and management was introduced in the senate March 30. It was read twice and quickly referred to the committee on interstate commerce, which began hearings four days later. Chairman Wheeler announced his intention to complete the hearings by the end of the week and gave notice that a lot of witnesses for the purpose of delaying action on his bill were not wanted. He would not permit it. That his steam roller tactics would not prevail was demonstrated last week by the opposition hurriedly assembled by the shippers and other transportation interests of the country.

The bill in question is a virtual rewriting of the interstate commerce act. No one knows the full extent of the changes proposed. When it was suggested on the first day of the hearings that a statement should be prepared showing what had been added to and what taken away from the act in the codification proposed by the bill, Senator Wheeler petulantly complained that it was an almost impossible task to prepare in a short space of time a comparative statement showing the changes his bill would make in existing law. Even Senator Reed of Kansas, who is trying to help him put over his bill, could not stomach such hasty action and dictatorial proceedings. He demanded that the committee, at least, have before it what the bill did with respect to changing existing legislation, so that shippers could be given notice of the sweeping changes proposed. Senator Wheeler reluctantly promised to have an expert of the interstate commerce commission prepare such a statement.

When he introduced the bill he said it followed the recommendations of the President's committee of six representing railway management and labor. At the hearing he was forced to admit that two vitally important recommendations of the committee of six were not incorporated in his bill. He omitted their recommendation for a new rate-making rule which would deprive the interstate commerce commission of some of its managerial powers. He also failed to include the repeal of the long-and-short-haul clause of the fourth section of the act, which would permit the railroads to meet Panama canal competition.

The railroads have been harassed and browbeaten by increasing legislative restrictions during the last fifty years until they cannot call their collective soul their own. They seem to have given up all hope of ever throwing off the shackles of archaic regulation in order that they may run free in the competitive race with the younger transportation agencies. In desperation they are playing along with Wheeler and other government ownership radicals of his kind. They welcome the paralyzing regulations his bill would place upon their younger competitors in the hope that the full volume of railroad traffic will be preserved.

The roads ignore the fact that a 10 or 15 per cent increase in traffic volume would pull them all out of the hole and that this volume would be forthcoming were it not for the paralyzing effects of the New Deal experimentations. They even lacked the moral courage to allow their spokesmen to appear before the senate committee in opposition to the appointment of Communist Amlie as a member of the interstate commerce commission. That important duty was left to the patriotic and fearless industrial leaders and shippers of the country and the battle was won by them when Amlie, realizing that the tide had turned and that he could not be confirmed, finally asked that his name be withdrawn.

If the destructive provisions of the Wheeler-Truman bill are to be defeated it will be because of the patriotic service of that same class of individuals who are rallying to the opposition in Washington.

Editorial of the Day

RICHLY REWARDED.

[Detroit News.]

Lame Duck Fred H. Brown, for six years a thorough New Dealer in the senate, receives the chief prize at President Roosevelt's disposal, the appointment to a fifteen year term as controler general of the United States. He was beaten last year by a Republican for reëlection to the senate from New Hampshire.

It is a large addition in the President's recent course of naming his faithful followers, most of them New Deal extremists, to key positions at Washington.

The President tried and failed to have this office abolished. As the government reorganization act was finally signed the other day, he was denied power to change the arrangement making the controler general responsible only to congress.

Brown's choice comes as near as possible to assuring this powerful official's obediency to the President. His appointment was shrewdly conceived; being a former senator, he was promptly confirmed by the senate. He is 60 years old. The circumstances prevented a senate inquiry into his qualifications for a post in which he will wield great financial powers under President Roosevelt and, if Brown serves his term out, under three presidencies to follow Roosevelt's.

Nothing in Brown's record qualifies him to serve as the final authority on questions arising on account of payments to or by the United States. He gets virtually an appointment for life as a reward for his services as an all the way New Dealer.

John R. McCarl, the first controler general, appointed by President Harding in 1921, it will be recalled, made troubles again and again for the New Deal until his term expired in 1936, by challenging the legality of vital New Deal spending items. He has since been a chief critic of the Roosevelt spending, both as to methods and policy.

OLD TOWNS IN CHICAGO.

Some one should start a movement for the perpetuation of the old regional names in Chicago. Such designations are both useful and ornamental; they serve for directional purposes, they promote neighborhood spirit, and they keep bits of history alive. Many of these names are still in active use, but many others have been abandoned, and are being forgotten. A map with the current regional names was recently printed in THE TRIBUNE, but the absence of some fine old village labels was painful.

"Uptown," for example, an invention of modern Babbittry, has absorbed Sheridan Park, Buena Park, and that state of mind called Wilson avenue. Who knows where Bowmanville was, and Summerdale, and Oakland, and Auburn Park? Who can give the boundaries of the Town of Lake? Lawndale, too, once a lovely village of the plain, seems to have been erased from memory. Chicago Lawn no longer enjoys its prairie independence, and Streeterville seems to have been buried in the grave of its outlawed discoverer.

Such place names enrich and preserve a city's traditions; witness London. By neglecting them Chicago is losing a useful portion of its vocabulary.

APRIL IN CHICAGO—SO WHAT?

The calendar says Spring; O, yeah? So what?
So we keep wearing winter clothes some more,
And fooling with the furnace as before.
This April in Chicago ain't so hot.
It's warm a little and then cold a lot,
And don't late blizzards get to be a bore!
The rashness of some plants one must deplore;
They'll get their noses frozen, like as not.
Old Winter's doing too much lingering;
He knows he's through, but can't become resigned.
Come on, put up a battle, Lady Spring!
You'll lick him if you'll just make up your mind.
We're pulling for you, lass, like anything;
You're really staying much too far behind.

Testimony from the Forest Preserves.

"Thou shalt not touch the fruitful land with fire."

Verily a new prophet has spoken [the Line, 3-30-'39] and we, who labor in the wildness, lift up our voices in hopeful "Amen." Every spring we curse the stupid tradition that prompts the burning of the fields and wild lands to the lasting detriment of the good grasses, the wild flowers, the wild life and our hard won forest reproduction. Eventually only the weeds and worthless grasses survive in the burned over meadows where the ground nesting birds and beasties hunt for food and nesting cover.

Lighted and spreading on the wild lands, these fires destroy the litter so vital to the rebuilding and to the moisture content of the soil; kill the seedlings and the undergrowth of the shrubs; damage the cambium layer and the bark of the mature trees so that insects and fungus may enter in to complete the work of destruction. In fifty minutes the work of fifty years can be undone.

This spring we have had to date a total of fifty-four fires in the forest preserves, seriously damaging more than 600 acres. The carelessly flung cigaret of the passing motorist or horseback rider, the wanton incendiarism of strolling boys, and careless burning by our neighbors have run our patrols and fire suppression forces ragged.

We gratefully salute you as an aid and ally!

Roberts Mann.

LURCH-AND-STAGGER VERSES.

The thing I bend all of my not completely adequate energies toward is trying to acquire cash
In order that I may meet my obligations without having to resort to measures which some consider dangerous and nearly every one considers rash.
But my dearest desire
Is bending my energies toward trying to acquire the effervescent ability,
the mental agility,
the lovely, artless sillity
Of writing verse like Ogden Nash.

The Ghost of Caton Street.

No matter how obscure Caton street may be, the same with which James Pontifex [3-29-'39] floors taxi drivers, it was probably named after the pioneer, judge, and historian, John Dean Caton.

This gentleman was chief justice of the Supreme court of Illinois during the 1870s. His memory is kept alive today by an address he read before the Chicago Historical society on Dec. 13, 1870, later printed as "The Last of the Illinois and a Sketch of the Pottawatomies."

The most important incident of this work describes the annihilation of the Illinois Indians at Starved Rock, some time in the 1700s. Only seven braves escaped the massacre.

In his youth Caton was a friend and confidant of a number of Indian chiefs in the Chicago area and it was from them that he obtained these tales.

M. Dickason.

THE POOR FOXES WONDER.

Hear the hounds of war
Baying at the moon!
When will they start
Upon the hunt? How soon,
The leash of civilization
Broken viciously,
Will they sit down to feast
On you and me?

EAT IMMEDIATELY AFTER PEPTIC ULCER HEMORRHAGE

HEMORRHAGE from an ulcer in the stomach or the duodenum [the first portion of the intestine] should be considered merely as a complication of a simple peptic lesion. While these episodes may seem to be fairly common, in reality they are experienced by only approximately 10 per cent of all such patients. Many times the incident follows mild infections of the upper respiratory tract such as a cold, influenza, or bronchitis.

It is surprising that this symptom does not occur more frequently when one considers that an ulcer is a craterlike excavation of the mucous lining of the gastric pouch or the duodenum which is richly supplied with blood vessels. As the lesion burrows through the wall, these channels are very likely to be ruptured. Undoubtedly what happens in most instances is that the small capillaries are blocked off almost immediately by the formation of a clot. It is only when a canal—too great in diameter to be closed off—is eroded that this manifestation arises.

As a rule, the victim of an ulcer has been aware of his condition for some time. The characteristic indication—pain in the upper abdomen at some stated period after a meal [generally one to two hours]—is relieved by the taking of food or soda. Fortunately the hemorrhage is slight ordinarily, and these individuals are capable of detecting minor oozing due to the fact that there is increased weakness, fatigue, and symptoms of anemia. Knowing that they are not doing as well as formerly, they report themselves to the physician and—upon chemical examination of the stools—blood is observed and anemia revealed by a cell count.

Occasionally, if the attack is severe, the sufferer will vomit blood and often faint or collapse. However, this material may pass down the intestine and be excreted with the bowel movement, which resembles tar in consistency and color. Whether the trouble be mild or extreme, medical attention is essential and, in grave cases, emergency measures may be required.

Treatment includes absolute bed rest and every effort should be made to handle the patient gently and to keep him as quiet as possible. A sizable dose of morphia may be indicated to control restlessness. When the blood loss is great, transfusion is usually resorted to. It is wiser to give small amounts at two or four hour intervals rather than one large injection unless there is complete prostration.

In the matter of diet there has been considerable alteration of opinion within the last few years. The established method was to withhold all solids and liquids for a period of twenty-four to forty-eight hours, allowing the sufferer only pieces of ice to suck. Recently, however, a Danish physician has advocated immediate feeding on a more or less unrestricted diet, on the theory that with food in the stomach the affected area is more protected from the irritating effects of the gastric juices. Furthermore, it is thought that the individual regains his blood more rapidly if he is adequately nourished from the start.

This procedure has been tried to some extent in this country and—in reviewing the results—it has been found that the average length of hospital residence has been reduced remarkably and that the circulating fluid has returned to normal much more rapidly than under the older régime.

Despite the fact that a person with this type of ulcer may seem to bleed alarmingly, death from this cause is rare. The ultimate outlook is no worse than that of an uncomplicated case. In fact, some of them seem to get along much more satisfactorily with bed rest and the dietary management as outlined. Hemorrhage practically always stops. It is seldom necessary to resort to surgery.

CERVICAL RIB.

W. K. writes: My 12 year old daughter has a cervical rib. What should be done about it?

REPLY.

If it causes no symptoms it can be left alone. If it occasions discomfort and pain it should be removed surgically.

HEMIPLEGIA.

M. F. B. writes:
1. What does "hemiplegia" mean?
2. What is the cause?

REPLY.

1. This denotes paralysis of one side of the body.
2. Any disturbance of the brain involving areas which control movements. The most common cause is apoplexy, either hemorrhage, embolism, or thrombosis.

WISDOM TEETH.

J. V. S. writes: Can a wisdom tooth nerve be destroyed as in any other tooth?

REPLY.

Yes, this is possible. Since wisdom teeth have a tendency to cause trouble, many dentists advise removal rather than to allow them to remain devitalized [dead] within the jawbone. There is always a question as to what dead teeth should be retained, because of the possibility of abscess formation.

ITCHING PALM.

S. M. B. writes: What is the cause of constant itching of the palms of both hands? No other part of the body is affected.

REPLY.

Watch your step. Remember Brutus' remark to Cassius about an "itching palm." Apparently Shakespeare seized upon an allergic [sensitivity] phenomenon which would be relieved by a fistful of gold.

Drug reactions are a common cause. Soaking the hands in a solution of baking soda—a tablespoonful to a pint of water—may be helpful.

LISPING ADULTS.

L. M. writes: Can a lisp be cured in an adult? I have heard several public speakers who suffered this impediment and wondered why nothing was done about it.

REPLY.

As a rule, some bad habit is responsible. In a few instances a physical defect may be at fault. Poorly fitting dentures may occasion a whistling sound. Training will provide the remedy and produce clear enunciation.

LARGE PUPIL.

V. S. writes: What causes a very large pupil in the eye? Is this related to astigmatism?

REPLY.

This may be a normal condition. Drugs and certain diseases may cause a paralysis of muscles, thus allowing a dilated pupil. It is not related to astigmatism.

A GERMAN ON EUROPEAN RESOURCES.

Chicago, April 9.—In THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE there appeared a nice map of Europe, lining up the various countries in a possible conflict and quoting the strength of the various armies, navies, and resources in gold and food. The lineup as to countries, in the opinion of people who know, is somewhat different. For one thing, Jugo-Slavia is definitly committed to the Berlin-Rome axis. Furthermore, Japan is not even mentioned as a possible ally of the axis, whereas it is definitly understood to be on that side.

Holland, Belgium, and Switzerland, in all fairness, must be classified as neutrals.

What Rumania, Greece, and Turkey will do is also questionable, and they will definitly be on the side of the axis if Russia joins up with Britain, since they hate communism worse than the devil.

The Russian army of nineteen million is no menace whatsoever. Germany has licked the Russians before and was at that time giving a good account of herself also against the rest of the world.

On the other hand, the Russian army has only been supplied with blank cartridges; only the GPU has been equipped with regular ammunition. Reason: give the Russian army regular ammunition and they'll turn around and exterminate the whole bolshevik régime.

The figures as to airplanes are ridiculous. Perhaps the writer did some wishful thinking. Neither the British nor the French have the airplanes accredited them—unless you want to count the 6,000 airplanes which Mr. Roosevelt just authorized to be built for our own defense.

Germany instead of having 6,500 planes has well over 10,000. Even conservative estimates place the German number at between twelve and fifteen thousand. The Germans certainly are not letting anybody in on their secrets.

As to the inferiority of synthetic products: Only one not acquainted with German artificial rubber would make a statement concerning its inferiority. It has been definitly proven on race tracks and elsewhere that the German synthetic rubber is three times as durable, even if more expensive than natural rubber.

It is further stated that the German population is even now in a state of malnutrition. This statement is to be laughed at. I have never seen such a well nourished population as I did during my last year's visit to Germany. There is an abundance of food. Butter, however, is rationed to one-half German pound [about fourteen ounces] per person, per week, which is usually more than our own working people consume during a week. I have seen no shortage of eggs, although they may have been scarce at times. Coffee is somewhat of a luxury in Germany and always has been.

As to the German navy, it is small in tonnage but extremely efficient in fact.

WHERE HIGH SALARIES GO.

Chicago, April 8.—It was very interesting to many of us to see the size of income that several people have received in one year, as published in your financial section today. But there is one thing which I believe should be done in connection with the publication of all such information, but which was not done.

Why not tell in these various cases what part of the income the government takes in the form of taxes? Then those of us who are inclined to be envious and to resent anybody getting so much money would be made to think a bit about what business the government has to grab so much.

For example, when I read that so and so had an income of $50,000, why not tell me at the same time that the government reached out and took nearly $9,000 of it? Why not remind me that although somebody else had an income of $250,000, the government allowed him to keep less than half of it, and took away over $128,000 of it? And why not point out that any man who gets $1,000,000 has to give up nearly three-fourths of it—approximately $680,000—to the government?

When I begin to get such a picture as that, I am moved, not to envy of the man who earned the money but to question what kind of government it is that will step in and grab such a huge part of his income. And from that I begin to wonder how long before my own pittance will be bitten into even deeper than it is.

DIVIDENDS ON MANNERS.

Chicago, April 10.—Last week THE TRIBUNE had a short editorial on "Barbarian Manners." Frequently, returning home in the late evening, I travel with an I. C. conductor who never fails to smile and thanks the passengers as he punches their tickets. Often he makes some cheery comment. Thursday evening I said to him: "It's a pleasure to ride on your train after a hard day's work." A simple response to his smile but apparently quite unexpected. As I left the train he told me how many times he gets a sarcastic grin or a smirk in return for his thanks, but said, "I was raised to be polite. It gives me real pleasure and it doesn't cost a cent."

To those who still think by logical processes good manners are worth while and pay real dividends. Goods cost the same regardless where purchased. Do you go back the second time to the indifferent shopgirl, to the sullen barber, or to the restaurant where food is shoved at you with a "take it or leave it" air? Do you love bullies—local or international? Do you enjoy being ordered around? Do you prefer the company of the smart aleck to that of the fellow who really knows?

PLAIN JOHN.

HE WANTS US TO FIGHT.

Chicago, April 10.—Your editorial, "Western Europe Unites," is a poor defense of an untenable position.

If the "axis" continues to conquer Europe a little at a time—Austria, Sudetenland, Czecho-Slovakia, Spain, Albania—Poland and the Balkans probably next, then France and England in stride, you will probably awaken to the fact that the United States will then have about as much security as Holland or Belgium or Rumania has now. Your awakening, like that of western Europe, will have come too late. Looking back—would not the United States have performed a tremendous service to all mankind and protected her own interests best if she had early in the world war joined the entente against the central powers. The conflict would have been shortened, Russia would have been saved to civilization, millions of lives and billions of treasure would have been preserved. Such an objective should appeal to even the most selfish nationalist.

ADMINISTRATOR'S DUTIES.

Chicago, April 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Our father died in 1928 and our mother in 1930. There is no will. There are three brothers and one sister, all of age. We have a building in Chicago which is in Probate court since 1930. The writer is a son and administrator of the estate, which is a two flat building. I have not paid any taxes or interest since 1933. I have $400 on hand which I collected from rent. I have a claim against the estate which was filed in Probate after the death of our mother in 1930. Same was approved by the judge of the Probate court. The claim is for $1,345, which was a note from my mother. Can I keep that $400 which I collected from rents and charge it to my claim which I have coming, as we are about to lose our building?

L. P.

An administrator does not necessarily have anything to do with the collection of rent. Hence it seems probable that you hold the $400 in a different capacity from the capacity in which you claim against the estate. Ordinarily it is advisable to employ an attorney in probate proceedings, and if you have so employed an attorney he is in a better position to advise you than we are.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DUTIES OF ADMINISTRATOR.

Chicago, April 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Has the administrator of an estate the right to make improvements on said property without the consent of the rest of the heirs?

If he lives on the property [2] is he required to pay rental when things are settled if he just takes the liberty to move in without consulting the other heirs?

3. What are the court costs when sold through court?

E. H.

1. In general, no. The administrator as such does not necessarily have anything to do with the real estate.
2. Yes.
3. The costs and administrator's fee would both depend on the size of the estate. The Illinois statute fixes the administrator's fee at not over 6% of the personal property.

Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree, any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROBATE.

San Antonio, Tex., April 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have been living in Texas more than anywhere else during the last two years. I have paid my income tax the last two years in Texas. My assets are in northern Illinois.

1. Would it be legal for me to make a will and have my estate settled in Illinois?
2. Would it be legal to have the person that I will my property to be [3] administrator?

W. A. F.

1. In general, the principal probats should be where you have your residence, and the mere fact that you have your assets here would not mean that your residence is here, but it seems probable that no question would be raised. We suggest that you talk the entire situation over with the attorney whom you employ in the drafting and execution of the will.
2. Yes.
3. The person named in the will is called an executor.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

Test Your Facts

Below each of the following questions are listed three answers. Make your choice, turn to page 33 in the Want Ad section for the correct answers, and mark your score:

1. Where did an American division first give proof of the military qualities of American troops in the world war?
[a] Château Thierry. [b] Cantigny. [c] Belleau Woods.
2. What are the national colors of Mexico?

DR. BREAKSTONE HELD TO JURY IN DEATH OF GIRL, 19

Investigate Operation on Young Wife.

Dr. Benjamin H. Breakstone, 61 years old, was ordered held to the grand jury yesterday on a charge of murder by abortion. The action was taken by a coroner's jury investigating the death on March 11 of Mrs. Hermine Leith, 19, of 644 Surf street.

Dr. Breakstone.

Dr. Breakstone, whose office is at 55 East Washington street, testified that he operated on Mrs. Leith in the Robert Burns hospital on Feb. 12. The operation, he said, was to correct a condition resulting from an attack of intestinal influenza. Hospital records agreed with this testimony.

Coroner's Physician Reports.

A report from Dr. Matthew J. Kiley, coroner's physician, read to the jury, stated that the young wife's death was due to an infection caused by an abortion.

Mrs. Leith's husband, Donald, 27, in testifying before the jury on Tuesday, said he took his wife to a physician for examination after they had been married eight months. He was told, he said, that she was in need of an operation. He decided to let Dr. Breakstone perform it, he said, and paid him $75, promising to pay $25 more. Leith said he did not know if his wife was pregnant and did not know the exact nature of the operation.

Mrs. Leith died after she had become seriously ill at home and been taken to the Jefferson Park hospital.

Two Nurses Testify.

Two nurses who assisted Dr. Breakstone with the operation at Robert Burns hospital yesterday told the coroner's jury they were ignorant of what sort of operation was being performed. Miss Geraldine Rupp, 22, said she was too busy administering anesthetic. Miss Louise Melton, 20, said she was busy with instruments.

After the jury brought in its recommendations, Dr. Breakstone was taken to the county jail.

WPA CHANGES ITS PROCEDURE ON JURY SERVICE

Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley of the Criminal court was notified yesterday that the Works Progress administration has adopted a new procedure to prevent the dismissal of WPA workers called for jury service.

The judge had threatened to jail several WPA officials, including Harold K. Seltzer, director of the Chicago district, if the discharges were not stopped. Satisfied that the fault will be remedied, he quashed writs of attachment issued for the WPA officials.

Hereafter, WPA workers called for jury service will receive dismissal slips as before, but these will be stamped: "To be reinstated immediately after conclusion of jury service." The new system was described by Warren Canaday, assistant United States attorney, representing the WPA officials, who were not in court.

ORDERS INQUIRY INTO MICHIGAN SALE OF BONDS

Grand Rapids Man Is on Ohio Firm's Pay Roll.

Lansing, Mich., April 12.—[Special.]—Gov. Luren D. Dickinson today ordered Attorney General Thomas Read to investigate charges that Frank D. McKay, Grand Rapids financier, had received $92,300 in 1937 from a Toledo, O., bond house which handled the $2,350,000 issue on the Port Huron-Sarnia international bridge.

Attorney General Read assigned James W. Williams, an assistant, to conduct the inquiry, which will be pursued simultaneously in Lansing, Toledo, and Washington.

Second Inquiry Sought.

Representative Elton R. Eaton [R., Plymouth] said he would demand that the investigation be broadened to include the 1938 sale of $2,350,000 worth of Grand Rapids municipal water bonds handled by the same Toledo bond house, Stranahan, Harris & Co.

The Toledo company's disclosure to the congressional house ways and means committee of its 1937 salary list caused the furor in the capitol here.

Vacationing in Florida, McKay was reported today to have confirmed the payment in telephone conversations with Michigan residents, and to have denied there was anything wrong or anything political in this private business deal. State investigators planned to question officials of the Toledo concern who were reported to have said that McKay had been on their pay roll for ten years.

Bridge Losing; Bonds Down.

The bridge has been losing money and the bonds are selling for a fraction of their par value. Lobbyists for the city of Detroit, opposing the measure, have charged Stranahan, Harris & Co. was planning to float a refinancing issue if the bill were passed.

Detroit opposes the move because the city would forfeit taxes now collected from the privately owned project.

Robbed of $120 Savings for Daughter's Wedding

Three bandits gagged Ciro Cirrincione yesterday in his home at 2512 Lexington street. Then they robbed him of $120 he had saved for his daughter's wedding present and the $150 ring he was wearing. His daughter Rosaria is to be married Sunday. Before they departed, the robbers ate the pot of spaghetti that Cirrincione had cooked for his dinner.

YOUTH, 16, HELD AS ASSASSIN OF MANUFACTURER

Baton Rouge, La., April 12.—[Special.]—Haskell Woody, 16 years old, was held in jail here today as the hired killer of Henry Franklin, mattress manufacturer of Corpus Christi, Tex. Police Chief Joe W. Bates said the youth surrendered and confessed he was hired by a "tall dark skinned man" to kill Franklin last Oct. 15. He said he was prevented by his conscience from collecting the $100 death fee after shooting the manufacturer with a rifle.

4 YOUNG BANDITS HELD TO JURY IN FATAL BEATING

Four young Negroes were held to the grand jury yesterday by a coroner's jury for the slaying of Thomas Marleau, 33 years old, 11950 Normal avenue. Marleau, a cabinet maker, died March 9 of injuries received two days before in a robbery.

Questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Julius Sherwin, the quartet said they were drinking and smoking marihuana cigaretes in a tavern at 3033 State street when they saw Marleau pass by. They followed and seized Marleau, beat him, and took $1.50 and his shoes, which they sold for 25 cents.

Those held are Freddie Brown, 17, of 3638 Wabash avenue; Ronnie Jones, 18, of 3036 Indiana avenue; Earl Margrove, 18, of 3004 Prairie avenue, and James Lee, 18, of 21 West 21st street.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

Walter Tienta, 43 years old, 2953 East 81st street, died in his home yesterday of a heart attack.

KING OF BOMBERS SURRENDERS FOR QUIZ IN SHOOTING

James Belcastro, known as king of the bombers, gave himself up for questioning yesterday in the shooting Tuesday night of Daniel Pintozzi, a minor politician of the 20th ward. Pintozzi was shot just after he had talked with Belcastro in the latter's home at 1011 Polk street. Belcastro said Pintozzi came to see if he could borrow money. He said he refused and Pintozzi left. Belcastro told Capt. John Egan of the Maxwell street station that he ran out of the back door when he heard the shots which felled Pintozzi at the front curb. Belcastro, who is 42 years old, was locked up for the night.

DIES IN SUBURBAN STATION.

Charles Kappler, 62 years old, a retired printer, died of a heart attack yesterday in the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad station at Des Plaines avenue in Forest Park. He lived at 930 Dunlap avenue in the suburb.

You've hit your inner stride

....when you regain healthy per-i-stal-sis

There's no doubt you can do the job... with drive, force, speed... once you hit your inner stride and let it carry you along!

What's your inner stride? It's the steady contracting and expanding of the intestines called per-i-stal-sis. When it goes along evenly, you feel free and easy. When it slows down, you're slowed down, too... by constipation.

Then you're apt to need a gentle, thorough flushing out... to pave the way for healthy peristalsis. At such times, remember Eno!

Eno has fluid-action

Eno, taken in water upon arising, helps bring moisture from other parts of the body down into the intestines. There, Eno's fluid-action and mild stimulation promote free elimination. You're relieved!

Now healthy peristalsis has a chance. You can gradually get back to normal... hit your inner stride!

Eno alkalizes while cleansing

You'll like the taste of sparkling Eno. And you'll like the way it helps neutralize excess stomach acids—an extra benefit.

Try Eno's alkalizing fluid-action. Your step is lighter, once you clear the way for healthy peristalsis. Ask for Eno now at any drug store.

Spring Exhibits of Art Groups Get High Praise

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The annual spring exhibition of the Northwest Art league is enjoying great popularity at the Edgewater Beach hotel. It is a pleasant show, cheerful in color and theme. There are several delightful still life paintings, among them "Roses," by Julia Sulzer Griffith; "Dahlias," by Mary Palmer; "Spring," by Jessie Field; "Roses," by Ella L. Pearl, and "Nasturtiums," by Emilie Beutlich.

Ted Vognild shows a fascinating study of a graceful kitten in "The Catnip Mouse"; Mrs. Vognild also is responsible for the attractive portrait of a child, "Linda McBroom."

"The First Snow," by E. G. Dannhausen, is an outstanding achievment, excellently done. Edna W. Cookingham offers "Near the Old Brickyard," an interesting composition, and Elling Tronnes spreads a tranquil countryside before us in his "Olden Nordfjord."

Somebody should have stopped J. O. Stutsman before he perpetrated "Proxesx," one of the least attractive of the uniformed primitive any show yet has been cursed with.

The twentieth annual Swedish-American Art exhibition current at the Swedish club, 1258 North La Salle street, to Sunday is a stunning show. An amusing abstraction of good line is "Figure Composition," by Roy A. Ekroth. Mary C. Peterson, whose paintings are an asset to any exhibit, contributes "Arrangement with Flowers," subtle and charming in color, and the "Portrait of Dr. O. J. Olafsson."

The gray-green "Landscape," by Elof Wedin, has distinction. The "Still Life," by Bernard Hult, is unusually fine. Fridolf N. Spolander shows a stirring marine. "Lake Superior," and Carl E. Wallin, Gus Wick, Carl Ringius, Axel Linus, Signe Palmblad, and Thomas Hall bring characteristic paintings to swell the sum total of really worth while paintings in this brilliant show.

The North Shore Art Guild is holding its spring exhibit at the Club Woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers. Peggy Palmer Burrows practically walks away with the show with her fascinating little amusing studies of children. Her "Easter Parade" and "Hats" are perfect in every detail.

"Tranquillity," by Claire Gonersall, discovers a new artist for us and one who, if her average is as fine as this single picture, should go far. It has polish and an exquisite grace; it is enchanting. Julia Sulzer Griffith contributes two capital studies of boats and Edna Hirt, in "God's Garage," gives a splendid account of our heavy March snowfall.

Swedish Chorus Puts Climax on Music Season

BY CECIL SMITH.

The spring concert of the Swedish Choral club in Orchestra hall last night was one of the climactic events of the entire musical season. Under Harry Carlson's direction the club sang with magnificent breadth and beauty of tone and with an even more pliable responsiveness than it has shown before. To find a parallel to the sheer splendor of the club's performance it would be necessary to search back in memory many years.

The program consisted of three major works, all new to Chicago—Schubert's Mass No. 6, in A-flat major [sometimes called the "Missa Solemnis"]; Gustav Holst's "The Hymn of Jesus," and Verdi's "Te Deum." The evening's soloists, who sang only in the Schubert composition, were Esther Hart, soprano; Gertrude Hanson, contralto; Edwin Kemp, tenor, and Duwayne Carnes, bass.

The Verdi "Te Deum," placed at the end of the program, reached a mood of genuine sublimity. This wonderful work, which in itself would require that its composer be considered one of the greatest masters of the nineteenth century, was written by Verdi when he was 83. "Falstaff," often erroneously called his swan song, had been produced three years earlier.

The "Te Deum" is gloriously lyrical, often somewhat in the vein of "Otello." The melodies are of the same profound, considered kind; they are the work of a man in whose music mere surface obviousness had long since given place to philosophic calm. The choral parts, rising to a stupendous high B for the sopranos at the end, are as boldly sonorous as the triumphal scene of "Aïda." Before such honestly moving music and such surpassing technical craft no listener could sit unaffected.

Gustav Holst's "The Hymn of Jesus," composed in 1917, is likewise a considerable masterpiece. From the point of view of sheer choral sound it is the best English work written between Elgar's "The Dream of Gerontius" and Walton's "Belshazzar's Feast." The text is a passage of mystical theological revery drawn from the apocryphal book, "The Acts of St. John." The musical idiom, perhaps a little too mannered, combines the otherworldliness of Gregorian chant with fairly dissonant modern harmony.

Compared to the other two items, the Schubert mass seems a bit tame in retrospect. There are scattered pages of lyric beauty. The score in the main, however, shows Schubert to have been an unimaginative and often uninspired church composer.

Mr. Carlson knew his scores thoroughly and projected their content well, though different tempi in many places would have made the Holst work even more effective.

Of the soloists Miss Hart alone attained distinction.

Nepotism.

An amateur genealogist, Lieutenant Commander A. A. Gilbert reports, looking up his family history at the Newberry library last week, discovered that he was an eighth cousin to the President. On making known his findings to a friend who was an admirer of Roosevelt, it was suggested that he change his politics and from now on support the administration.

"I should say not," answered the scion of the Delano family tree. "That would be practicing nepotism."

Some Waukegan residents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewes, recently built a modern type house. It must have caused considerable comment in the neighborhood, for a sign appeared in a window reading:

"Yes, we know if you were building it, it would be different."

In the Morning Mail.

One day last week I visited the North Side Animal Shelter on North Damen avenue and a friendly, ingratiating little dog was in the office. He had been left at the shelter by a family which for some reason could no longer keep him. I was told the little girl had cried dreadfully as she left him.

The little girl apparently cannot have a dog. But maybe something can be done for the dog—a little dog who needs a little girl.

Isn't there some one who wants to be that little dog's girl? He is the little black and white shaggy one who stands on his hind legs and sits up very straight, and is reminiscent to my generation of Dorothy's Toto in the first "Wizard of Oz." (Of course, a small adoption fee would have to be paid.)

He is the one who keeps looking out of the office window and lifts his long, shaggy ears each time the door opens, and watches, and waits, and listens. H. S. S.

Waste Paper System.

The Pure Oil building, and perhaps other office buildings, has a method of handling waste paper that deserves mention. It is put into sacks, one for each floor, and each sack is labeled with the floor number and date. These sacks are held a full week before final disposition is made of the contents. This came to light when Richard Epperly, artist with a studio in the Pure Oil building, lost a valuable legal paper, recalled throwing a seemingly empty envelope into his waste basket the preceding day, and got permission from the building office to rummage through the sack for his floor. He found the envelope with the paper enclosed.

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Confectioners' sugar icings are made in a jiffy, and there's not much an inexperienced cook can do to them to bring imperfect results. They may be flavored in a hundred different ways, they may be made thick and soft or thin and brittle. They are loved by cake makers everywhere for their simplicity and sure results. Most of them contain butter for the sake of a rich flavor.

Basic Butter Frosting.

[For 8 inch cake or tops of 2 layers.]
¼ cup butter, creamed until soft
2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar
1-16 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons liquid [approximately]
1 teaspoon flavoring

Cream the butter and add half the sugar gradually, working it in well. Add remainder of sugar with salt, alternately with liquid and flavoring, beating until of a spreading consistency.

VARIATIONS OF BASIC BUTTER FROSTING.

1. VANILLA: Use milk for the liquid, vanilla for flavoring.

2. ORANGE: Use orange juice for liquid, grated orange rind for flavoring.

3. LEMON: Use 2 tablespoons orange juice and 1 tablespoon lemon juice for the liquid, ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind for the flavoring.

4. COFFEE: Use strong, freshly brewed coffee for the liquid. Flavor with vanilla.

5. CHOCOLATE: Make frosting with milk or cream; add 1½ squares unsweetened chocolate, melted, or ⅓ cup cocoa, and use ½ teaspoon vanilla. If chocolate is used, the liquid probably will be a smaller amount.

6. CHOCOLATE-ORANGE: Add chocolate as described, using orange juice for liquid, and grated orange rind for flavoring.

7. MOCHA: Add chocolate or cocoa as described, using coffee for liquid and flavoring.

8. STRAWBERRY: Omit flavoring and use crushed strawberries and juice for liquid.

9. MAPLE: Use milk and maple flavoring, or maple sirup in place of liquid and flavoring.

10. COCONUT. Sprinkle frosting [any of the preceding] thickly with coconut as soon as it is on the cake.

11. NUT OR FRUIT: Add finely chopped nuts, raisins, dates, or candied fruits to any of these before spreading. Or sprinkle on top.

12. RUM: Use as much rum as you like for liquid and flavoring, making up the rest with water.

Confectioners' sugar contains cornstarch to keep it free from lumps, and a few cooking experts recommend letting these icings stand over hot water for 10 or 15 minutes, as a means of getting rid of the starchy flavor. If this is done, flavoring should be added after the pan containing the icing has been removed from the lower part of the double boiler.

For the Slender Figure

FROCK FOR MISSES.

For the youthful and slender figure nothing could be more becoming than a suspender dress. Such a model is grand enough for informal dates during the summer and for your daytime routine around the house. If you have a summer home, you can't afford to be without this frock.

The entire costume may be of one color, if you like, but by far the smartest idea is to combine a print and a plain shade. The blouse may be printed, with a plain skirt to keep it company, or vice versa.

The blouse may have a square neckline, merely bound for a finish, and have long sleeves that are full, or the neckline may have a shirtwaist collar trimmed with braid, more of which may be used on the short sleeves.

The skirt has a wide waist panel that may or may not have buttons. Use them, of course, if you put them all the way down the skirt length. The straps on this suspender skirt are the wide and comfortable kind that "stay put." Notice that the skirt has dirndl lines.

Style No. 3345 is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 1¼ yards of 39 inch material for the blouse, and 3⅛ yards of 39 inch fabric for the skirt.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Young People Enjoy Sports at Sea Island

BY JUDITH CASS.

Al fresco dinner-dancing sounds attractive, but remote, to Chicagoans, particularly since we are having a chilly April. However, a number of Chicagoans who are at Sea Island, Ga., will be dining out of doors tomorrow night. The gay party will take place on a deck surrounding the Beach Casino swimming pool near the Cloister.

The Henry P. Ishams, the Hill Blacketts, the James R. Offields, the Leo Burnetts, Mrs. Robert Cluett, and Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Gartz Jr. are some who are enjoying the spring there. Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson, who has had a house in Hobe Sound, Fla., this winter, and Mrs. Lunt Gardner stopped at the resort when they were motoring back to Chicago. They found it filled with young people on vacation from schools and colleges.

The Ishams' three sons, Robert, Henry Jr., and George; the Gartzes' daughters, Gloria and Gail; Patsy Blackett, Hixon Glore, Barbara and Miss Eleanor McClurg, Miss Katherine Baird and Warner G. Baird Jr., Joan and Bryan Reid Jr., and David Welles were some of the light hearted young visitors.

Ishams Expected Home on Sunday.

The party tomorrow night probably will be the last the Ishams will attend there, for they are expected in Lake Forest on Sunday. Robert Isham, a student at the Hill school, set a new record for the Cloisters miniature golf course with a score of 48 for 18 holes, which is six under par, and won for him the men's first prize in a miniature golf tournament.

George and young Henry Isham won prizes in the best ball-four ball golf tournament held at the Sea Island Golf club. Hixon Glore, who attends the Kent school, placed in more events in the water sports contest than any other entrant, winning even the "greasy pole walking" contest. The McClurg sisters often were to be seen on the tennis courts. Good Morning!

This British production is amiable and amusing farce comedy—not at all after the Hollywood manner—but fun just the same. [A wee bit 'too "talky."]

Its principals are a pair of married couples and a dashing bachelor novelist. . . . Its subject is "wife insurance" and its moral—the husband who would keep his wife's affections from roving should not disdain to flirt with the lady. . . .

Young Mrs. Cheswick, of the story, believes herself in love with the handsome penman. Young Mrs. Carter, who isn't in love with the devastating Drummond, but IS fed up with her husband's neglect in those little matters which mean so much to a woman, decides to—well, a girl will go a long way to help a friend—and herself—sometimes. . . .

As the ladies maneuver on one side of the fence the husbands and the novelist cook up schemes on the other. . . . In the end Writer Drummond proves himself a practical craftsman by furnishing a satisfactory ending for the real life plot in which he is so deeply involved.

You'll like the acting of Rex ["The Citadel" and "Storm in a Teacup"] Harrison and Diana Churchill. I wasn't bowled over by the work of the other players.

See you tomorrow.

Calls on Club Women to Seek Peace; "Some Men Talk Too Much"

Staunton, Ill., April 12.—(AP)—Mrs. William T. Bruckner of Hinsdale, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, urged Illinois women today to help keep the country out of any foreign entanglements by "minding our own business."

"It's up to us to keep this country at peace," she told the federation's 21st district convention.

"The first step is to mind our own business and to keep our mouths closed. Some of our men have talked too much."

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

Where Brevity Is Not the Soul of Wit.

Hollywood, Cal., April 12.—It was on the "Gone with the Wind" set yesterday and Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh were doing the jail scene [pages 576 to 585 of your copy]. . . . They did it in an unbroken camera "take" of five continuous minutes of dialog and action, which would mean exactly 450 feet of film.

I asked Director Victor Fleming what was the longest single "take" he'd ever made in one of his pictures. . . . "The longest one that appeared in a picture was the rowboat sequence between Spencer Tracy and Freddie Bartholomew in 'Captains Courageous'; you know, the scene where they sit in the boat baiting and fishing, fishing and baiting, and talking. That ran about 650 feet of film and they did it in one continuous 'take'."

Director John Ford of "Informer" fame has two to add to the Hollywood gallery, a 950-foot courtroom scene with Henry B. Walthall in "Judge Priest," a 625 foot scene in "Young Mr. Lincoln," when Henry Fonda as Lincoln played the scene at the grave of Ann Rutledge. . . . It covered nine pages of dialog, but Fonda went through it perfectly.

In "Juarez" you will see a scene that ran eight minutes, or 720 feet of film, and was filmed in one unbroken sequence, the scene in which Muni, as Juarez, denies the pleas of the five ambassadors for the life of Maximilian.

In "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" [looks like an Academy award finalist], Robert Donat acted before the cameras for seven minutes and twenty-one seconds. . . . It was the chapel scene in the picture where Donat, as the 83 year old "Mr. Chips," reads to the students at Brookfield the names of the boys killed in France. . . . Director Sam Wood was so thrilled by Donat's performance that he let the cameras grind until Donat stopped of his own accord.

Veteran Edmund Goulding, in "Dark Victory," directed Bette Davis in a scene that was stop watched at 11 minutes and 32 seconds. . . . The scene, key scene of the picture, opened with Miss Davis saying goodby to Humphrey Bogart, her horse trainer; continued with her walking into the garden and joining Geraldine Fitzgerald for a two shot; stayed with them as they planted flowers and Bette suddenly remarked how dark it was getting; registered Miss Fitzgerald's terror and then carried on through that poignant moment to show George Brent calling to them from an upper story window and excitingly waving a telegram; followed by Miss Davis and Miss Fitzgerald walking from the garden into the house.

When it was completed, in one take, the camera crew gave Miss Davis, Miss Fitzgerald, Brent, and Bogart the most spontaneous cheer ever heard at Burbank.

Director George Seitz recalls an uninterrupted scene between Mickey Rooney and Lewis Stone that ran ten and a half minutes, 950 feet of film. . . . It was in "Love Finds Andy Hardy," the man-to-man talk in which they spoke 1,022 words. . . . There were no closeups, but the camera moved fifteen times and changed focus eighteen times. . . . Lionel Barrymore's longest single take ran 360 feet, but it won him the Academy award, the scene in "A Free Soul," when he pleaded for the acquittal of Leslie Howard. . . . That was Lionel, as the actor. . . . As the director, his longest single take was in "The Rogue Song," when Lawrence Tibbett sang "In Your Heart, My Sweet Dove" to Catherine Dale Owen.

When sound was in its infancy, and because of the clumsiness of early sound camera equipment [they were big as telephone booths], to speed shooting, directors used as many as four cameras simultaneously on a scene. . . . One camera took closeups while the others took medium shots, two shots and long shots. . . . In those days long takes were not exceptional.

In "The Letter," shot with four cameras, Jeanne Eagles was still acting when the cameras ran out of film and had to be reloaded [a camera holds 1,000 feet of film]. . . . Director Bill Seiter recalls the same thing happening in "Woman on the Jury," when Dorothy Mackaill and Sidney Blackmer ran out of film in one continuous take.

Specialties always are lengthy. . . . Sonja Henie's big ice number in "Thin Ice" lasted five and a half minutes, but Director Sidney Lanfield had six cameras shooting it. . . . If a scene is built around a single actor it is not unusual for stage veterans to astound Hollywood technicians. . . . In his deathbed scene in "House of Rothschild" George Arless delighted Director Alfred Werker by enacting a seven minute scene without a blunder. . . . That was the scene climaxed by his "walk the world with dignity" speech.

Jimmy Cagney in "Oklahoma Kid" did a scene that went 4 minutes and 20 seconds, entered in this exhibit by Director Lloyd Bacon . . . You might index, too, the five minute unbroken sequence between Wally Beery and Robert Taylor in Woody Van Dyke's "Stand Up and Fight." . . . In "The Great Ziegfeld" Director Robert Z. Leonard stop-clocked the "Pretty Girl" number at 11 minutes—990 feet without an interruption. . . . In "Let Us Be Gay" Norma Shearer, the late Marie Dressler, and Rod La Rocque remembered lines and action for five solid minutes of porch repartee.

Until I stumbled on this question of lengthy scenes I had no idea how much pride the Hollywood directors and actors took in them. . . . Which was the longest unbroken sequence ever filmed? Tell you what—we'll get hold of other directors and find out, and the findings will be carried in another column.

Newest Hosiery Is Designed for Cut-Out Shoes

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Nothing stumps the hosiery designers! After a nice bit of fashion calculation new spring hosiery now is ready for the most cut-out footgear. Sandal hosiery is especially well planned. Lacy toe and heel sections are not only decorative but made for wearing. Rib row heels not only wear amazingly long but banish any fear of unsightly runs . . . the rib row effects even look like orderly runs.

A new idea is the sandal stocking made with a very wide mesh lacy toe section and what is called a shadow heel, the heel being just an appreciably thickened film of the chiffon over the heel.

Good sultry shades are high fashion, with beige tints running along in second place in shopping favor. The best of the suntan colors go with summer wools, silks, and linens, while the neutral beige [new beige] tone is a five star special for prints and evening wear. After a long absence this beige shade looks unusually flattering on the anklelines and everybody succumbs at first glance.

Also extremely popular because of the slenderizing qualities are the coppertones with rib row sooty black heels. And there is lovely misty mauve tinted suntan that is perfect with all the violet plum and purple tweeds, thin wools, and silk crêpes. Black heels in the cool looking rib row lines make them fitted smoothies for any anklelines. The newest excitement, however, is the extremely wide meshed toe number. It's soft and easy to wear, and lacquered nails show through with a properly subdued shimmer.

On the House

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

When a budget can't be stretched to include everything one wants there is a sturdy wood that can be used for flooring—as a short cut to saving money. This wood belongs to the oak family, but is less expensive than fine quartered white oak. It comes in shorter lengths, and varies in graining, but, properly and attractively stained, it looks well, and wears well, too!

New storm and screen doors and windows are growing in favor. The practical assets of this new type merit investigation. These storm and screen doors have only one frame, but two interchangeable panels, one of glass and one of screening. In this construction money is saved, and considerable trouble, too—as the seasons come and go.

There is an inexpensive and easy to look at finish for newly plastered walls, in new or remodeled work. This finish gives the walls of any room a plain, softly colored surfacing. Then later, when the purse grows plumper, the walls can be painted or papered or given any desired finish.

Justice Orr Will Speak at Banquet of Fraternity

Justice Warren H. Orr of Rock Island, retiring justice of the Illinois Supreme court, will deliver the principal address at the annual banquet of the Phi Delta Phi fraternity in the Chicago Bar association tomorrow evening.

The Housewife

The newest and prettiest roller shades avoid monotony by sporting gay designs that are hand blocked and that certainly create a decorative effect. For the kitchen there's a shade that is covered with clever drawings of tea cups and saucers, tea pots, plates and culinary utensils, all done in soft green and gray on cream white. For the bathroom there's a design of fish in scarlet and for a boy's room there's a nautical pattern any youngster will like.

If you prefer to make your own roller shades do, by all means try using a light, floral chintz. The light shining through it does a lot for the drabbest bedroom. And white, ruffled curtains are lovely with it. Simply have the chintz put on your old roller.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

We'll never know why women who can afford them don't indulge in the altogether delightful and extremely helpful luxury of body treatments. If we seem to write very frequently about their merits it's because we're thoroughly sold on them and because we've seen countless demonstrations of what they can do for you.

You know what it is to feel thoroughly licked physically and mentally. Atlas supporting the world has a snap compared to you and the burdens on your shoulders. There's a tight cluster of aching nerves at the back of your neck, your step is heavy and your disposition is poisonous. That's the time you should empty your purse, if necessary, and have a really elegant body treatment.

Not so long ago, on a day when we had malice toward all and everything, an angel in the guise of a masseuse worked a miracle in the space of two hours. The treatment salon has a hushed atmosphere that in itself is soothing. You're waited upon from the moment you drag yourself in until the moment you dance out. And there's something about being handed about on a silver platter that does wonders, too!

If you want you can start with a cabinet; the heat controled perfectly, your skin generously oiled and your taut nerves unkinking by the second. Then comes the part we like best, the long, gentle massage that extends from your toes even unto your fingertips. You simply can't appreciate what it does for you until you experience it; it restores energy and good spirits as effectively as a good night's sleep.

Top this off with a gentle face treatment—cleansing, oiling, and a bit of stimulation to pick up the drooping mouth corners—and you've done yourself some good. To our way of thinking there's no investment that pays such big dividends in physical and psychological restoration.

The Blind Side

By Patricia Wentworth

SYNOPSIS.

Ross Craddock's father turned Craddock House into flats and installed his old maid cousins, Mary and Lucy Craddock, in a flat apiece, on either side of the one occupied by Ross. After Mary's death Lucy prepared to take a trip, despite an order from Ross to vacate her flat because she objects to his attentions to her foolish young niece, Mavis Grey. Their cousin, Peter Renshaw, is staying in Mary's flat while he settles her estate. Lucy gives her cousin, Lee Fenton, permission to use her flat while she is away. Lee is in love with Peter. Rush, the porter, mutters belligerently to Lee against Ross. Mrs. Green, the charwoman, says she is ill and asks Lee for a drink of brandy. That evening Peter prevents Bobby Foster, Mavis' suitor, from making a scene in a night club where Mavis is with Ross. Peter is awakened in the night by a crash. He sees Mavis running from Ross' flat and Ross cut and bleeding. Mavis had thrown a decanter at him. Peter lets Mavis stay the rest of the night in his flat. Later he is again awakened and sees Mavis again coming from Ross' flat. She says she went to retrieve her purse. Lee awakens from a nightmare to find herself covered with blood. Her bloody footprints lead from Ross' door. Lee knows she walks in her sleep. In terror she washes away the blood stains and goes to tell Peter. Ross' valet arrives and finds Ross has been shot and killed. An old maid tenant tells how she saw Mavis coming from Ross' flat twice. Rush turns over to the police a cigaret case he found belonging to Bobby Foster. Lucy, who didn't go away after all, admits coming to Craddock House after 2 a. m. and seeing a figure hurrying out the door and going up to find Ross murdered. She fled after finding Mavis' compact. Lucy tells that Ross was married years before to an actress, that he was never divorced, and had lately stopped paying her. Bobby Foster disappears and he is charged with the murder. Mavis also disappears. Ross' ex-wife is found in Birmingham and she has an alibi for the time of the murder. Bobby Foster calls Peter and begs for a loan. Peter persuades him to give himself up. While Peter is with the inspector Mrs. Green calls. She says there is something she withheld because of fear. The inspector tells her to come right over, but she doesn't appear and can't be found. Peter learns from Lucy that Mary had old photographs of Ross' wife. Peter looks them up and finds one of her in the rôle of a charwoman—the image of Mrs. Green.

INSTALMENT XI.

THE SEARCH ON.

When Peter returned from telephoning to Inspector Lamb, he said: "Lamb is coming round. Well, I suppose this lets us all out. Amazing—isn't it?"

Lee said "It doesn't prove Mrs. Green did it."

"It will make the police sit up and think a bit. And she's rather given herself away by disappearing. Just a little bit too clever, that business of ringing up Scotland Yard saying she'd got some hush-hush evidence, and then working off the piece about being frightened of me, and of poor old Rush. The damnable thing is that it might have come off. Lee, do you realize how very easily it might have come off? By gum, she's a clever woman!

"What was it Lucinda said—very versatile? I'll say she is. She probably came down here in the first instance to spy out the land. Ross wouldn't give her any more money and she may have wanted a line on him for blackmail, or even for a divorce. Mrs. Green was an ironclad disguise and she put on the port-wine mark just to make quite sure.

"I don't suppose Ross ever really got a look at her. Even if he passed her on the stairs she'd only got to go down on her knees and start dusting between the bannisters, or something like that. And all the time some one was moving around from one lot of cheap lodgings to another, calling herself Rosalie La Fay, forwarding Aggie's letters to old Prothero, and getting his answers back. I wonder who it was. Didn't you say there was a sister?"

"Yes," said Lucy Craddock in a flustered voice. "O, yes, a sister—but I don't remember her name."

Peter nodded.

"Probably the sister, then. Anyhow, somebody she could trust to hold her tongue and do what she was told. Then Aggie gets her opportunity. She finds Ross' key sticking in the door of his flat. She pinches it, and when Ross and Peterson are both out of the way for the day she goes in and has a good worry around. It was easy enough to dodge old Rush, because he's got his settled times for everything.

"Well, we know that Ross left his own bunch of keys lying about that day. That's what he had the row with Rush about. He saw his papers had been meddled with and he accused Rush. But it was Aggie. It must have been Aggie. And the first thing she saw when she opened that despatch case was old Prothero's letter urging Ross to make a will and saying that the unsettled property amounted to a very considerable fortune and he ought to provide against any possibility of an intestacy.

"And I expect it was right there that she began to think of being Ross' widow in desperate earnest. I don't know how she brought it off, all the same. She went home, and she went to bed drunk at half past nine. But I suppose she probably wasn't really drunk at all, and allowing for that——"

Lee caught him suddenly by the arm.

"The Connells' flat!" she said in a breathless voice. "Mrs. Green—she had their key. She said so when she was going off on the Tuesday night. She said she had just finished cleaning up after them and Rush was furious because she didn't give him the key before she went. You know she had one of her bad turns, but I suppose it was just acting, really. I am sure she just went home and pretended to be drunk so that the other people in the house would leave her alone, but I think she slipped back here—Rush doesn't lock up until eleven—and hid in the Connells' flat. It—it's just underneath Ross' and she would be able to listen and make sure that everything was quiet before she came out."

"You think she shot Ross?" said Lucy Craddock in horrified accents.

"What do you think, Lucinda?" said Peter dryly.

What Inspector Lamb thought was that it wasn't going to be at all an easy job and he'd better get busy with a timetable.

"The bother is, we don't know where she may be making for. Just get on to Mr. Prothero at his private house, Mr. Renshaw, and ask whether he hasn't had any word about a change of address from the woman in Birmingham. Mrs. Green won't go to the place where her confederate has been staying, so I'll lay they've got a move planned, and when it's over it'll be Mrs. Green who has taken on being Miss La Fay and the other will have gone back to her own name or else gone off the map altogether."

He immersed himself in the timetable. Presently Peter came back, and he looked up alertly.

"Well, what did you get, Mr. Renshaw?"

"He's on his dignity. Doesn't keep clients' addresses at his private house. Doesn't expect to be rung up on a Saturday evening. But I did drag one thing out of him. All this chopping and changing of addresses falls into the last three months, and before that Mrs. Ross Craddock was living at Doncaster under the name of Miss La Fay. You see, I thought she might go back to wherever she was living before she started being Mrs. Green."

"Did he give you the Doncaster address?"

"No, he didn't. I haven't rung off. Would you like to deal with him?

The inspector heaved himself out of his chair. He could be heard coping with Mr. Prothero in a highly official voice, after which he returned and addressed himself to the timetable again.

"He'll get the address and let the Doncaster police have it. Now about these trains? Let's see what she could catch——" He flicked pages, made notes, used the telephone, and turned a considering eye upon Peter. "The trouble is she isn't going to look like Mrs. Green by the time she gets anywhere at all. If she goes to this Doncaster address she goes there as Miss La Fay, and, of course, we can question her. But it's not going to be so easy to prove that she ever was Mrs. Green unless she's got the clothes with her. She mayn't have been able to get rid of them, or she mayn't have thought it necessary. If it hadn't been for the photographs no one would ever have connected her with Mrs. Green.

"Now, Mr. Renshaw, I'm going to Doncaster, and if you like you can come along, too. I'm sending Abbott to Birmingham. I make it this way. I don't suppose for a moment that the woman was really ringing up from Charing Cross—much more likely King's Cross. And she'd get the first train she could. Well, the first train's a slow one and she had twenty minutes to catch it. She wouldn't want to hang about the station waiting for a fast train, either—she'd want to get clear away out of London, because she knew she'd started a hue and cry.

"Now this is where we come in. There's an express thirty-five minutes from now, and it reaches Doncaster ten minutes before that slow train. If she didn't take that, she'll be taking this. So either we get to Doncaster ten minutes before she does or we all get there together, and I'll be very glad of your assistance to identify the lady." He paused, turned a hard, solemn gaze upon Peter, and added, "Always supposing she's going to Doncaster, which I don't feel at all sure about myself."

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER; A Hot Tip

Letting Love Tragedy Crush One Is Foolish

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

A story reaches our ears of a girl being jilted a few weeks before the day set for her wedding.

Tragic enough that experience. The girl might have survived the blow heroically enough but for the fact that so-called friends and her own people, including her mother, taunt her with the prediction that at her age, 29, she'll never get another man. The young woman is heartbroken and has gone into an enforced retirement, fearful of meeting people who may refer to the unfortunate incident.

A dear old aunt, who regrets the stupidity of her mother and the heartlessness of her friends' remarks, looks upon the girl's approaching breakdown with infinite pity. But her hands are tied. She would like to pick the young woman up and carry her off on a sea voyage, somewhere, anywhere, to get her away from her present unhappy environment. The aunt unfortunately has not the money for such a trip.

In any event we are impatient with a woman of 29 in this day and age retiring and enjoying the "miseries" because of a disappointment. Yes, the broken wedding plans were a bitter pill, we'll grant, but we still think a young woman is a coward to withdraw herself from circulation and cause anguish to others because of her predicament.

To issue a bromide: "It isn't the worst thing that could happen to one!" Thousands of women at this moment, in the face of far greater ordeals, bear up with more commendable courage than our jilted girl—the loss of a child perhaps, a loved one in bitter disgrace, being thrown over at middle age for a younger, prettier face.

Our argument, however, is that a woman of 29 today can tell her tantalizing parent that she's all wrong about her romantic life being over.

It isn't 1939 style. No, siree! Moderns pull the shutters down on that heartache, whatever it is, raise another shade to let the sun of hope in. They go about with a cheerful face, no matter what the ache behind, and set out to show the "him" who hurt and relatives and friends who looked on pityingly that life can hurt but it can't kill the good old fighting spirit.

Announce Marriage of Helen Safford Watson.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Russell Safford of Highland Park announce the marriage of their daughter, Helen Safford Watson, to Barent Waldron Williams Jr. of New York and Deer Creek, Wyo. The ceremony took place last Saturday in Palm Beach, Fla.

Chicago friends of the bride will meet her husband when she and Mr. Williams come here following a lengthy wedding trip in the south. They will spend a little time here before taking Mrs. Williams' children, Pamela and Artemus Watson III., to Wisconsin for the summer.

Instead of planning a wedding reception for next month, as she had anticipated, Mrs. Wirt F. Smith is planning a tea. The party will be for her daughter, Marjorie, and Edwin Barton Adams, son of Mrs. Ernest Adams, who were married quietly last Monday.

Their marriage was to have taken place May 13, but because of business reasons the ceremony was advanced. Mr. and Mrs. Adams have left for a three weeks' trip west with plans to spend some time in Colorado Springs. They will make their home on the south side.

The showers and other parties planned for the former Miss Smith are being postponed until Mr. and Mrs. Adams return to the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gleim Jr. [Mary Louise Gardner] are back on the north shore after spending the winter in the south. They have taken a house in Braeside. The Gleims were married last fall.

Dr. Bridges Will Lecture at Cradle.

For a number of years Dr. Horace J. Bridges has contributed a course of lectures to The Cradle, of which he is a board member and a good friend.

The first of four lectures will be given tonight at 8 o'clock at the Cradle's new home, 2049 Ridge avenue, Evanston. "Propaganda, the Modern Poison Gas," will be the subject.

Mrs. Richard Gambrill Jr. is entertaining at luncheon for the cast of the Chicago Junior league's play, "The Indian Captive," following its only public performance Saturday morning at the Chicago Woman's club theater.

Among those who have planned theater parties is Wilder Pickard, who is taking his grandchildren, Mrs. Sherwood Platt's 3 year old son, and little Maria Pickard. Mrs. Platt is head of the Children's theater department of the league.

Mrs. Theron Chapman and Mrs. John D. Ames are giving children's parties. Tickets will be sold at the door at 50 cents apiece, and no seats are reserved. The play, written and directed by Mrs. Charlotte Chorpenning, has played to an audience of 5,000 children in eight public schools.

Junior League Holds Clothes Sale Today.

The Chicago Junior league's spring second hand clothes sale will be held at 7:30 o'clock this morning at 1006 South Michigan avenue. Early shoppers—and many arrive two hours or more before the doors are opened—will find a large selection of men's and women's apparel.

Three unusually smart evening coats and one man's Chesterfield are in the collection. Several business suits and evening dresses also will be on the racks. Miss Laura Moyer is chairman of the sale. Several dozen league members will be salesgirls.

Erika Mann, daughter of Thomas Mann and wife of the English poet, W. H. Auden, will be the speaker at the seventh annual spring luncheon of the Parents' Association of the Francis W. Parker School. The luncheon will be given on Saturday at the Woman's Athletic club. Miss Mann will speak on "Children in Goosestep."

The English-Speaking union is giving a tea next Tuesday at 4 o'clock at the Arts club for David R. Hardman, who will speak on "What About Shakespeare?"

Grant Freedom Wisely to the Stubborn Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright; 1939: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Two little sisters under the very same management react very differently. Mother is away all day, working to suport the family, and her housekeeper, good and kind though she is, understands only the quiet, gentle little girl who is as good as gold. The other one, older and vital and full of ideas and initiative, she does not know how to guide. Instead of channeling her energy, she checks and blocks it. And the child is fast becoming a stubborn, bristly little problem.

Now there's nothing wrong with that child or her nature. She just needs the right touch. When family situations such as this exist, and they are frequent, the mother can do only one of the two things: try to enlighten the housekeeper in regard to a different approach to the older one, or find some one who has more knowledge of child guidance.

For this mother, who wrote me, has an insight into her older daughter's nature. Home with a cold one day, she could hear what went on in the house, and caught glimpses at intervals of a thwarted little face. This child could see no reason in the housekeeper's conscientious but constant objections to almost everything she tried to do.

A great many children unconsciously experience this thwarting even with their own mothers, because almost from the beginning there has been an absence of two important things.

One is, giving your child credit for intelligence and appealing to that. If you've not done this, you'll be surprised at how much a very small child can understand.

The other important course of action consists in letting your child have his way and do what he wants to, provided it hurts neither him nor any one else. Carried out with judgment, this method, instead of turning loose a destructive little imp on your home and that of your friends, makes a poised, controlled child.

While these two suggestions might be used both for preventing and for curing stubbornness, they really won't be needed for the curing part, because if you've applied them from the beginning, your child will not be stubborn.

WILSON'S Weekly MEMO by GEORGE RECTOR

Some of my readers have commented on the simplicity of the recipes and menus given here, as contrasted with those we used to feature at Rector's. So I will let you in on a secret: Most—but not all—of our dishes were simple. We gave them fancy names, put on attractive garnishes and usually an incomparable sauce and voila! there was a dish to satisfy both epicure and glutton. For the sake of ease, I am using the plain names of these dishes, but the taste is every whit as good, I assure you!

THE FIGHT IS ON!

The coming of the berry season renews the age-old argument—which is the one, true genuine shortcake—the kind that is more cake than short or the one that is more short than cake? There is no way of settling the matter for once and for all, since this will always remain a matter of personal preference. But to my mind a strawberry shortcake of unsullied ancestry consists of a hot, fluffy, melt-in-your-mouth biscuit, split open, lightly buttered, and filled and covered with crushed berries. Then come generous gobs of thick whipped cream, with a whole berry precariously perched on top. That's a dish they used to come to Rector's for! Only there is no need to now, for here is how you can make it at home:

Old-Fashioned Strawberry Shortcake

2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
about ⅔ cup milk
4 teaspoons baking powder
3 tablespoons Wilson's New Certified Pure Lard
3 tablespoons Wilson's Clear Brook Butter

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Work in the Lard and Butter in the same manner as in making pie dough. Add enough milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on floured board, roll thin and cut with round cutter. Spread half of the rounds with melted Clear Brook Butter and top with remaining rounds. Bake in hot oven (425°) for about 12 minutes.

The dry ingredients may be combined and kept in the refrigerator until needed.

A SIMPLE PROBLEM IN ADDITION

There is really nothing to it—take a thick ham steak cut from one of Wilson's Tender Extra Mild Certified Smoked Hams, add to it 3 or 4 small onions and a can of tomatoes and the sum total is Ham a l'Italienne, as well as the solution to your tonight's dinner problem.

Ham a l'Italienne

Place 1-inch slice of Certified Smoked Ham in a skillet, cover with onions, diced, tomatoes and a dash of pepper. Cook covered in a hot oven (400° F.) for 1¼ hours. Remove ham to platter. Blend 3 tablespoons cornstarch in ½ cup water, add to vegetable mixture. Stir well and cook until clear. Pour over ham and serve piping hot. Serves 4 to 5.

Menu

PINEAPPLE JUICE
WILSON'S CERTIFIED SMOKED HAM A L'ITALIENNE
NEW POTATOES
CARROTS VICHY
CELERY RADISHES
STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

The potatoes, well scrubbed, may be left in their jackets, which are tasty and healthful. Scrape carrots, cook till tender, slice very thin and brown in a skillet with melted Clear Brook butter. Sprinkle with grated parsley.

The Browns are not going to have muffins for breakfast this morning. Mrs. Brown is lining muffin tins with strips of Wilson's Certified Bacon, lightly cooked. In a minute she'll drop a Clear Brook egg into each well (greased with a little bacon fat) and then pop the pan in a slow oven (325° F.) until the whites are set. Serve them on rounds of buttered toast. This makes an interesting and unusual variation on the good old American bacon-and-eggs theme.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright; 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

Every bridge player must number among his fond memories a hand or two on which his opponents waxed too optimistic in the bidding and were duly slaughtered in the play. Moreover, every good bridge player knows that the biggest profits in contract bridge come from penalizing the opponents. When an opponent makes an obviously unsound bid, the natural tendency is to double him; and if he comes up for air with another bid, hit him with another double. That's good practice, if you're really sure you have him on the run. Otherwise you may find yourself bilked as were East and West in this hand:

South, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

♥ K 10 9 5
♦ Q 9 7 4
♣ J 10 7 4

WEST
♠ A K 6 4 3
♦ A 8 5
♣ K 8 6 2

EAST
♠ Q 8 5 2

SOUTH
♠ J 10 7

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 heart | 1 spade | 2 hearts | 2 spades |
| 3 diamonds | 4 spades | 5 clubs | Double |
| 5 diamonds | Double | 5 hearts | Double |
| Pass | Pass | Pass | |

West considered a take-out double instead of the simple overcall of one spade, but chose the latter on the theory that the hand had no future unless East could take unforced action. East's raise to two spades was a decided underbid. His only problem should have been whether to raise to three or four!

South's rebid of three diamonds was questionable. [As you've probably gathered, the bidding wasn't exactly perfect.] Ordinarily it pays to tell the opponents as little as possible about your hand. Since North had supported hearts, a good suit was available and South should have concealed the diamond suit by choosing a heart rebid.

After West's jump to four spades, North realized that desperate measures were necessary. It was obvious that he had a good sacrifice bid at either hearts or diamonds, but what would he do if the opponents went on to five spades—or possibly six—instead of doubling the sacrifice bid? The best chance to prevent that was to pretend to be in difficulties. Hence the bid of five clubs.

East naturally doubled, licking his chops. South suspected what was going on and bid five diamonds in the hope that West would double that bid, too. West obliged, and North was sorely tempted to pass with satisfaction. But he wisely resisted the temptation, fearing that East would put the proper interpretation on the unexpected willingness to play the hand at diamonds.

When North "ran" to five hearts East was sure that happy days were here again. His opponents probably had a heart suit, he realized, but what a shellacking they were in for when they ran out of trumps!

West opened the king of spades "to take a look at the dummy." But, curiously enough, he didn't realize the danger even after he had seen it. South's bidding clearly showed a five card diamond suit, so West should have known that his partner had only a singleton. But West was still dreaming of a tremendous set, so he switched to a trump.

South gratefully won the trump in his own hand and ruffed a spade in dummy. He returned to his hand with a trump and ruffed the last spade. A club ruff put him in again to draw the last trump, after which he spread his hand, conceding one trick to the diamond ace.

Had the bidding been normal, East and West would have bid at least five spades, forcing North to go to six hearts as a sacrifice. Proper play would collect at least a 300 point penalty for East and West. Instead, North and South scored 300 points and a game!

U. of C. to Use New Type of Entrance Examination

A new type of examination will be given at the University of Chicago Saturday for more than a thousand high school students who are competing for university scholarships. The contestants will be tested on clear and critical thinking, familiarity with significant ideas and their sources, understanding of words, appreciation of effective language usage and the ability to deal with numbers and quantitative relations. In the past students selected three formal subjects out of a list of eleven and were examined on them.

EXAMINERS VIEW 17 HIGH SCHOOLS; APPROVE OF ALL

Staffs and Students Win North Central O. K.

Conditions in seventeen of Chicago's public high schools were highly praised in reports received yesterday from the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary schools by Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools.

The association is the accrediting body for high schools and colleges. Each year a committee visits a number of the city's thirty-seven high schools and makes a general recommendation concerning the Chicago school system and individual reports on the schools visited. The general recommendation has not yet been received by Dr. Johnson.

State University Represented.

The individual reports were made by visiting committees including representatives of the association, of the University of Illinois, of the state office of public instruction, and of a committee of Chicago high school principals.

Almost without exception ratings of "excellent" and "very good" were given the administration, teaching staffs, and janitor service in the schools. Pupils in all schools were found to be of high morale and outstanding in citizenship qualities. In most instances scholarship was reported above average.

The relationships between administration, community, and teachers were praised in all cases. In most instances the Chicago high school system of pupil guidance and records won favorable comment.

Teacher Load Found Heavy.

In several cases the individual reports said the teacher load [the number of pupils per teacher] was either above average or heavy. According to the standards of the association the load should be thirty pupils to one teacher. Supt. Johnson reports that in Chicago high schools it is 29.6 to one. In 1936 the ratio was 31 to one. According to standard methods of computing the ratio principals, librarians and supervisory officers are counted as teachers.

Summaries of the individual reports on schools will be published in the Metropolitan sections of next Sunday's TRIBUNE.

An unidentified man, about 25 years old, was fatally injured when he stepped into the side of a truck near Kankakee. The driver was James Gray, 18, of Emington, in Livingston county.

John Hriszjko, 62, of 11938 Lowe avenue, died in the County hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Tuesday when he was struck by an automobile at 119th and Halsted streets. The car was driven by Charles White, 7824 Oglesby avenue.

Lake Veteran, 89, Dies.

Henry Birchwall, a lake boat captain for half a century, died last night at the Swedish Covenant hospital, where he was taken March 28 after he had been bruised by a truck. Birchwall, who was 89 years old, lived at 5022 North Cicero avenue. He had retired some years ago. An inquest will be held today to determine whether the injuries caused his death. The truck was driven by George Osterkamp, 4527 North Seeley avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday the automobile death toll in Cook county since Jan. 1 was 248. Of these, 192 fatalities occurred in Chicago, where 5,151 were injured in the same period.

DIXMOOR BOARD HEAD ACCUSED OF PLOTTING TO STEAL VOTE REINS

Clerk Charles Wilson of Dixmoor charged last night that Charles Special, village president, is plotting to seize control of the election machinery at a surprise meeting of the village board tonight. Wilson said Special will try to bring about appointment of his own lieutenants as election judges and clerks for the election set for next Thursday.

"It apparently doesn't matter to him that election officials already have been selected from among the town's best citizens," Wilson said.

The state's attorney's office warned several days ago that Special is trying to keep the village in the grip of his convicted speed trap machine. Special, the police magistrate he is supporting for reëlection, and three former Dixmoor police are now appealing one year sentences for conspiracy to operate a speed trap.

LEAVES LICENSE ON SCENE; FREED ON HIT-RUN COUNT

A charge of leaving the scene of an accident against Chester Lindahl was dismissed yesterday by Judge Thomas A. Green of Safety court after Lindahl explained how his license plate happened to be found on the hood of the car into which his machine crashed March 26. Lindahl, a postman, lives at 1315 Eddy street.

"I left the plate there myself, judge," said Lindahl. "A drunken driver cut me off and forced me into this parked car. I couldn't find the owner, so I left the plate so he could trace me."

Anton Zamp, a high school student, was fined $10 and ordered not to drive an automobile for a year by Judge J. M. Braude of Boys' court. Zamp admitted the car he was driving Monday when it struck another machine had no brakes. Zamp lives at 4927 Pulaski road.

J. Walter Nelson, vice president of the Nelson Brothers' Laundry company, Evanston, was fined $25 for reckless driving by Judge James M. Corcoran in Evanston Municipal court. Mrs. Bessie Holmes, 1321 Thorndale avenue, testified that Nelson's car struck her car March 10.

Jack O'Connor of 149 Kenilworth avenue, Kenilworth, was granted a jury trial by Judge Corcoran on a charge of driving while intoxicated. O'Connor pleaded not guilty. He is a son of John O'Connor, president of O'Connor & Goldberg, retail shoe company.

FREED OF ROBBERY CHARGE.

Judge George B. Weiss yesterday dismissed a charge of robbery against Walter Casper, 42 years old, 1238 North Clark street. The owner of a liquor store at 111 East Oak street identified Casper as the man who robbed him of $100 on March 29. Casper proved an alibi.

GRANT REPRIEVE FROM DEATH TO HOLDUP SLAYER

Charles Price, 25 years old, colored, convicted murderer, who was scheduled to die in the electric chair at midnight tonight, was reprieved yesterday until June 16 by the Illinois Supreme court.

Th court recalled its recent mandate, issued when it affirmed Price's conviction, in order that the case may be carried to the United States Supreme court. Attorney Richard Westbrooks said he will argue on appeal that Negroes are not properly represented on Illinois grand juries.

Price, who is in the county jail, was convicted on Feb. 9, 1938, of the murder of Nicholas Miller, 47, an insurance collector.

NEW PRINCIPALS ARE NAMED AT 4 HIGH SCHOOLS

The board of education yesterday appointed four high school principals to fill vacancies caused by retirements. Twenty-eight elementary school principals and assistant principals also were named. The high schools and new principals are: Englewood, Joseph C. Thompson, formerly at Willard elementary; Schurz, Albert Bauersfeld, formerly at Irving Park elementary; Kelly, May C. Allen, formerly at Park Manor elementary, and Fenger, James H. Smith, formerly at Sherwood elementary school.

Salaries of fifteen members of the Chicago Teachers' college faculty were increased to conform with the college's present four year schedule. John A. Bartky, president, will receive $8,000 annually, instead of the $6,500 paid formerly.

The board authorized the opening of twenty-five high and elementary summer schools from June 26 to Aug. 18. Last year twenty-two schools were opened. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, said he expects summer attendance to increase above last year's total of 10,719 pupils.

Woman, 19, Gets 9 Months for Passing Bad Checks

Judge George B. Weiss yesterday sentenced Mrs. Mary Baker, 19 years old, 1643 North Halsted street, to nine months in County jail for obtaining money under false pretenses. Police said Mrs. Baker passed ten worthless checks for $160. When arrested she was carrying a check writing machine and a book of blank checks.

TWELVE NATIONS PREPARE FOR GOLDEN GLOVES

EUROPE'S BEST TO BOX CHICAGO TEAM ON MAY 12

Ticket Sale Opens for International Show.

BY ARCH WARD.

This is an announcement of the biggest amateur boxing match scheduled for 1939.

It will bring together the champions of Europe and the best fighters developed in the Chicago Golden Gloves tournament.

The date is May 12 and the bouts will be held in Chicago Stadium. Applications for tickets will be accepted by mail starting today.

The young men from overseas will not be the champions of any one country. They will be the best of the entire continent and the British Isles.

European Finals in Dublin.

Twelve European nations will send their eight leading fighters, one at each weight, to Dublin, where one week from tomorrow they will start a three day competition that will decide the personnel of the team which will invade Chicago.

The eight champions of Europe, accompanied by four representatives of the International Boxing association, will sail from Southampton on the Normandie April 26. They are scheduled to reach Chicago May 4 after a two day sightseeing tour of New York and the world's fair, and will have eight days to make ready for their battle with our Golden Gloves champions, who already have defeated New York.

Chicagoans Never Beaten.

This will be the eighth annual international Golden Gloves show. The amateur boxing rivalry between the two continents began in 1931 when the champions of France came to Soldiers' field and took a 5 to 3 whipping. The following summer our Chicago boys held Germany's representatives to a 4 to 4 tie, and the following season defeated Ireland, 6 to 2. The bouts in 1934 were moved indoors to Chicago Stadium, where Poland's fistic ambassadors went down in defeat, 7 to 1. The next series of bouts, with Italy providing the opposition, resulted in a 5 to 3 victory for Uncle Sam's forces.

It was apparent by this time that no single European country could hold its own with the young glove wielders from Chicagoland, so the old world pooled its resources in 1937 and sent a team to Chicago that escaped with a 4 to 4 tie. Last year Chicago won from Europe's best, 5 to 3.

International Golden Gloves has produced some of the star spangled chapters of amateur boxing history. None of the 21,000 who jammed the huge west side arena last spring soon will forget the sensational one round knockout victory scored by Antoni Kolczynski of Poland over Chicago's Jimmy O'Malley. Kolczynski, who is still an amateur and is expected to defend his title successfully at Dublin, is one of the hardest punchers a Chicago boxing crowd has seen.

Kainrath's Victory Recalled.

Equally brilliant was the whirlwind contest that gave Chicago's sandy haired Frank Kainrath a decision over Ulderico Sergo of Italy in the bantamweight match. For scientific boxing and furious action it will live in international ring lore.

Chicago's 1939 representatives have proved themselves America's best. The men from Europe will be the survivors of competition that enlisted hundreds of thousands in Germany, Italy, Poland, France, Ireland, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Hungary, Switzerland, Holland, Belgium, and Esthonia.

In effect, the International Golden Gloves bouts are the Olympic games of amateur boxing. The difference is that we have them every year, not once every four years. And you can see them for the same prices that have prevailed at Golden Gloves since the inception of the tournament twelve years ago—$3.30, $2.20, $1.65, $1.10 and 55 cents.

They're Aiming Fists Toward Chicago

Antoni Kolczynski, hard punching welterweight from Poland who thrilled Golden Gloves fans last year, hopes to repeat as champion in the European finals in Dublin and qualify for the team that meets the Chicago Golden Gloves team in the Stadium May 12.

Guido Nardecchia, the Italian flyweight who as an alternate on the European team last year defeated Johnny Noto, has won the Italian title and will try for the European crown in the Dublin meet beginning April 21. Chicago fans remember him, too.

Horsemen, Derby Candidates Gather at Keeneland Today

BY HOWARD BARRY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lexington, Ky., April 12.—Horsemen have come like homing pigeons to this capital of the blue grass country In the winter they may wander to Florida or to California; in the summer they may campaign in Illinois or in New York, but each returning spring finds them reassembling in Kentucky. They are here tonight, ready for tomorrow's opening of the Keeneland meeting.

In the course of the afternoon, they will see six Kentucky Derby candidates go prancing to the post. Warren Wright will send Easy Mon into the Phoenix handicap, feature event of the day. Mrs. Payne Whitney's Roll and Toss will line up with E. F. Woodward's Viscounty in the $1,000 Crestwood. Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Sports Writer, Hal Price Headley's Atatime, and J. C. Milam's Opelika will run in the Parrish purse, an $800 event for maiden three year olds.

Derby Candidates Gather.

Twenty-six Kentucky Derby candidates are at Keeneland or on surrounding farms. During the meeting many of them will be tested for that historic race, which will be held at Churchill Downs, May 6. Out of Keeneland's biggest event, the $5,000 Blue Grass stakes, may come a strong contender for the 65th running of the Derby.

The list of famous owners represented at Keeneland reads like an Arlington or Saratoga roster. In addition to those named above are Mrs. John Hertz, John Hay Whitney, Louis B. Mayer, E. R. Bradley, and many others whose names have become associated with racing at its best.

The Keeneland course is set in a wide pastoral land of vivid green meadows, gentle hills and noble groves of oak and hickory and elm. For miles around the fields are criscrossed with immaculate white fences or inclosed within stone walls upon which ivy creeps.

Horses, Horses, Horses.

Through more than a hundred years this region has been dedicated to the rearing of the thoroughbreds. It was here that the great planters of ante bellum days bred and raced their horses. Now the men of the old south are gone and their entire type of civilization has gone with them—but the land and the horses are still here, owned by a new race of men who take just as much pride as their predecessors in the beauty of their estates and in the speed of their horses.

Nearly every one who attends the Keeneland races either owns a horse or has a relative or a close friend who owns one. Thus everything is intensely personal. There is no blatant screech from a public address system—the officials won't allow one on the grounds. There is no camera eye to photograph the finish—for Kentuckians rely on the sharp eyes of their judges.

Old-Fashion Methods.

The mechanical curse has been taken from even the totalizator, that ingenious robot which coughs up mutuel tickets. At all other tracks one must ask for a ticket by number when addressing the clerk in charge of this awesome device. But the blue grass horsemen won't stand for such a thing. Thoroughbreds will never be numbers to them—they bet on them by name.

After a spell of rain, the weather cleared today. Though the skies were brilliantly blue there was an edge on the wind in the early morning hours. The clockers' thumbs were numb as they flicked their stopwatches and said to one another, "I've got the black colt—you take the brown filly—did any one get those three coming out of the chute?"

Track Superintendent William T. Bishop stamped into the association's office under the clubhouse and said the track was getting drier every minute. "If the wind holds, it will be fast tomorrow," he forecast.

Star Jockeys Present.

This prediction was upheld by Miss Martha Brown, assistant secretary—and she should know. She has a trick doll whose dress changes color with every shift of the barometer. Before leaving home she consulted this reliable weather prophet and the verdict was fair and warmer.

Acting Racing Secretary Sidney Brown gave top weight of 122 pounds to Preëminent, owned by Hal Price Headley, in tomorrow's Phoenix handicap. Easy Mon, the only Derby candidate in this event, will get in at 104. The Fighter will carry 120, Bernard F., 115, and Torchy, 114. Others in this race are Biscayne Blue, 110; Cherryjam, 104, and Armor Bearer, 113.

INTERNATIONAL GOLDEN GLOVES

Europe's greatest amateur boxers will be here again for the eighth annual match against Chicago's Golden Gloves champions in Chicago Stadium on May 12. Mail orders now are being accepted. Send your check or money order, made payable to the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., to the Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower. The prices:

$3.30, $2.20, $1.65, $1.10 and 55 Cents

COLISEUM PUTS ON 3 TEN ROUND BOUTS TONIGHT

Franklin Aims to Pass Musto in Heavy Rankings.

Paul Hartnek, Lem Franklin, and Milo Theodorescu may have their big moments in three bouts of ten rounds heading the boxing show in the Coliseum, 15th street and Wabash avenue, tonight.

Hartnek, 1936 and 1937 Chicago Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, will be tested by Henry Wacker; Franklin, 1937 international Golden Gloves heavyweight winner, by Tony Musto, and Theodorescu, claimant of the European welterweight championship, by Milt Aron.

Though each of the matches is listed as a feature the Musto-Franklin meeting may be called the main attraction, with the Aron-Theodorescu encounter holding down the secondary position on the program.

Ah! A Grudge Fight.

Franklin will be trying to depose Musto as No. 10 challenger for Joe Louis' title and Theodorescu will seek to dethrone Aron as No. 4 contender in the 147 pound class ruled by Henry Armstrong.

Musto and his colored opponent from Cleveland have belittled each other to such an extent during the training period that a grudge has developed between the pair. This indicates they will put on a slugging match somewhat similar to the one waged by Musto and Wacker on March 2.

Musto's backers predict he will win by a knockout, a prediction ridiculed by Big Lemuel. If Franklin, one of the hardest hitters to emerge from Golden Gloves competition, scores an upset it will be the most important victory of his career. Since turning professional July 30, 1937, Lem has registered nine triumphs in thirteen appearances, eight by knockouts.

Milo Doesn't Back Up.

Musto will go into this evening's bout with twenty-five victories and one draw in twenty-seven starts. In his impressive triumph over Wacker last month Tony carried 200¼ pounds.

Aron, who is in his fifth year as a professional, will be searching for his seventh decision in a row. Theodorescu, however, is confident of snapping his string. While defeating Quentin Breese of Manhattan, Kas., in his American debut in Madison Square Garden March 29, Theodorescu demonstrated that he goes where the fighting is and expects no quarter.

Few give Hartnek, who is engaging in his first Chicago bout as a pro, a chance to last the limit against Wacker, who has sent eight of his ten previous opponents to the canvas for the count.

This prediction may be disputed by those who saw Hartnek outbox Franklin to win his Golden Gloves title two years ago. The prophecy also may be argued by Minneapolis spectators who attended Hartnek's upset of Gunnar Barlund March 24. This was Paul's first major verdict in the pro field.

Expect Capacity Crowd.

In two preliminary matches Dick Kist, Danville, Ill., middleweight, opposes Wilbur Dunn of Milwaukee for five rounds, and Al Reiss, Detroit light heavyweight, faces Mickey Hayes of Milwaukee, for four rounds.

Co-Promoters Irving Schoenwald and James C. Mullen say the advance sale has passed the $5,000 mark, which indicates a near capacity crowd of more than 8,000 will pay gate receipts exceeding $12,000.

IF the Cubs find themselves in a bad way for a first baseman this season they will not be able to recall or purchase Rip Collins from the Los Angeles team, to which he was sold outright. . . . The Los Angeles club is an affiliate of the Cubs, so the Chicago organization has no chance to get him back until after he has been subject to the annual draft next October. . . . Henry P. Edwards, director of the American league service bureau, is still carrying his right arm in a cast as a result of an accident in Florida several weeks ago. . . . Sam Snead, leading money winner of the 1938 golf season, will have to qualify for this year's national open. . . . He was not among the first thirty finishers last summer. . . . Walter Crawford of Waukegan, who will assist Bob Zuppke at Illinois next fall, lost a year's varsity competition for the Illini because he had played five minutes one season for Lake Forest college. . . . [Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Paragould, Ark., April 12.—The White Sox weren't exactly boisterous with their bats today, but there was no pressing need for such heroics. They exploded a few hits, some of them for distance, and the pitchers, Clint Brown and John Rigney, took care of the rest of the job. These two mound experts were in such rare trim that Pittsburgh's Pirates collected only hour hits, the Sox compiling an exhibition victory, 6 to 2, for their fourth decision over the National leaguers in six games.

Brown isn't a starter, his specialty being rescue acts, but there was no mistaking his effectiveness in the former rôle today. For four innings the Pirates were so painfully distressed by his variety of curves that they were unable to get a man to base. They did better in the fifth and sixth, getting a runner on in each inning. One of them traveled beyond first base. Then Rigney yielded only two hits in two innings, but one of them was a homer by Pitcher Jim Tobin with a mate on base.

Walker Is Subdued.

The Sox got a big return on their seven hits due to a trio of homers. One was the second in two days by Larry Rosenthal, subbing in center for Mike Kreevich. Another was the work of Ken Sylvestri, leading candidate for the No. 1 catching post. The third boomed off the bat of Joe Kuhel, whose spring hitting has aroused hopes that he will be a far more important workman than last season. The homers came after the Sox had scored three runs in the first two innings on hits of less violence and Tobin's wildness.

Gerald Walker, who for almost a week had been playing havoc with the cleanup spot, went hitless in four times at bat and rolled into a double play. Al Bejma took up some of the Walker slack by doubling and singling in his first two appearances, each hit being a part of the early scoring.

Brubaker Gums One Up.

Brubaker, temporarily at third for the Pirates, simplified the scoring of a run by the Sox in the first inning. Bejma, filling in at third because Marv Owen's throwing arm needs a little rest, clouted Tobin's first pitch

BROWNS POUND FRENCH, HIGBE IN 12-7 VICTORY

Climax Attack with 6 Runs in Second.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kansas City, Mo., April 12.—When Manager Gabby Hartnett read a Kansas City thermometer which showed 27 degrees he roared his desire to call off today's final with the St. Louis Browns. Hours later, after the Cubs had been chilled off by a 12 to 7 Brownie licking, he roared some more about baseball not being designed for Eskimos, etc. They were terrible—the weather and the Cubs.

The ice carnival gave the American leaguers an even break in the five game series, the first contest of which ended in a 2-all tie.

Larry French was the losing pitcher, but it wasn't really Larry's fault. Larry's support in the Browns' second inning was so bad it actually made him hot under the collar, the only warmth to be found in the largely vacant stands. No one else got very angry though. The main idea was to get the frosty afternoon over and hie to the Chicago bound caravan.

The Cubs are due to arrive at La Salle street station at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and won't care much if its ten below zero, so long as it's Chicago, where they play the Sox on Friday.

French Gets Mad.

Cub infielders, in keeping with the prevailing temperatures, were about as agile as snow men in the Browns' six run second inning. Clift opened with an easy grounder which rolled to right field when Herman, for some reason, ran to cover second with no one on base. Hoag bounced a single past Hack. Berardino bunted right into French's hands, but, when Larry turned to throw to first, he found Cavarretta standing beside him and Herman poised near second. This loaded the bases with three gents all of whom should have been retired, but instead were credited with hits.

Spindel bounced a double play ball to Hack, but Stan juggled until Clift had scored, then recovered in time to get Spindel at first. Newsom fanned. Then the chagrined French became embroiled in an argument with Umpire John Quinn and, during his fit of anger, walked Silber, Heffner, and McQuinn, the last two passes forcing runs across the plate. Bell singled, scoring Silber and Heffner, and Clift knocked his second single of the inning, scoring McQuinn. Hack threw out Hoag.

Cubs Get Going.

The Cubs thawed out enough in the third to get a run. After French had fanned, Hack walked and reached third on Herman's single to right. Hack scored while Gleeson was forcing Herman. Leiber popped out.

Newsom was replaced by Marcum after three innings and the Cubs made two runs off Johnny in the fourth. With one out Cavarretta reached second on Hoag's fumble and Garbark walked. Mesner fouled to Spindel, but French singled to right, scoring Cavarretta and putting Garbark on third. Garbark scored and

Guldahl Proves a Lead Means Nothing When He's Around

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

If there be any young men who aim to be in front of the field when the 1939 national open golf tournament enters its final eighteen holes on the afternoon of June 10, they had better stake themselves to at least a five shot advantage for the first fifty-four holes, because a lad named Ralph Guldahl will be around. Master Guldahl laughs at any one leading him by less than five strokes going into that finishing round. Being tied with Ralph at this point is becoming tantamount to finishing no better than third.

Ralph Guldahl.

There has been a suspicion abroad since Guldahl made his comeback to big time golf in the 1936 western open that the big Texan is one of the greatest finishers the game ever has seen. His most recent demonstration of this stretch running talent came in the Masters' tournament at Augusta, Ga., early this month.

Finds Self in 1936.

Guldahl was only 24 years at the time of the 1936 western open in Davenport, Ia., but he had already taken most of the knocks and bumps that can come to a young man. His victory there sent him on a comeback march which has seen him win three straight western open titles, two national open crowns, and now the Masters' championship, in which he had twice previously come home runnerup.

The several diagnoses of the Guldahl competitive temperament all agree on one point—the big boy's power of concentration. This appears to be based on a form of self-hypnosis in which large galleries and the pressure of earlier finishing scores coming out through the fairway grapevines have no effect whatsoever on him. Watching Guldahl on a round, the spectator feels that only the ball, the clubs, and the hole to be played exist for him. A storming gallery at his heels, the fact that he must shoot a 34 to tie an early leader—they just aren't there.

So Ralph Stayed with Golf.

On the eve of the 1936 western open, Guldahl made it plain that if he didn't win the tournament, he would renounce golf for selling automobiles. He was three shots back of Ray Mangrum at 54 holes, 210 shots to Ray's 207. The latter put together a pair of 35's for a last round of 70 and a 72 hole total of 277, enough to win in nearly any league. But not against Guldahl, who shot a final eighteen of 33—31—64 to win with 274.

In the 1937 national open in Detroit, Ralph showed his real mettle under pressure. At 54 holes he was tied with Sam Snead with 212, a shot back of the pacemaker, big Ed Dudley. Dudley blew up on the last round, but Snead came in with a 71 for a 283, a tough figure to lower on a national open course. Sam had just came off the eighteenth hole while Guldahl was playing the eighth. The word swept out to the latter. He got an eagle on the eighth and a deuce at the ninth for an out nine of 33. He needed a 38 on the back nine to tie Snead, but took only 36 to win by two strokes and set a world's record.

It's a Habit Now.

Last June in Denver, defending the national open, Guldahl did not set the Cherry Hills course ablaze in the first two rounds. He was four shots behind the 36 hole leader, and still four behind Dick Metz at 54 holes, 215 to Metz's 211. While Dick was having his troubles on the last eighteen, Guldahl again was whipping up a typical finishing round of 69 for a 284, which gave him the title with a six shot margin on the field.

Five days later Guldahl won the western open in St. Louis for the third time. Ralph and Snead were deadlocked at 54 holes with 214's, but while Sam was taking a respectable 72 in the stretch, Guldahl was dashing around in 65 to win by seven strokes.

Thus, it will be no shock to those who have followed him for the last three years to see Guldahl come off of the 72d green next June 1 in the big show at the Philadelphia Country club, winner of his third straight open championship.

Toronto Puts It Up to Rookies in 4th Game

Ross to Quit

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., April 12.—Art Ross will resign as manager of the Boston Bruins following the Stanley Cup playoffs, he said in an exclusive interview tonight. He said he was "simply sick of handling teams from the bench" and that "managing had gotten him down."

TORONTO, Ont., April 12.—(AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs called up the reserves today in an effort to check the Boston Bruins, who lead in their best-of-seven series for the Stanley cup two to one. The National league rivals will play the fourth game here tomorrow night.

Conny Smythe, Maple Leaf manager, drafted Robert [Red] Heron from the Syracuse "farm" of the International American league to replace his injured veteran, Harvey [Busher] Jackson, and announced he would bench Pete Langelle. Smythe figures the rookie forward is too light to stand up against the Bruins' battering, and will replace him with husky Don Metz, young brother of the Leafs' Nick Metz.

Leafs Try Out New Men.

Heron, a left winger who played a few games for Toronto early in the regular season, and Metz, who starred with the amateur Toronto Goodyears this winter, showed up best in a practice session that involved three other potential replacements—Defense Men Jack Chuck and Wally Stanowski and Goalie Phil Stein.

Jackson, whose shoulder was dislocated by a body check dished out by Eddie Shore during Boston's 3-1 victory last night, was the third left wing the Leafs lost on injuries this season. The others were Buzz Boll and George Parsons.

Bruins' Regulars Rest.

STYDAHAR WILL PLAY; IT'S GOOD NEWS FOR HALAS

Joe Says He'll Come Back and Show Critics.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

The late mail yesterday brought great cheer to George Halas, the eminent laundry magnate and merchandiser, who has not yet settled down to the task of recruiting replacements for his Chicago Bears football team.

It contained the signed contract of Joe Stydahar, the West Virginia mountaineer, who last fall announced he was through with professional football. Stydahar decided to return for another season when a business enterprise he intended to launch in Shinnston, W. Va., his home town, fell through, according to his letter to Halas.

Joe Is Burned Up.

Friends of the giant tackle were of the opinion, however, that criticism of Stydahar's play last fall, when he got off to a bad start and later was handicapped by injuries, was the chief reason for his return. Stydahar is a trifle touchy about criticism and is determined to establish once and for all that his showing in 1937 was not just a flash.

That season Stydahar won a place on THE TRIBUNE'S All-Star squad. He reported to Evanston with the collegians pretty much of an unknown, except around the Virginias where he had quite a reputation as an all around athlete, competing in basketball, track and boxing in addition to football. Truman Spain of Southern Methodist and Dick Smith of Minnesota, were the All-American tackles on that All-Star squad and started the game.

He'll Show 'Em.

But before the game had gone very far, Stydahar and Bob Reynolds of Stanford had to be rushed into action to halt the Detroit Lions. Stydahar quickly established himself as one of the outstanding linemen in the game and went on from there to become the All-National league left tackle his freshman year in professional ball.

Last year, however, he suffered a slump with most of the other members of Halas' cast and at times there was uncomplimentary mention of his work. Stydahar boiled. Apparently he is still riled, for accompanying his contract there was a note to Halas which in effect said:

"I'm getting ready to show a lot of smart alecks a little high class tackle play."

DODGERS THUMP YANKEES AGAIN; 9 TO 7 THIS TIME

Durocher's Doubles Help Brooklyn to 3d in Row.

Charlotte, N. C., April 12.—(AP)—While Dolph Camilli and Joe Di Maggio were matching home runs, the shorter range gunning of Manager Leo Durocher today gave the Brooklyn Dodgers their third straight victory over the New York Yankees, 9 to 7. Durocher had two doubles in four trips to the plate and batted in five runs.

The Dodgers teed off for five runs in the first inning off Johnny Murphy, and collected another in the third, and three more in the fifth.

GIANTS, 12; INDIANS, 8.

Greenville, Miss., April 12.—(AP)—A pitching duel between Bob Feller and Harry Gumbert reverted to the ridiculous after they left the game today and the New York Giants whipped the Cleveland Indians, 12 to 8, in ten innings.

Feller worked seven innings, yielding five runs. He had one bad inning, the fourth, when Mel Ott smacked a homer in the course of a four-run flurry. Gumbert went nine innings.

Having divided ten runs evenly between them in nine innings, the two teams then divided ten unevenly in one inning. The Giants got seven off Johnny Humphries and Cleveland collected three before Johnny Wittig could stop the attack. Score:

Walker, a Georgia native who now lives at Birmingham, Ala., rapped out a homer and three singles. Mace Fleming and Roy Cullenbine, each making only one trip to the plate, also got four baggers.

MORGAN PARK BOXER SEEKS 9TH VICTORY IN ROW

Johnny Crane of Morgan Park will attempt to stretch his winning streak to nine straight in the five round windup on the card tomorrow night in the Madison Athletic club, 4711 Madison. Crane, a middleweight, has won seven victories in successive weeks at the West Side club. Four Kankakee boxers also will appear on the card.

Oscar Rankin, Los Angeles slugger, ended training yesterday in Trafton's gymnasium for his twelve round headliner with Nate Bolden, 1937 intercity Golden Gloves middleweight winner, in White City tomorrow. After sparring two rounds with Orlando Trotter, south side light heavyweight, Rankin scaled 164 pounds, four more than the contract specifies. Rankin, who weighed 169 Sunday, said he will be unable to come in at less than 163 pounds. In an adjoining ring Bolden finished boxing by going three rounds with Luther Brent. Nate was at 156 after he took a shower. If he wins he will earn recognition as Illinois' leading contender for Solly Krieger's middleweight title. . . . F. M.

Brown, Rigney Halt Pirates; Sox Win, 6-2

for a two bagger to left center. Steinbacher punched a single past Young, Bejma going to third. Walker bounced a double play ball to Brubaker but the latter threw wild to second so nobody was retired and Bejma scored. Appling then rolled to Vaughan for a double play and Rosenthal grounded to Suhr.

Tobin made the mistake of giving a pass to his pitching opponent, Brown, to start the third inning. Bejma rifled a single between Young and Suhr. The threatened rally almost expired when Steinbacher and Walker were expunged on outfield flies but Appling furnished the necessary stimulant. He singled to center, Brown scoring and Bejma going to third. Rosenthal walked, filling the bases and when Kuhel also walked, Bejma was forced to score. McNair grounded to Brubaker for the third out.

Brown Gets Twelve in a Row.

After Brown had subdued twelve Pirates in a row, Vaughan broke the spell when he opened the fifth with an unquestionable single to center. This was cleaned up on Suhr's double play grounder to McNair, after which Young was thrown out by Appling. The Pirates had another base runner to their credit in the sixth when Brubaker doubled off the right field screen with none out. Brown quieted the next three without delay, Berres grounding to Appling, Tobin to McNair and L. Waner flying to Rosenthal.

The Sox couldn't conjure up even a one base safety against Tobin in the fourth and fifth, but they said it with power in the sixth. Rosenthal, the first man up, wafted his homer over the screen in right center. Kuhel fouled to Berres and McNair was thrown out by Brubaker. Then Sylvestri hoisted his drive over the same spot to provide the Chicagoans with a 5 to 0 lead. Brown flied to Rizzo to complete the inning.

Brown's first pass turned up at the start of the seventh, the recipient being Paul Waner, the recent holdout, who a few minutes before had started his spring training by going to his customary berth in right field. A double play started by Rookie Gedzius on Rizzo's grounder eliminated P. Waner from the base lines. A pass to Vaughan was next, but Suhr flied to Rosenthal.

Tobin Blasts One.

Rigney disposed of Young in the eighth on a grounder to Bejma before handing free passage to Brubaker. Gedzius, who was at short during the last three innings because Appling's arm tightened up in the chilly air, made a dandy pickup and throw on Berres to force Brubaker at second. Next came Tobin's homer over the left field fence for the Pirates' runs. The Sox retrieved one of these in the eighth on Kuhel's homer.

The Pirates' fourth and last hit was Rizzo's single to center with one out in the ninth. He was forced at second on Vaughan's roller to Kuhel, and Vaughan was forced on Suhr's roller to Kuhel.

Manager Dykes announced today that he had decided how he is going to employ his pitchers for the remainder of the spring battles, hoping, of course, that nothing goes wrong to disturb the arrangement. For tomorrow's concluding argument with the Pirates at Owensboro, Ky., Bill Dietrich will start and endeavor to hold out for seven innings after which Thornton Lee will do two innings of southpawing.

Rigney May Pitch Opener.

When the final four battles of the spring city series with the Cubs are taken up in Chicago Friday afternoon the Sox pitcher at the start will be Rigney, who will be succeeded by Jack Knott. The Rigney nomination for this engagement makes it a certainty so far as anything is certain in baseball, that the youngster is going to draw the season's opener at Detroit next Tuesday.

For Saturday's game with the Cubs it will be Ted Lyons and John Whitehead, for the Sunday affair Thornton Lee and Brown. Dietrich and Art Herring will pitch the Monty Stratton benefit at Comiskey park on Monday.

Stratton Comes to Town Today; Will Join Sox

Harry Grabiner, the busy little man who handles the bulk of the White Sox business, was busier than usual yesterday. He was trying to find some one who would guarantee a stretch of weather suitable for the playing of four baseball games — especially the fourth one — starting tomorrow.

The fourth one is the Monty Stratton benefit game and if fair weather obtains the unfortunate youngster whose promising pitching career was cut short by the loss of his right leg last fall, stands to receive $25,000.

"We've done all we can to make it a success," said Grabiner. "Now it is strictly up to the weather man."

He was cheered by reports of rising temperature for today and will settle for a reading in the sixties, either low or high.

Stratton will hold court for newspapermen at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at Comiskey park. In the afternoon he will accompany the White Sox to Wrigley field for the first of four scheduled games against the Cubs. The benefit game will be played in Comiskey park as will the Saturday contest.

Bowls 36 Years Before He Rolls Perfect Game

Kewanee, Ill., April 12.—[Special.]—Frank Mang, who has been bowling for thirty-six years, today rolled a perfect game.

Browns Pound French, Higbe; Beat Cubs, 12-7

French moved up on a balk. Hack then bounced to Berardino.

The Browns produced a run after two were out in the fifth. Singles by Berardino, Spindel, and Marcum accounted for it.

Al Epperly gave up a run in the sixth and the Cubs countered with a pair on a double by Garbark, a single by Mesner, a double by Epperly, and a sacrifice fly by Herman.

The Cubs had the bases loaded—the tying run on second—with one out in the seventh—but Mesner fanned. Hartnett batted for Epperly and walked, forcing in Leiber. Murello ran for Hartnett. Cole tossed out Hack.

Higbe, in the eighth, struck out Silber and made Gryska and Sullivan lift easy flies. Herman opened the Cub eighth with his third single and advanced on G. Russell's sacrifice, but Leiber and Marty knocked soft flies.

The Browns were rough on Higbe in the ninth. They made runs on an assortment of doubles, walks, and throwing errors by Garbark and Mesner.

N. U. ATHLETES NAMED WESLEYAN ATHLETIC HEADS

Don Heap and Bob Voigts of Northwestern university have been named football and basketball coaches of Illinois Wesleyan university, according to announcement yesterday by President Wiley G. Brooks of the Bloomington, Ill., school.

Heap, who was graduated from Northwestern last spring after three years of football competition, will be head football coach, with Voigts as his assistant. Voigts, who has completed three years' competition in football and basketball and will receive his diploma this spring, will be head basketball coach. Heap will assist. Both will be employed in the physical education department.

Appointment of Heap and Voigts fills the vacancy created by the resignation of Harry Bell during the last basketball season.

H. F. Parker, director of physical education and varsity baseball coach at Illinois Wesleyan tendered his resignation yesterday.

It's "Play Ball!" in Association Today; 4 Games

Columbus, O., April 12.—(AP)—The thirty-eighth American association baseball season will open tomorrow. In Columbus, Toledo, Indianapolis, and Louisville, everything was ready tonight to play ball except the weather. Freezing temperatures prevailed in all four cities and the best the weather bureau had to offer was a "slightly warmer" forecast for tomorrow.

Kansas City, a heavy favorite to retain the championship it won last year, meets the Indianapolis Indians; Louisville under a new régime, will play host to Milwaukee; while St. Paul plays at Toledo, and Minneapolis faces Columbus.

The association hoped to play to 40,000 on the first day, but unless favorable last-minute weather changes occur, indications were that attendance would be only about half that.

George Trautman, president of the league, went to Louisville, which was expected to attract the largest crowd, about 13,000. The probable starting batteries there were Jungels and Hernandez for Milwaukee and Wagner and Madjeski for the Colonels.

Barnes and Parsons for Toledo, and Brown and Pasek for St. Paul were announced at Toledo, but both teams were warned there might be a last-minute postponement.

Burt Shotton of Columbus was the only manager who had not decided on his opening day pitcher. He was expected to choose either Fisher or Andrews, with Bremer catching. The Minneapolis selections were Smythe and Denning.

At Indianapolis, Logan and W. Lewis were to work for the Indians, and Vance and McCullough for Kansas City. These teams and Louisville and Milwaukee took light workouts today, but cold weather forced cancelation of warmup sessions at Columbus and Toledo.

Manhattans Meet Sparta in Peel Cup Play Sunday

The Manhattan Brewer soccer team, national cup finalist, will start the defense of the Peel cup when it meets the Spartas in the Sparta stadium Sunday in the first match of a two game series. The series will be decided on a total goal basis. Jimmy Lillie, left winger, Clem Cuthbert, veteran inside left, and Capt. Weck Henney of the Manhattans are doubtful starters because of injuries.

NORTHWESTERN NET TEAM OPENS OUTDOOR DRILL

Northwestern university's tennis team began outdoor drills yesterday in preparation for its spring schedule, which will open April 28 against Marquette. Five of last year's seven letter men turned out for the squad.

Marvin Wachman, runner-up in the Big Ten singles last season, will hold down the No. 1 position. Wachman paired with Bob Riggs to win the western indoor doubles championship last winter.

Other letter men available are Frank Froehling, winner of the Chicago 1939 indoor title; Harrison O'Neil, Jerry Clifford, and W. MacDonald Milne.

Last year the Wildcats won ten out of thirteen matches, dropping two to Chicago and one to Kenyon college.

BARTELL LEAVES HOSPITAL; CALLS FOR HIS UNIFORM

Dick Bartell, the Cubs' $24,000 a year shortstop, yesterday left Masonic hospital after eight days of treatment and rest for his left ankle. Bartell said the ankle felt stronger than at any time since he injured it March 12 and that he expected to be in uniform when the Cubs open their spring city series against the White Sox tomorrow.

Augie Galan, the Cub outfielder whose ailing knee resulted in his being sent home from the training tour, will remain in the hospital for an indefinite period, according to Dr. John F. Davis, team physician.

FORTY GYMNASTS WORK SATURDAY IN N.C.A.A. MEET

Maroons to Defend Title; Illinois Is Favorite.

Forty of the most proficient college gymnasts in the country, representing nine schools, will compete in the National Collegiate A. A. meet at the University of Chicago Saturday night. Chicago will defend its national title, won last year.

Defending champions will compete in every event, and one newcomer is expected to better the world's record in the rope climb.

Ray Belardi, of Army, has already ascended the twenty feet of hawser in :03.8 to tie the world mark. Bob Sears, another West Pointer, who won the event last year, will also compete. Sears will also defend the horizontal bar title he won last year.

Beyer Defends Three Titles.

Capt. Erwin Beyer of Chicago, will strive to maintain his parallel bar, side horse, and long horse championships, and Capt. Joe Giallombardo, of Illinois, Big Ten champion, will defend his flying rings and tumbling titles.

Dave Danser and Adam Walters will be the all around competitors to represent Temple, recent winners of the eastern intercollegiate title. Sam Fogl, a skillful tumbler, will compete for the Philadelphians in that division.

Besides Sears and Belardi, Army will send Whalen, a capable side and long horse performer. Minnesota, runnerup in the Big Ten meet, will send a six man team headed by Capt. Curtis Lynum.

Illinois Is Favorite.

Illinois, generally favored to take the meet this year because of its showing in the Big Ten, will send the largest group, including Giallombardo, Paul Fina, another brilliant all around man, and Ray Weiss, a tumbler.

BENEFACTOR OUT OF DERBY, SAYS OWNER BRADLEY

Lexington, Ky., April 12.—(AP)—E. R. Bradley tonight said he would withdraw Benefactor, his only nominee, from this year's Kentucky Derby because of an injury the big colt suffered in training. The speedy son of Blue Larkspur and Patroness pulled up with an inflamed tendon in his left foreleg last week.

"I don't know how long the injury will last," Bradley said after examining the colt with a veterinary, "but it would be unwise to run the risk of possibly sacrificing a great colt like Benefactor by persevering in his Derby training."

Burman to Meet Farr Tonight in 12 Round Bout

LONDON, April 12.—(AP)—Tommy Farr, back home and hungry again, was the 4 to 5 favorite today to beat America's Red Burman in their 12 round fight at Harringay tomorrow night. The experts have decided Tommy will win because, as they explain, Burman's New York victory over the Welshman was merely due to peculiarities of the American ring. Burman outpointed Farr in a closely fought ten rounder in Madison Square Garden last January.

CRANE TECH WINS.

WEST POINT LOW ON COAL; GOES ON RATION BASIS

Treasury Moves to Protect Hospitals.

New York, April 12.—(AP)—Federal government agencies took precautions today against a coal shortage affecting their own buildings. Steps were decided upon as union representatives and bituminous coal operators continued their month long negotiations here for a new labor contract covering 338,000 Appalachian area miners. Mines in the area were shut down April 3.

The United States Military academy at West Point rationed its coal under an order by Brig. Gen. Jay L. Benedict, the superintendent, for the strictest conservation." Use of power driven machinery was discontinued and heat was reduced.

In Washington the treasury department directed that a quick survey be made to determine whether the public health service's marine hospitals had enough coal.

Capitol Plant Runs Low.

The treasury estimated that the central heating plant for government buildings had a ten day supply, and the capitol plant enough for five days. By apportioning the available fuel, officials said, all government buildings could be heated for eight days.

Mayor La Guardia of New York telephoned John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers [C. I. O.] and head of the U. M. W. delegation of conferees, asking assurances that no essential city service would suffer in the event of emergency."

Lewis announced the committee had agreed to hear Mayor La Guardia tomorrow morning. He said the mayor called "attention to the menacing shortage affecting various facilities of the city of New York" and asked permission to discuss the situation with the negotiators.

Reports Other Shortages.

Lewis added additional messages from short of coal were received, and Charles O'Neill, spokesman for the operators, said:

"We admit shortages of coal or possible shortages at public institutions and plants of other consumers. We are not prepared to say how serious this situation may be as a whole. The operators are trying to bring this strike to a close so all who want coal may get it."

Coincidentally with these statements issued at the close of another futile day of negotiation, the National Coal association announced a survey showed the shutdown has not as yet resulted in any serious shortage of fuel," and that "there is no fuel famine in sight."

The negotiators ended their day with a press conference. Lewis and O'Neill did all the talking.

"Stupid Lockout," Says Lewis.

"The conference endured another fruitless day without conclusions or results." Lewis said, "in the meantime this stupid lockout continues."

O'Neill commented on his earlier use of the word "strike," saying: "The operators believed the word 'strike' just as applicable to this situation as the word 'lockout.'"

Other exchanges followed, after which the conferees recessed until 10 a. m. tomorrow.

The miners in the eight-state Appalachian area have been idle since April 3, in a shutdown which followed the failure of negotiators to arrive at a new contract to replace the one which expired March 31.

Lewis now threatens to call out all miners in the rest of the soft coal industry. Also, by implication, he has threatened to stop work in the anthracite fields, covered by a contract which will expire April 30.

Demand Closed Shop.

As far as could be learned the chief issue still is the union's insistence upon either the closed, or union, shop, or alternatively, the elimination from district contracts of provisions for penalties against strikes.

At the start of the negotiations on March 14 the miners asked a 50 cent increase over the old rate of $6 a day in the north and $5.60 in the south. The operators countered with a proposal for a 50 cent cut. Recently the whole question of wages apparently has been set aside.

Meanwhile, a disturbance was reported at Kitts, Ky. Several shots were fired in what a deputy sheriff said was a clash between a group of 300 to 500 idle miners and men working on equipment at a coal company tipple. No one was wounded.

CHICAGO MARKET STEADY.

The shutdown in the Appalachian soft coal fields has had little effect so far on the Chicago area, dealers said yesterday. Fred S. Wilkie, secretary of the Illinois Coal Operators' association, pointed out that Illinois mines are being worked under a temporary agreement pending the writing of a new contract.

A spokesman for Chicago retail dealers said prices are being maintained at the levels that prevailed before the eastern shutdown.

A Ribbon Man Snarls Western Union Meeting

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—The annual meeting of the Western Union Telegraph company recessed in an uproar late today in the midst of a battle against the management waged by a small New York ribbon dealer.

Roy B. White rolled by stockholders.

After five hours of proxy counting, accompanied by argument, boos and cheers, the management gave up an attempt to finish the tabulation and the ballots were hauled away under guard to a safe deposit vault. The session will be resumed tomorrow morning.

No stormier meeting ever was held in the history of the company, Wall street veterans said. The proceedings became so bitter at one point that Roy B. White, president, brusquely asked a stockholder: "Do you want an argument?"

In Walks Ribbon Man.

When the meeting opened Arthur C. Flatto, the ribbon dealer and bitter critic of the Western Union management, marched in with an armful of proxies, announced he represented a fourth of the company's common shareholders and demanded minority representation on the board.

Addressing a record turnout of more than 250 stockholders, Flatto charged that the management had proved itself ineffective and inexperienced in handling the company's financial affairs.

He said he had proxy cards representing 9,000 individual stockholders owning 250,000 of the company's outstanding 1,045,278 common shares—proxies he had gathered through a plea mailed to holders. He contended these holders had a right to a voice in the company's affairs.

Flatto, chairman of an opposition proxy committee, said he admitted the management had more than enough votes to reëlect the present slate of twenty-one directors, but he insisted the minority interest he represented should have some recognition.

Carlton Refuses to Yield.

However, Newcomb Carlton, chairman of the board, told the meeting that management proxies would be voted for present directors as planned. He added the management had more than a majority of the outstanding stock.

Encouraged by Flatto, many other stockholders berated the present officers as the meeting progressed.

In the midst of the tumult the ballot counting then began, but when 5 o'clock rolled around with the task still unfinished, the recess was ordered. An announcement of the vote is expected by noon tomorrow.

White, commenting on the company's outlook, said, "A revival in general business, which appears to have just begun, should enhance the company's 1939 revenues."

Income Tax Collections $7,562,574 in Ten Days

Washington, D. C., April 12.—[Special.]—Income tax collections in the first ten days of April totaled $7,562,574, the treasury announced today. The collections were slightly larger than for the corresponding 1938 period, when they amounted to $7,411,458. For the fiscal year to date income tax collections totaled $1,752,088,605, compared with $2,002,484,802 in the corresponding period of the preceding fiscal year.

FARMERS TO GET FULL BENEFIT PAYMENTS IF THEY PLANT NO CROPS

Washington, D. C., April 12.—(AP)—The agriculture department prepared regulations today which would permit farmers to collect benefit payments under the farm law even though they planted no crops. The regulations will be based on an amendment to the 1937 farm act signed by President Roosevelt Monday.

The amendment provides that a cotton, corn, wheat, rice, or tobacco farmer will be eligible for full benefit payments on the normal production of his acreage allotment, provided he plant within that allotment. Officials said a farmer with an allotment who planted no crops would be eligible for the full amount.

Previously, a farmer who planted less than 80 per cent of his acreage allotment got benefit payments on the normal production of acreage equal to 125 per cent of what he actually planted. Thus a farmer with an allotment of 100 acres who planted only but fifty acres received the benefit payments on the normal production of 62.5 acreage. Now he will receive payments of the full 100 acres.

COURT ENJOINS PUBLISHING OF SALARY BOOK

New York, April 12.—(AP)—Rembert B. Wurlitzer, vice president of the Rudolph Wurlitzer company, today obtained a temporary injunction barring the Universal syndicate from publishing and circulating a book entitled "Salary Directory" in which, he said, his salary was inaccurately reported at $60,000 annually.

Wurlitzer was ordered to post $250 bond to guarantee court costs in a suit against the syndicate and Nicolai S. Stevenson, S. Stanoyevich, and Milivoy Stanoyevich.

Wurlitzer seeks $50,000 damages on the charge that inaccurate statement of his salary had caused trouble among employés in the company's Chicago offices and that such publication left him a target of would-be extortionists.

UTILITY STUDIES PROPOSALS FOR RECAPITALIZING

Studies are being made of plans for recapitalization of the Central and South West Utilities company, Gail Belden, president, told stockholders in his annual report yesterday. The program, he said, will eliminate dividend arrears and provide a simple corporate structure.

Belden said that no definite plan has as yet been approved by the board of directors, and pointed out that before any plan can be submitted to stockholders it must be submitted to and approved by the Securities and Exchange commission.

The company reported consolidated net income of $2,916,880 for 1938 compared with $2,718,343 in the preceding year. Operating revenues totaled $31,025,738 against $30,415,304.

FSCC Plans to Purchase 300,000 Bushels Corn Meal

Washington, D. C., April 12.—(AP)—The Federal Surplus Commodities corporation said today it would request bids late this month or early in May on not more than 300,000 bushels of corn meal.

U. S. Controls 91.8 Per Cent of Butter Supply

Control of 91.8 per cent of the reserve butter in the country's cold storage warehouses is in the hands of the federal government, it was disclosed yesterday in a monthly inventory report of the bureau of agricultural economics.

Of an estimated 78,816,000 pound reserve April 1, the government's holdings totaled 72,355,000 pounds, the bureau reported. The reserve on April 1 represented an all-time peak for that date, and compared with 14,387,000 pounds a year earlier.

In a period covering all of 1938 and the first two and a half months of 1939 the government financed the purchase and partial distribution of 155,000,000 pounds of butter in an attempt to stabilize dairy products prices.

Bought Through DPMA.

The present reserve represents the undistributed portion of the government's purchases of butter on the open market. Purchases were made through the Dairy Products Marketing association and the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation, both government financed agencies. When the government "temporarily" discontinued its buying of butter in mid-March, prices immediately fell to the lowest levels since August, 1935. The 92 score grade, which had been pegged at 25½ cents a pound since June, 1938, dropped 1¾ cents to 23¾ cents. It is currently selling at 22½ cents.

Shell Egg Stocks Rise.

The bureau of agricultural economics also reported an increase of 929,000 cases in warehouse stocks of shell eggs during March, raising the total to 1,094,000 cases April 1. Total reserves of shell and canned eggs on the same date aggregated 2,823,000 cases.

Cheese supplies in store declined 10,453,000 pounds to 66,817,000 pounds April 1, the bureau said, and poultry holdings decreased normally to 90,965,000 pounds.

AUTO TRANSPORT RATE STRUGGLE TO BE PROBED

Washington, D. C., April 12.—(AP)—Two federal transportation regulatory agencies announced today they would investigate a complaint by the National Automobile Transporters Association, Inc., that railroads and trucks had become engaged in a nation-wide rate war for the business of transporting automobiles from factories to dealers.

The interstate commerce commission will conduct the investigation jointly with the maritime commission. Hearings will be held at Chicago [in Hotel Sherman] June 13.

General Mills to Build New Plants at Buffalo

Minneapolis, Minn., April 12.—[Special.]—General Mills, Inc., announced today it will erect new plants at Buffalo, N. Y., this year for manufacture of breakfast cereals and other packaged foods, and for storage of flour. The project will cost about $2,000,000. The company already has mills and elevators in Buffalo.

HOUSE AMENDS FHA TO PREVENT LAND WRITEUPS

Rep. Cochran Feared National Scandal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 12.—Over administration protests the house today approved an amendment to the federal housing act designed to prevent promoters of multi-family housing projects from writing up land values as a means of providing the required 20 per cent local contribution.

Rep. Cochran charges land value writeup.

Despite statements by Democratic leaders that the amendment would cripple the housing act, preventing the FHA from aiding in the financing of big apartment projects, the house indorsed the amendment by a record vote of 199 to 142.

Extension of the remaining powers of the FHA for two years and raising from 3 billion to 4 billion dollars the amount of mortgages it may insure were then approved by the members by a voice vote. The bill now goes to the senate.

Feared National Scandal.

The amendment which will "scuttle" the housing act, according to administration spokesmen, was sponsored by Representative John J. Cochran [D., Mo.]. He charged the "overnight writeup" of land values in connection with two St. Louis projects and urged the house to act lest a national scandal result from a continuation of this practice.

After the house had tentatively approved this amendment by a teller vote yesterday, Majority Leader Sam Rayburn forced an adjournment in the hope that pressure might gain enough votes to defeat the amendment on the record vote today. He was unsuccessful, Republicans joining with Democrats to write the Cochran proposal into the measure.

Cochran proposed that in estimating the value of property involved in a multifamily project, the administrator be required to determine its worth as of the date of application for FHA insurance. This, he pointed out, would prevent writeups from $35,000 to $71,000, or $170,000 to $300,000, such as, he said, were effected on the projects in his home district of St. Louis.

Extended to July 1, 1941.

The FHA would expire June 30 if its powers were not continued by congress. The bill extends the agency to July 1, 1941. As passed by the house, the FHA bill makes the following changes in existing law:

1. Elimination of a section permitting insurance of mortgages on apartment buildings costing from $16,000 to $200,000.

2. A reduction from $10,000 to $2,500 in the amount of a home modernization loan eligible for insurance.

3. An annual premium charge of 1 per cent of the original amount of the modernization loan, with the purpose of making this phase of the housing program self-sustaining.

The 1 billion dollar increase in the FHA's mortgage limit was a compromise. The agency wanted a 3 billion dollar boost and the Home Owners' Loan corporation opposed any increase.

Libbey-Owens' Earnings Rise in First Quarter

First quarter corporation earnings statements made public yesterday mainly showed decided gains over a year ago. Earnings reported for 1938 were generally below those of 1937.

John D. Biggers.

Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company turned a $371,527 net loss in the first quarter of last year into a $1,722,780 net income in the initial 1939 quarter, the company reported. This was equal to 69 cents a common share.

John D. Biggers, president, said the immediate prospect for the second quarter is not so favorable. He explained that the turmoil in Europe and the uncertainty in the United States had resulted in a decline in orders recently.

Bliss & Laughlin Gains.

Bliss & Laughlin, Inc., reported net income of $129,740 for the first quarter, equal to 75 cents a common share. The company had a net loss of $30,731 in the corresponding 1938 period. It manufactures and sells a complete line of cold finished bar steel products.

Earnings of Flintkote company for the first twelve weeks of 1938 were the highest in any initial quarter in the last ten years with the exception of 1937, the company reported. Net income for the twelve weeks ended March 25 totaled $102,494, or 15 cents a share, against $3,397, or less than 1 cent a share, in 1938.

Sales Are Increasing.

Sales of the company during the current quarter are showing a decided upturn, I. J. Harvey, president, told stockholders in the annual report. Volume is higher than in March and much ahead of April last year, he said. The company's main source of income is the manufacture and sale of building material products.

WAR RISK INSURANCE ON GERMAN, ITALIAN GOODS WITHDRAWN

New York, April 12.—(AP)—Underwriters, expressing fear of a European war, have withdrawn war risk insurance rates on shipments to and from Germany and Italy and on shipments in Italian or German vessels. They also have advanced war risk rates to some other ports.

The underwriters said they would quote rates for Italian and German coverage only upon application and that the rates would depend on the likelihood of war at the moment. Advances ranged from 100 to 200 per cent above the increased levels established March 31.

Since April 1 German imports have been covered at ⅛ of 1 per cent of cargo value, while exports were covered at ¼ of 1 per cent. Shipments to and from Italy took ⅜ of 1 per cent.

Mediterranean and Black sea rates were advanced tonight from ⅜ to 1 per cent for imports and exports. Import rates for the United Kingdom rose from ⅛ to ⅜ of 1 per cent and export rates from ¼ to ⅜ of 1 per cent.

PLOT INVOLVING FORBIDDEN GOLD COINS DISCLOSED

San Francisco, Cal., April 12.—(AP)—The United States secret service said tonight it had uncovered the "biggest gold coin conspiracy" on record in the United States, with ramifications from San Francisco to New York.

Federal indictments against thirteen men now in custody will be sought here tomorrow. Detained in New York was a man listed here as Morris Anolik, to whom Capt. Thomas Foster of the secret service said was shipped $100,000 in genuine gold coins for disposal. The other twelve were held in California.

Capt. Foster reported jewelers and jewel brokers were collecting gold pieces from hoarders who had disregarded the gold reserve act and the President's proclamation of 1933.

The secret service theorized the coins might have been melted down and resold to the United States mint. Since a $20 coin contains an ounce of gold, the present scale of $35 an ounce would provide a gross profit of $15 on each such piece.

CHICAGO HOLDS KEY POSITION IN BUSINESS OF U.S.

Study Reveals Rank of Its Activities.

Chicago holds the key position in the nation for manufacturing and distribution. This is shown in a study of distribution services and costs made by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday. The national chamber's study was based on figures compiled by the United States bureau of census.

The Chicago association, in analyzing the study, pointed out that in numerous census bureau compilations the nation is divided into nine principal economic regions, with the New York and Chicago areas the most important.

New York City is rated the chief distributing point in the middle Atlantic and New England division which include New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and all the New England states.

Chicago Center of Big Area.

Chicago is held to be the recognized center of activity for the east north central and west north central divisions which include Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, the Dakotas, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, and Kansas. The Chicago and New York areas combined do about two-thirds of all the retail and manufacturing business in the country.

The Chicago Association of Commerce pointed out that comparative statistics covering these two areas, as compiled by the United States chamber, demonstrate the importance of Chicago's position. They show that the Chicago trading area embraces 30.7 per cent of the country's population compared with 28 per cent in the New York trading area. The Chicago area contains 41.3 per cent of the country's agricultural production against 11.2 per cent in the New York area. In manufacturing the Chicago area produces 39.2 per cent of all manufactured products in the nation. New York's area produces 36.7 per cent.

New York Leads Retailing.

Retail distribution is the only classification in which the New York district leads the Chicago area, the association of commerce said. And in this New York's margin of leadership is slight. The New York area does 33.7 per cent of the country's retail trade compared with 32.2 per cent for the Chicago area.

The study shows the importance of Illinois in manufacturing activity. In a list of twenty-eight selected consumer goods industries, there are ten in which Illinois production leads all other states. No other state approaches this record. Among the items of production in which Illinois leads are washing and ironing machines, perfumes, soaps, and cosmetics, radios and phonographs, macaroni and spaghetti, leather gloves and mittens, confectionery, and books and pamphlets.

Annual Meeting Costs Railroad $40, New Low

New York, April 12.—[Special.]—A new low in the cost of calling an annual meeting of stockholders was disclosed by the Beach Creek railroad in its proxy notice. The estimated cost was $40. The explanation was that the company is controlled by the New York Central, which will pay the $40. This contrasts with a cost of $10,000 for the Pennsylvania railroad's meeting yesterday.

New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 12.—The stock market worked higher today, with the financial district inclined to view the European situation as having become less threatening. Despite some easing near the close, gains ranging from fractions to about a point were scattered freely throughout the list. Sensitive issues climbed as much as 4 points.

The turnover was the smallest in a week, only 1,072,210 shares changing hands, compared with 1,662,520 on Tuesday. Of 786 issues traded 635 advanced, 55 declined and 96 closed unchanged.

The recovery was ascribed in a large degree to technical influences resulting from the market's recent sharp reverses.

Motors, steels, rubbers, and coppers were in demand. General Motors jumped 1¼ points. Chrysler closed up ½ point after being about 2 points higher at one time.

United States Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube made fractional gains.

United States Rubber led its group higher. Anaconda paced the copper shares, among which International Nickel and Kennecott scored more than a point apiece.

American Telephone was a leader in the utility division, rising 2⅝ points. Power and light shares were fractionally higher.

Key rail stocks attracted improved attention. Santa Fe and Union Pacific advanced 1 and 2½ points respectively.

Loft again took volume honors. It closed ½ point lower.

Aviation issues closed mostly fractionally higher, with Glenn Martin most active in the group.

Among chemicals, du Pont jumped 3¼ points, Union Carbide 2½.

New York Bonds.

New York, April 12.—(AP)—The recently erratic bond market pulled itself together today and registered an impressive number of gains on a moderate trading volume.

Return of an active buying interest coincided with favorable interpretations of yesterday's and today's developments in the European situation and some encouraging reports from executives at corporate annual meetings.

Rail loans led the rebound with gains running to around three points.

Treasury issues had advances ranging up to 14-32ds point, and a minor number of losses to 11-32ds. Obligations of Rome, Belgium, Germany, and Australia pushed ahead fractions to around 2 points.

Chicago Stocks.

Prices on the Chicago Stock exchange advanced fractionally to more than a point yesterday. Trading, amounting to 31,000 shares, was at a somewhat slower pace than in recent sessions. The Chicago Tribune average closed at 9.15 against 8.88 Tuesday.

Chicago corporation, the volume leader, went against the trend to close ⅛ lower at 1¼. Turnover in this issue amounted to 3,100 shares. Zenith radio was actively traded and gained ⅞ to 14⅛. Middle West, Bendix Aviation, and Commonwealth Edison also added fractions.

Of 111 issues traded, 77 advanced, 16 declined, and 18 closed unchanged.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks were irregular yesterday in light trading, dealers reported. Nominal closing bids were $3 lower to $2 higher. Chicago Title and Trust shares declined $3 and American National, $2. Continental Illinois stock gained 50 cents; City National, $1; First National and Harris Trust, $2 each.

UTILITY AND TVA REACH TERMS ON SALES CONTRACT

But Congressional Act Is Required.

New York, April 12.—(AP)—The historic "public versus private ownership" fight between Commonwealth and Southern corporation and the Tennessee Valley authority was nearer peaceful solution today as representatives of both sides reported they had agreed, after long negotiations, on a sale contract.

Wendell Willkie lauds "spirit of amity."

This pact, not to be signed until June 20, after more than a score of intermediate ratifications are obtained, provides for the sale to TVA and associated municipalities and rural coöperatives of electric power properties in Tennessee owned by a Commonwealth subsidiary, Tennessee Electric Power company.

Terms of Purchase.

As previously predicted TVA will pay Commonwealth and Southern about $43,000,000 for the electric properties of the subsidiary. Municipalities and coöperatives will purchase local distribution systems for $37,000,000, and miscellaneous adjustments will bring the basic purchase price up to $80,000,000.

Among obstacles to completion of the agreement, congress must change national law to permit TVA to buy the properties affected. Negotiators said they feared spirited opposition to the pending Norris amendment on the part of coal interests and a group of taxpayers which alleges the state would lose $3,000,000 to $3,600,000 yearly in taxes if the deal goes through.

"Spirit of Amity Prevailed."

However, Wendell L. Willkie, president of C. & S., praised the "spirit of amity which prevailed" during the technical negotiations here in working out details of the contract.

TVA and C. & S. negotiators will meet again here, it was said, in about two weeks, to commence negotiations for sale of northern properties of Alabama Power company and Mississippi Power company, also C. & S. subsidiaries, to TVA.

Subpena Cudahy Books in U. S. Fertilizer Probe

New York, April 12.—(AP)—Federal Judge Murray Hulbert today signed an order requiring Cudahy Packing company of Chicago to produce certain books and records within twenty days for use by a federal grand jury conducting an anti-trust investigation of the fertilizer industry. Although Cudahy's annual business totals $200,000,000, attorneys for the company pointed out that its fertilizer sales approximate only $50,000 a year.

The report estimated the state's total 1938 production at 23,929,000 barrels. There were 205 producing wells completed in Illinois in February, the report said, bringing the total number of wells in the new development to 2,780. The Lake Centralia-Salem pool led in number of producers with 762; Fayette county fields had 742 new wells, and the Centralia pool had 545.

Ten counties were included in the oil producing areas of the new development. They were Bond, Washington, Fayette, Marion, Clinton, Jefferson, Coles, Clay, Wayne, and Richland.

MORE BIG FIRMS REPORT UPSWING IN 1ST QUARTER

But Inform Stockholders Outlook Is Clouded.

Improved earnings in the first quarter of 1939 compared with 1938 were reported yesterday at the annual meetings of a number of large corporations. Among these were the Stewart-Warner corporation, Chicago; Westinghouse Electric, and Manufacturing company, Pittsburgh; American Radiator and Standard Sanitary corporation, New York; Bendix Aviation corporation, South Bend, Ind., and the General Foods corporation, New York.

A. W. Robertson expects 1939 business to exceed 1938.

Officials of several companies said, however, that the outlook is clouded by European troubles.

J. S. Knowlson, chairman, said at Stewart-Warner's annual meeting in Richmond, Va., that preliminary figures indicate a first quarter profit of more than $145,000, compared with a $215,000 loss in the corresponding 1938 period.

Notes World Uncertainty.

"Were it not for the general feeling of uncertainty throughout the world," he said, "we could feel quite confident that business was on the mend."

Orders of Westinghouse Electric in the first quarter were the largest for any quarter since that which ended June 30, 1937. Totaling $50,120,832, they showed a 32 per cent increase over the $37,998,569 total reported for the first 1938 quarter.

Andrew W. Robertson, chairman, said there may be a slight recession this summer, but that the expectations are still strong that 1939 will be a better year than 1938.

American Radiator looks forward to the best year since 1929, and, barring a war, should have results that will be satisfactory to stockholders, Henry M. Reed, chairman and president, told the stockholders. Although figures for March have not yet been completed, he said the corporation currently is operating on a profitable basis and it made a profit in the first quarter.

Sales Above Year Ago.

Reed said gross sales in the first two months of 1939 were 13.3 per cent larger than in the 1938 period and that the increase of March over March, 1938, is estimated at 20 per cent. The European business is yielding substantial profits, Reed said.

Stockholders approved the writing down of certain assets and the adoption of a retirement plan for employés earning more than $3,000 a year.

Bendix Aviation had a net profit of approximately $1,000,000, equal to 50 cents a share, in the first quarter of 1939, compared with a $561,605 loss in the like 1938 quarter. Vincent Bendix, president, said the improved profit resulted from a fortunate combination of circumstances, including larger sales of profitable items, reduced expenses, and the elimination of unprofitable operations.

Automotive Operations Rise.

"Improvement in the company's automotive operations, where volume increased more than 50 per cent, accounted for most of the gains, although the aircraft division also contributed substantially to the improved profit," Bendix said. He added that the volume of aircraft products required in the nation's defense program will tax to the limit the capacity of the aircraft division.

General Foods' first quarter sales, totaling $36,544,019, were the largest for any quarter in the history of the company, Colby M. Chester, president, stated. Sales in the like 1938 period totaled $34,265,086. Chester said the first quarter profit was $4,082,316, equal to 74 cents a share on the common stock, against $3,375,727, equal to 64 cents a share in the corresponding 1938 period.

Sales of the Glenn L. Martin company, aviation company, in the first quarter totaled $3,540,511, compared with $4,360,711 in the like 1938 period, Glenn L. Martin, president, told stockholders at Baltimore. Net profit was $682,496, compared with $628,563. Undelivered orders increased from $30,309,083 on Feb. 28 to $39,137,738 on March 31.

Republic Steel Has Profit.

The Republic Steel corporation made a little money, "but not very much," in the first 1939 period, Tom Girdler, chairman, told stockholders at Jersey City.

"If war rumors would stop I think we would have a pretty good business in 1939," Girdler said. "If we do have war the steel business may be better or worse, I don't know. I know that the Republic Steel corporation does not want to make any money out of war, but if it should come we will do our best in our way for the government and the stockholders."

STEEL INDUSTRY OPERATIONS SLIP AS ORDERS FALL

The steel industry took a turn for the worse this week, Iron Age reported yesterday. Ingot operations slumped 3 points to 51.5 per cent of capacity. Orders have diminished to a trickle of small purchases for urgent needs. The scrap markets have weakened.

The drop in steel output has been precipitous in some sections. In the Cleveland-Lorain district the operating rate tumbled 16 points to 37 per cent and in the Detroit section 18 points to 55 per cent. The Pittsburgh rate slipped 3 to 45 per cent; Youngstown's fell 6 points and Birmingham 4 points. Output in the Chicago area was unchanged at 53.5 per cent.

The Iron Age composite price for scrap dropped 17 cents to $15.08 a ton.

The Phelps-Dodge corporation, copper company, yesterday ordered four 1,000 horse power Diesel-electric switching locomotives from the Electro-Motive corporation.

FOREIGN PROTECTIVE COUNCIL.

Investors' Guide: As a holder of some bonds of Poland, I should like to find out about the Foreign Bondholders Protective council. From time to time I have seen in the papers that this council has recommended the acceptance or rejection of certain offers to American holders of foreign bonds. Now it is favoring the acceptance of a reduction in interest from 8 per cent to 4½ per cent on Polish bonds I hold. Please tell me what the council is, who is behind it, and how it is financed. Should I deposit my bonds with it, if I want to take the advice?—T. M. K.

Answer: The Foreign Bondholders Protective council is not an agency where bonds are deposited. It negotiates with foreign governments for settlements on the hundreds of issues of defaulted foreign bonds that have been sold to Americans. It then recommends that offers by the governments be accepted or turned down.

The council was set up in 1933 at the request of the federal government, but it is a private nonprofit organization and is not connected with the government. Its president, Francis White, was formerly minister to Czecho-Slovakia and formerly assistant secretary of state. Other officers and directors include several former ambassadors to foreign countries, and officials of banks, and insurance and trust companies.

In the more than five years since its founding the council has participated in debt discussions covering more than 250 issues totaling in excess of 2 billion dollars of dollar bonds.

Naturally the council is not concerned with foreign bonds unless they are in default. A sensible move for every holder of a foreign bond that is in default is to register his name and address with the council at its office, 90 Broad street, New York City.

Funds to keep the council going are provided by voluntary contributions. These come from individuals, foundations, and securities firms interested in foreign bonds.

From all holders benefiting from a settlement negotiated by the council a contribution is requested, amounting to one-eighth of 1 per cent [$1.25 per $1,000 bond] of the par value of the bond. This contribution is voluntary, however.

Every holder of foreign bonds in default should keep in touch with the council. It is a simple way to keep informed on the status of your investments at no cost to you.

40 MILLION OIL NOTE ISSUE GETS FAIR RECEPTION

Texas Offering Watched as Market Clew.

The Texas corporation $40,000,000 issue of 20 year 3 per cent debentures, offered yesterday by a group of forty underwriters headed by Dillon, Read & Co., was reported in La Salle street to have moved fairly well, considering market conditions. This issue is being watched for a cue as to how the market will accept security offerings, which for the most part have been held back recently because of the uncertain European situation.

The Texas corporation debentures, which are due April 1, 1959, were offered at 101. They were quoted at 101 bid and 101¼ asked, indicating that they were not the subject of heavy demand.

Bond Issue on Market.

An issue of $3,800,000 first mortgage bonds, 4 per cent series due 1964, of the West Coast Telephone company will be offered today at 100 by a syndicate headed by Blyth & Co., Inc. Proceeds will be used to redeem all the outstanding funded debt. West Coast Telephone serves a population of about 28,000 in sections of Washington, Oregon, and California.

Threats of war have put a damper on most security offerings in recent weeks. Underwriters fear that they may be caught with large blocks of securities should war break out, and for that reason have been hesitant to enter into deals, it was said yesterday.

Two Offerings Deferred.

Two fairly large sized expected offerings this week have been deferred. These were $22,306,300 of 4½ per cent preferred stock of the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light and Power company of Baltimore, which was to have been offered in exchange for 5 per cent preferred, and $17,500,000 of Port of New York Authority 3 per cent bonds for the refunding of other debt.

Frank C. Ferguson, chairman of the New York port authority, explained that the object of the financing was the refunding of a 3¾ per cent $16,500,000 issue with one paying 3 per cent.

"Since this refunding operation is not essential, although desirable," he said, "it does not have to be consummated at this time, and since market conditions do not presently favor the completion of the step it was decided to postpone the sale indefinitly."

DEMANDS SLASH IN TAXES PAID BY CHICAGO HOTELS

Chicago hotels must have relief from excessive tax levies if they are to continue in business, Walter Gregory told members of the Hotel Women's association meeting last night at the Hotel La Salle. Gregory is managing director of the Palmer House.

Mounting tax rates and the necessity for the city's hotels to pay additional fees and taxes for various city services is causing "real anxiety," Gregory said. Among the city services requiring special fees, he said, are air tank licenses, covered bridge permits, bakery licenses, electrical inspection, and revolving door permits.

Hotels pay as heavy a tax for every guest room as the owner of a six room home on a 50 foot lot in many suburbs of Chicago, Gregory said.

WHEAT UNEVEN IN LIGHT TRADE; CORN IS HIGHER

Trading in grain futures yesterday was extremely light. Speculators were loath to take a decided stand on either side of the market pending further developments in the foreign political situation. Closing trades on wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade were ⅛ cent per bushel higher to ⅛ cent lower. Corn advanced ¼ cent and oats were ⅛ to ⅜ cent higher.

Although reports from Europe indicated an easing in the tense political situation, there was evidence that war emergency supplies of food were being accumulated by some countries. Manchukuo anounced that it would purchase 5,000,000 sacks of flour [about 1,250,000 barrels] for an emergency reserve. Of this amount 2,000,000 sacks are expected to be purchased from the United States or Australia.

GIANNINI SUED FOR ALLEGED STOCK PROFITS

Involves Transamerica Share Deals.

San Francisco, Cal., April 12.—(AP)—Harold Abrams, New York City, filed action in federal District court today seeking recovery of profits he alleged A. P. Giannini obtained in trading in stock of Transamerica corporation of which Giannini is an officer.

Abrams said he brought the suit after John M. Grant, Transamerica president, had refused to take action to obtain "redress of a wrong" to the corporation.

Names Two Companies.

The action also named the Pacific Coast Mortgage company and Transamerica as defendants. No specific sum was asked.

As one cause of action, Abrams alleged Giannini caused the Pacific company to purchase 493,012 shares of Transamerica stock at an average price of $11.30 a share, and resell the stock for an average of $14.30 a share for an aggregate profit of $1,629,941.

Says Giannini Got Dividend.

Abrams contended that out of the profits allegedly made by the Pacific company, Giannini, as a stockholder of the company, received dividends in an amount unknown to the plaintiff.

The suit charged the Pacific Mortgage company "was a dummy and alter ego of A. P. Giannini, and was organized for the purpose of concealing the fact and extent of A. P. Giannini's trading in stocks of Transamerica."
